DRUNKS NOT FROM WEST

TORONTO (CP) — Police said today more than 130 persons were arrested Friday night for various liquor offences — but none were westerners.

Bars along Yonge Street and in other downtown areas were jammed to capacity on the eve of the Grey Cup football game and police said people were still celebrating early today.

"Practically all those arrested were Metro-area people," said Inspector Tom Keightley. "I went through the addresses and don't recall seeing any westerners."

Downtown arrests for drunkeness, possession of liquor, impaired and drunken driving and causing disturbances were four times higher than the average Friday nights.

We Can Defend —Tito

JAJCE, Yugoslavia (AP) — President Tito said today Yugoslavia is strong enough to defend its sovereignty and independence alone.

But he added he saw no reason why the Soviet Union should attack Yugoslavia, a reference to Soviet-Yugoslav tension since the invasion of Czechoslovakia.

Tito told a news conference of 200 foreign and Yugoslav reporters:

"It would be desirable not to dramatize the present situation. Relaxation should be endeavored."

He also said Yugoslavia does not ask for any protection from the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, adding, "I think everywhere in the world everybody knows that we did not call anybody to help us."

NOT IN NATO SPHERE

Questioned about a statement by U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk in Brussels that Yugoslavia is part of the "Grey Zone" of NATO protection, Tito said: "Our attitude stands apart from its appraisal. We do not recognize spheres of interest. These stop at our borders."

Discussing the buildup of fleets in the Mediterranean, Tito said: "It must not be a conflict but there exist elements of alarm, because of concentration of fleets."

When the Soviets sent their fleet into the Mediterranean Tito said he believed that it was a normal step to combat "Israeli aggression." But he added, "It would be much better" if both the American and Soviet fleets were out of the Mediterranean.

The 76-year-old Yugoslav president also said he doesn't think his country's independence or neutrality is threatened, and stressed its non-aligned policies.

Collapse Of Talks Unlikely

PARIS (AP) — North Vietnam and the United States each have a long list of accusations alleging violations of the bombing halt agreement, but there was no sign today they will try to collapse the expanded Vietnam peace talks.

Observers say the charges and counter-charges are just another way of keeping the other side's feet in the fire.

As it is, the parley expected to start in two weeks will be difficult enough. Hanoi and the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front are refusing to recognize the Saigon delegation, and South Vietnam says it will talk only to Hanoi.

A Hanoi spokesman Friday made the most serious bombing accusation yet by the North Vietnamese.

He said U.S. planes hit North Vietnamese territory three straight days, the latest attack coming Nov. 27.

Three U.S. F-4 jets bombed five villages more than 40 miles north of the 17th parallel dividing the two Vietnams, he said, adding that they were not involved in any pilot rescue or defence.

Previously the North Vietnamese had protested to the U.S. delegation about what they said were U.S. bombing raids over their territory Nov. 25 and 26.

EXPLAINS INCIDENTS

A Washington spokesman said he did not know of any such attacks. The United States has explained the earlier incidents as "suppressive fire" to protect pilots of reconnaissance planes.

The United States claims President Johnson's Oct. 31 directive to stop the "bombardment and all other acts involving the use of force" on North Vietnamese territory did not rule out continuing reconnaissance flights.

Washington said, continuing U.S. surveillance of North Vietnamese territory is necessary and defence of the reconnaissance craft is justified, including bombing if necessary to help a helicopter rescue a downed pilot.

OTTAWA WINS

TORONTO (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders made it a perfect year Saturday afternoon by beating Calgary Stampeders 24-21 to win the Grey Cup, emblematic of Canadian Football League supremacy.

Quarterback Russ Jackson accepted the cup from Prime Minister Trudeau as CNE Stadium went wild following Ottawa's first playoff championship since beating Edmonton Eskimos 16-6 in 1960.

The result just added to Calgary's frustration as the Western Conference champions had waited 20 years, since 1949, for a place in the playoff final.

●

The Riders managed a 4-0 first quarter lead, but looked to to have blown it in the second quarter when the Stampeders put on their best performance and came away with a 14-4 edge.

The Rough Riders came back with the only touchdown of the third quarter to narrow the gap to 14-11, then powered their way to a 24-14 edge and held on while Calgary managed only to reduce the margin in the dying minutes.

Jackson, Vic Washington and Margene Adkins scored Ottawa touchdowns with Don Sutherin contributing two converts and a field goal. Sutherin missed three in the first quarter.

A further Ottawa single was scored in the first quarter when Wayne Giardino blocked a punt attempt by Calgary's Ron Stewart and Ted Woods of Calgary scooted back into the end to make the recovery.

Strike Vetoed By 2-1 Margin

VANCOUVER (CP)—Students at Simon Fraser University in nearby Burnaby defeated by a two-to-one margin a proposal to boycott classes but the fight for student demands will continue, student leaders said Friday night.

The ballot—which showed 1,181 in favor of a strike, 2,428 opposed and four spoiled ballots—called for sympathy with 114 students arrested Nov. 23 after a three-day occupation of the administration building.

There was a 65-per-cent turnout of the SFU's 5,400 students for the special vote, believed a university record.

The vote result was termed a victory for moderates who have been urging negotiation on demands.

"It is unfortunate that we had the strike vote at this time," said the student president, Rob Walsh, who did not favor a strike.

"But no one should say the situation is now settled. We must maintain and pursue the matter because we still have 114 people arrested by the police."

WILL MEET TODAY

Student senator Donn Korbin, a member of the steering committee of the militant Students for a Democratic University, said a meting of all interested students was scheduled today to discuss further action.

Students have been asking that criminal charges against the 114 be dropped, investigation of administration procedures at SFU and reform in the admission and accreditation policies which sparked occupation and the current unrest.

The acting university president, Dr. Kenneth Strand, had no comment on the vote results. Education Minister Donald Brothers said he was "pleased."

"I don't feel a strike could have settled anything," he said in Victoria.

An informal teach-in to discuss SFU problems began Friday and was to continue Monday without Dr. Strand's approval.

The acting president issued a statement saying such sessions must be scheduled outside the regular classes.

BACK HIS STAND

Friday afternoon Dr. Strand received a statement, signed by 63 science faculty members, endorsing his stand and supporting the president's decision to call in RCMP to arrest the 114.

He also got a petition signed by 62 members of the arts faculty opposing an earlier faculty motion which regretted the use of police. The petition called the earlier motion "the work of an unrepresentative minority."

In magistrate's court Thursday and Friday 110 of those arrested were remanded to Jan. 16 and 17. Three others, unable to get their bondsmen to agree to the long remand, were ordered to appear again Dec. 4.

A 17-year-old girl, whose case is being handled by juvenile authorities, was remanded in the custody of her parents.

All were charged with obstructing private property, a criminal offence with a maximum penalty of five years imprisonment.

Russians Retreat But NATO Alert

WASHINGTON (AP)—United States officials say Soviet strength in Czechoslovakia has dwindled to three divisions, but NATO strategists are busy implementing lessons learned from the August invasion.

Reduction of the Soviet forces followed an agreement between Czechoslovakia and the Soviet Union in October, legalizing an indefinite Russian presence in the satellite.

The Communist troops that once ranged throughout the strategic central European country now are based mainly in Bratislava and Prague, U.S. analysts say.

Particularly alarming to Western allies at the time of the invasion was the presence of six invasion divisions a short march from the West German frontier.

Despite withdrawal of the main strength, Russian concentrations in East Germany and Poland remain significant. The Soviets have maintained a formidable 20 divisions in East Germany in the past and some of the troops withdrawn from Czechoslovakia have joined them.

KEEPS CLOSER WATCH

Although the immediate threat to Western Europe's heartland has eased, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization is strengthening defences and keeping a closer watch on Soviet military activity along other European borders.

Strategists are considering including several U.S. Special Forces units among the two army brigades and four jet fighter squadrons returning ahead of schedule to Europe next year.

Military and diplomatic sources in Washington described movement of the Special Forces units as "the strongest political signal."

Developments holding NATO's attention include increased Soviet land and naval activity around Europe's northern tier, where NATO member Norway shares a common border with Russia. Informants say Russian naval forces there also have a new amphibious capability.

Russia also has established a naval infantry and has a helicopter carrier with its beefed-up Mediterranean fleet that could carry such troops into battle.

MISS GREY CUP is Barbara Casault, 19, five-foot, six-inch brunette, who was Miss Edmonton Eskimo.

Snow in Vancouver —Sunshine Here

If you're counting Victoria's blessings this weekend, count the absence of snow.

The blessing is that Vancouver got a light blanket of white this morning, and Port Alberni had half an inch and there was some snow on the Malahat.

But there is none here.

As a matter of fact, the weather office forecasts a clearing sky tonight and a mostly sunny Sunday.

Hard-Campaigning Lotta Looks to B.C. To Save Lagging Asian Children Fund

By SUSAN RILEY

Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova is looking "with hope" to British Columbia for help in her lagging Unitarian Services Committee fund-raising campaign.

She also told an audience of 250 at Cridge Hall Friday that she is grateful for the past generosity of Victorians.

Dr. Hitschmanova, executive director of the Unitarian Services Committee, was in Victoria for the opening of the annual Times Children of Asia Fund. Her speech was the 124th she has delivered across the country since the campaign started in St. John's, Newfoundland, Sept. 12.

●

"Our campaign is not going well," she told the crowded hall. "Frankly, I am worried." This year's objective is $1,250,000 in funds and gifts in kind.

Sleep does not come easily, she said, with the knowledge that she may have unhappy choices to make.

"Do you close a feeding station? Do you put a sign out in front of a hospital saying 'Closed'? Do you interrupt a child's schooling? Do you tell a family planning clinic it no longer exists?" she asked.

"I do not know."

She praised Victoria's generosity.

●

"On my last tour around the world I saw miracles you permitted us to accomplish," she said.

"I saw five and a half million Canadian cups of milk given to hungry children. Your money helped medical progress. You permitted us to work with government family planning clinics."

Before she spoke Dr. Hitschmanova showed a film, The Promising Harvest, made by CBC photographer John Buss. In color, the film showed children lining up for a mid-day meal in Calcutta, thin children in USC-sponsored hospitals, teen-age girls attending a girls' training institute which the USC piloted.

About 85 per cent of last year's $1,250,000 went to relieve the physical and social needs of children.

The USC sponsors 90 projects in eight overseas countries. Everywhere the common denominator is need. Often, said Dr. Hitschmanova, the common enemy is hunger.

"Hunger is mankind's worst enemy. It can make you a killer and a thief," she said.

●

"On my last tour I discovered hope and progress," she added. "However there is still hunger."

Dr. Hitschmanova accepted a $100 cheque from the Victoria Times presented by editor Brian Tobin and after the meeting $1,109 was collected from the audience.

Contributions to the Times Children of Asia Fund may be mailed to the Times, 2631 Douglas, or left at the business office. Cheques should be made out to the Children of Asia Fund.

Clothing or wool may be left at Fairfield Moving and Storage, 116 Dallas Road.

The Times will publish a daily list of contributors.

$600,000 Mark Passed by Fund

The United Red Feather-Red Cross Appeal passed the $600,000 mark Friday, putting it $55,000 away from its target with one week left in the campaign.

Total collections now stand at $600,342, or 91.7 per cent of the $655,000 goal.

Low Income Rents Rezoning Target

Community Welfare Council may ask local municipalities to ease zoning restriction to permit wider rental of basement and attic suites.

The step is one of many under study by the council to encourage residents to assist the new Home Centre find accommodation for low income groups in the capital region.

The Home Centre was opened this week at Spencer-house under auspices of the Community Welfare Council with assistance of Victoria Real Estate Board.

Chairman of the council's Housing Committee, Saanich Ald. Edith Gunning, said relaxation of zoning restrictions in single family areas already has been discussed in her municipality.

INCREASE INCOME

The committee also plans to explore the possibility that many retired couples in Greater Victoria might be willing to ease their battles with inflation by opening portions of their homes to rental.

Opening of the Home Centre was announced Friday. Persons seeking accommodation have been invited to telephone the centre, at 386-2704. It is manned by volunteers on a daily basis, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Persons with accommodation to offer also have been asked to register with the centre, which operates on a non-profit basis. The Home Centre has been granted six month's operating capital by local municipalities.

Greater Victoria Real Estate Board is contributing office equipment and advice.

The centre was created as a result of a public meeting last spring in Victoria at which it was pointed out hundreds of low income families and individuals are without adequate living places.

CONDUCT STUDY

Subsequently a study was conducted by the Welfare Council. The creation of the Home Centre is mainly the result of activity by a subcommittee under chairman P. D. Pemberton Holmes.

Other members are Mrs. Catherine Horne of Silver Threads, Mrs. Bunty Marshall, Saanich social services administrator; Mrs. Diana Caleb, co-ordinator of Women's Committee at Uvic; Peter Wainwright of Royal Trust and D. J. Tregear representing the Real Estate Board.

A further service by the Home Centre is provision of transportation with volunteer drivers, for persons wishing to view premises available to rental.

Aim of the centre is to find adequate premises and put applicants in contact with rentors. No attempt will be made to guarantee suitability of the accommodation or reliability of tenants.

Mrs. Gunning said another project for the future may involve encouraging young couples to buy larger homes with the intention of renting a portion and using the income to assist with payments.

B.C. Man Killed

LATHROP WELLS, Nev. (AP)—A car ran off U.S. 95 Friday, killing the driver and injuring two friends. Killed was Richard Therien, 17, of Vancouver. Treated and released at Southern Nevada Memorial Hospital were Paul Moreno, 21, and Mario Moreno, 17, also of Vancouver.

Aussie Blaze Slowed by Rain

SYDNEY (CP) — Steady rain has eased the forest fire danger in Australia's Blue Mountains 50 miles west of this New South Wales capital, at least until Monday when more hot weather and northerly winds are forecast.

The fires have killed six persons, injured 200 and caused at least $2 million damage. More than 120 homes were destroyed.

Cooler weather and rain has given firefighters a much-needed break and they are using it to consolidate their positions.

Blue Mountains fire controller Bernard Dowling said Saturday afternoon: "Even if the rain stops now, there should be no further trouble for at least two or three days.

"Most men are back on the job again. They are cutting back fresh growth, throwing debris into burned-out areas and using army bulldozers to cut new trails."

STILL A DANGER

Officials said there was still a danger a northerly wind could whip up blazes and within hours set aflame the Blue Mountain towns of Woodford, Hazlebrooke, Lawson Bullaburra and Wentworth Falls.

Police quickly moved into burned-out areas to prevent looting.

Many persons whose homes were destroyed are still housed in municipal halls, while trucks are bringing food and clothing gathered by charitable organizations.

Relief funds started by newspapers and other organizations reached $360,000 and money was still pouring in.

In Sydney's suburbs, all danger appeared to have passed for the time being. Heavy rain fell Friday night and today.

In the outer suburbs, particularly on the north side of the harbor, many householders gathered up their children, who had been sent to friends and relatives in safer areas.

Thompson Appeals

VANCOUVER (CP)—Syd Thompson, president of the 7,000-member Vancouver local of the International Woodworkers of America, Friday filed an appeal in the B.C. Supreme Court against a slander action.

Bert Pickup Retires

Bert Pickup, superintendent of Victoria Press stereo department, retired Friday after 45 years service with The Times and Colonist.

When he became an apprentice at the old Times Building on Fort Street at the age of 16, he was one of the youngest to be taken on.

On completing his training five years later, Mr. Pickup joined the crew of a whaling vessel and experienced a rough trip up the West Coast. Then he returned to work with The Times.

At a send-off given by his fellow workers Friday evening, Mr. Pickup was presented with an easy chair in which to enjoy his retirement.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

The outer coast received another battering overnight as a vigorous storm brought southeasterly gales to all coastal areas. Highest winds were reported at Estevan Point at 69 m.p.h. The system spread rain to all of the coast this morning and with low freezing level the snowline has crept down the mountainside to about 1,500 feet above sea level. Snow is expected with the disturbance as it moves through the interior today. A ridge of high pressure will move to the coast tonight and clearing is expected. This will result in colder temperatures tonight. More rain and gales will reach the outer coast Sunday with another Pacific storm, and cloud will spread to the lower mainland by evening ahead of the system.

Fire Follows Madrid Riots

MADRID (Reuters) — Part of Madrid University was badly damaged by fire early today following a day of rioting in which 150 students were arrested and three university schools closed.

A fire destroyed a lecture hall and most of the roof of Madrid's Old University building in the city centre.

PROFESSOR URGES CAMPUS TAKEOVER

A controversial students' rights spokesman told University of Victoria undergraduates Friday to "turn their teachers on" and escape the master-slave relationship in education.

Jerry Farber, professor of English from San Diego State College and author of the essay "The Student as Nigger," was speaking in the Uvic Student Union Building.

The best way to get a real university is to "take over" the buildings and run it the way the students want, he said.

N.Y. Firm Awarded Bonanza

TORONTO (CP) — In 1911, it was just another piece of Northern Ontario muskeg and scrub pine. Today, it's the site of a $2 billion—maybe even more—ore body.

Who owns it?

Friday evening, Chief Justice G. A. Gale of Ontario ruled in favor of Texas Gulf Sulphur Co., the New York company that spent more than $70 million developing the ore body near Timmins, Ont., into a producing mine, against a bid by Leitch Gold Mines Ltd. for the ore body or $450 million in damages.

It was a historic ruling, ending the biggest civil suit ever filed in the world and the longest civil court case in Canada.

Value of the ore body, based on estimates of the quantity of its copper-zinc-silver content and their current prices, has been set at a minimum of $2 billion.

But while the Leitch claim has been rejected—pending possible appeal—another is waiting in the wings.

Royal Trust Co. has filed suit on behalf of the Hendrie estate of Hamilton for the property or, failing that, for $400 million in damages.

The claim really goes back to before the start of the 1900s.

Murray Hendrie was the son of a well-to-do Hamilton family—two future kings of England, George V and George VI, stayed at the family estate during Canadian visits—but at the beginning of the 20th Century he left to fight in the Boer War.

RECEIVED LAND GRANT

As a result of his service, he received land grants in Kidd Township, near the present municipality of Timmins.

Murray Hendrie left Hamilton after the Boer War to start ranching in Alberta. He married in 1910, and died in 1914, leaving his estate to his widow.

His widow, Agnes, died 10 months ago in her early 90s, leaving a legal dispute—still going on—as to whether the estate should go to her surviving son by a previous marriage or to Murray Hendrie's brothers and sisters and their children.

In the valuation of the Hendrie estate, however, that long-forgotten piece of Northern Ontario has become vital.

In 1959, Texas Gulf, through aerial surveys, detected something which could possibly indicate an ore body.

It signed an option in June, 1963, which provided for the payment of $500 to the Hendrie estate and allowed Texas Gulf to explore in the area of the property.

During those two years, Texas Gulf could acquire mining rights to the Hendrie estate property for $18,000. If it discovered a mine the estate was to get 10 per cent participation in the profits.

ONLY REMAINING member of the Alberta legislature who came to power with Premier Manning in the Social Credit sweep of 1935, Alfred J. Hooke, Minister of Lands and Forests, (above) announced today he will seek leadership of the Social Credit Party at next week's convention.

Launch Attack On Apartheid

SALISBURY (Reuters) — A newly-formed white opposition party here has called on all Rhodesians to denounce an alleged plan to pack Parliament with supporters of apartheid—racial separation.

The new grouping said the governing Rhodesian Front party "or at least those presently controlling its policy, have now openly stated their goal to be apartheid."

It added in a statement Friday night: "Parliament is to be packed with apartheid men and any hope of a settlement with Britain will automatically be ruled out.

"We appeal to all Rhodesians to rise up and denounce this suicidal play."

The new party results from the merger Thursday of the Centre Party and the Rhodesian Constitutional Association, two moderate groups dedicated to black African advancement.

The party, to be known as the Centre Party, hopes to unite all moderate elements in Rhodesia to fight for acceptance of Britain's latest terms for a settlement of the independence dispute. Britain refuses to recognize Rhodesian independence, unilaterally declared three years ago.

The party seeks to rally business and professional men in favor of a settlement and attract uncommitted Rhodesians who are disillusioned by the breakdown of recent talks between London and Salisbury.

If it succeeds, it could become Rhodesia's first white opposition in Parliament since the general election of 1965 when Premier Ian Smith's Rhodesian Front won every white seat.

Political observers here, however, do not rate the Centre Party's election chances highly. They believe most white Rhodesians are still firm supporters of Smith.

Ottawa Planning $150 Million Bond Issue

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Benson gave advance word Friday on government borrowing plans including a $150,000,000 bond issue to help planning on the bond market aid by corporations contemplating winter issues.

He told the Commons the new short-term issue will refinance $100,000,000 worth of bonds coming due Dec. 15 and increase Canada's foreign exchange reserves. He hopes to avoid further borrowing until the end of March.

Offering price and interest rates on the new government issue will be made public Monday. The Bank of Canada will take $50,000,000 worth leaving $100,000,000 for public purchase.

Conservative Leader Stanfield, meanwhile, accused Mr. Benson of inexcusable uncertainty and unbelievable arrogance in failing to bring in a new inheritance and gift tax bill promptly.

The Opposition leader's charge came during the parliamentary examination of the $2,353,985,850 spending estimate of the finance department for the current fiscal year. It ends March 31.

SEES CONFUSION

Mr. Stanfield said the long delay between the government's announcement and parliamentary action on the bill has caused confusion for people who want to rewrite their wills and for estate managers.

The bill to lift death duties on estates passing from a man to his widow was promised in Mr. Benson's Oct. 22 budget speech. It also forecast a compensating increase in taxes on other inheritances.

Mr. Stanfield further suggested Mr. Benson was complacent about recent international exchange difficulties in Europe. Resulting trade restrictions imposed by Britain, France and West Germany are bound to have an immediate effect on Canadian trade.

Replying, Mr. Benson said developments on international exchange markets during the last week are reassuring. Canada's attitude following the monetary crisis in Europe was far from rigid.

The Commons also learned that the tentative date for the start of the Christmas recess is Dec. 20. The MPs, according to the government House leader, Donald Macdonald, will reconvene in mid-January.

Postmaster-General Kierans said he will not resign from the cabinet if it decides not to change present NATO and NORAD policy even though he believes Canada should withdraw.

HOLDS OUT CHALLENGE

He made the point after Gerald Baldwin, the Conservative House leader, challenged him on his divergence of view from existing policy.

Conservative and New Democratic Party MPs slashed the government again for what they termed a lack of action in arranging for a speedup in the drying of damp western wheat.

Trade Minister Pepin, who bore the brunt of the opposition onslaught, disclosed the government is looking into the possibility of moving Canadian wheat to the U.S. for drying. There is fear the western wheat will rot if not dried soon.

Mr. Pepin also indicated the government is willing to cancel the 15-per-cent duty on imported grain driers to help farmers buy them.

Meanwhile two bills were made law under the formal royal assent ceremony in the Senate. One dealt with the provision of operating funds for the CNR. The other rescinded a government order dissolving the charter of the Atlantic Peat Moss Company of New Brunswick.

Also in the Commons, External Affairs Minister Sharp told an opposition questioner he is unaware of any Commonwealth appeal to Nigeria to accept a referendum on the status of breakaway Biafra. He doubted that such an appeal to end the civil war would be supported by many Commonwealth countries.

INDIANS TO SEEK WORK PREFERENCE

By ALEXANDER FARRELL

OTTAWA (CP) —Most people would say discrimination against Indians is wrong. But what about discrimination on behalf of Indians?

Do Indians moving off their reserves into the cities need something more than a guarantee of normal human rights and privileges to get safely out of the backwaters into the mainstream of Canadian society?

This is one of the most difficult questions that is expected to come up at the first national conference on human rights, which takes place here next week with private sponsorship and government encouragement.

State Secretary Gerard Pelletier speaks at the opening session Sunday night, and Prime Minister Trudeau will attend the conference dinner Monday night.

Some Indians have switched successfully from their traditional life to the urban style of work and study. But others have not been able to adapt themselves so well, and many Canadians have expressed concern about their problems.

WANTS EXTRA HELP

An argument for preferential treatment is contained in a paper circulated among members of the Indian affairs committee of the House of Commons Friday by the Organization for Indian Opportunities, a Vancouver volunteer group whose purpose is to draw attention to the aspirations and problems of the Indian population.

The organization's members include Paul St. Pierre (L. — Coast Chilcotin), himself a member of the Commons Indian affairs committee.

"It is not enough for us to suggest that employers and unions should refrain from discrimination against Indians," the organization says in its paper, signed by secretary Kay Cronin.

"In this age, discrimination against people because of skin color becomes increasingly rare. The fact is, many Indians need discrimination in their favor. They need a helping hand, an understanding spirit, during the first couple of years of their adjustment to urban living."

The same point is made briefly in a background paper prepared for the human rights conference by Prof. K. Lysyk of the University of British Columbia law faculty.

STATUS GAP EXISTS

There is mounting evidence, especially in the fields of education and employment, that the gap between Indians of low social and economic status and the rest of society will not be bridged "merely by removing legal obstacles to equality of treatment," Prof. Lysyk wrote.

"Preferential treatment may be required, to take just one example, in the form of special compensatory educational programs, and the constitution undoubtedly justifies a federal role in such areas for the benefit of the Indian and Eskimo."

Prof. Lysyk puts much of the blame on the provinces for the plight of the Indians.

The Students' Voice

THE RESULTS OF THE SIMON Fraser student strike vote indicate that the serious students have at last come out of the classrooms and the library to register their protest against the protesters. Voting by more than two-to-one against a proposed voluntary boycott of classes to support the demands of a small extremist group, the student majority has brought a new perspective into the chaotic panorama of the Simon Fraser scene.

The implication is that the students prefer to attend classes, write examinations and win credits toward a degree. The result is hardly surprising when it is remembered that many students spend months earning enough money for living and tuition expenses, in addition to their months of studying. They are hardly likely to throw it all away in order to register support for a militant group on campus whose objectives lie far beyond those of moderate students who see defects in the university system but do not see destruction as the means by which to remedy them.

The Simon Fraser vote follows a somewhat similar expression of student opinion at Gordon Head, where a sizable body of undergraduates refused to endorse their council's aggressive stand on the Simon Fraser situation. But these movements should by no means be interpreted by university authorities as an invitation to resume complacency. The Simon Fraser vote, on the contrary, should spur both the provincial government and the university governors and senate to a thorough review of conditions which have kept the institution in a turmoil almost since its opening day. Many aspects of the structure and procedures of the university call for correction.

There were a number of background factors in that situation. The cold, impersonal vastness of the buildings, architecturally magnificent though they may be, is hardly conducive to temperamental comfort in teen-agers thrown into such an environment for the first time. Obviously, there must be many difficulties in establishing overnight the necessary "traditions" in a university which mushroomed with a totally new faculty and student body. And Simon Fraser's avowed intention of opening new avenues and breaking with many established academic methods attracted a number of students whose outlook was even more extreme and whose interests soon became primarily involved in the power politics of the campus rather than in the courses of study.

Obviously there were defects and weaknesses in the system on Burnaby Mountain. That much should be clear to the authorities and the government. The level-headed majority of the students who voted this week to maintain the operation of the university should not be betrayed. Their trust that reforms can be instituted without a confrontation in force and a disruption of the learning process should not be taken of advantage of. If moderation has shown its strength among the students at Simon Fraser, now is the time to show them that moderation pays. A solid, valuable lead has been given by the students. The message is clear—and the reply to it should not be official complacency.

The Picture We Paint

Congratulations for having the courage to publish those two articles by John Davy, which bring into full clarity the dirty wretched picture the human race has been industriously painting this past 50 years.

I doubt if there is an adult member of the so-called affluent society who has failed to notice this situation developing. But once again that strange apathy which seems to be a built-in human trait will take over.

We keep referring to what we call "the balance of nature." This phrase is used when we are talking about the animals, the vegetables, the weather, earthquakes and all other natural phenomena. But never, never do we use it when we are referring to ourselves.

Do we not have to stay in balance with nature? Of course we do! How else can we survive?

As Mr. Davy so aptly explained, our present way of life can only lead to the point of no return. Our fault of course is our insatiable greed, that motivates us to do only those things that we can see are immediately profitable and damn the consequences.

My sympathy goes out to the too numerous younger generation who have to inherit this ravaged old world. — John Barne, 815 Princess

Opportunities for a U.S.-Soviet Summit Meeting

SOVIET-AMERICAN summit meetings should take place, ideally, at times of extreme danger or of especially promising detente. It is at these opposite ends of the tension-spectrum that best results traditionally are achieved in dealing with the Russians. The present moment in history — a time of moderate East-West hostility — would not normally qualify as opportune. Add that the American government, and quite possibly the Soviet government as well, is in a period of personnel transition, and the textbook disadvantages are immense.

Frye

But it could just be that President Johnson will get away with tearing up the rule book.

Good Basis for Talks

There is, at the moment, a remarkably wide area in which Soviet and American interests either coincide or run for a certain distance in parallel courses. There is, in short, a good basis for discussion.

For example:

Strategic arms limitation: Both Moscow and Washington have an interest in forestalling a formidably expensive and quite possibly futile new escalation of the missile race.

If either party takes the first step down this road, the other's decision will have been pre-empted; there will be no safe option except to follow. It is, therefore, urgent to agree in time.

It is conceivable that both sides could wait until next January or February, when the Nixon administration can get around to the matter. But the risk in waiting would be great.

The arms race rarely marks time while politicians ponder. Technology never does. And from Moscow's point of view, even if technological developments did not foreclose a negotiation, there would be no assurance that Nixon would wish to negotiate. The temptation to move ahead with a missile program would be immense.

Now, therefore, is an excellent time to go to the summit and agree in principle to seek a negotiated accord. Nixon has promised to carry forward any such agreement.

American disengagement from Vietnam: There is much evidence that both superpowers feel they would benefit from a withdrawal of American and North Vietnamese forces from South Vietnam.

If Johnson and the Soviet leaders were, in addition, to agree on a cease-fire appeal, a very long and very welcome first step in the direction of disengagement would have been taken.

Russia's role in helping moderate the Vietnam conflict has not been particularly visible in recent weeks. For it to become visible could counteract, in considerable degree, the hostility felt by many Americans in the wake of Czechoslovakia.

It would thus do much to set East and West back on the road to detente, where the Kremlin clearly wants its relations with the West to be.

Moderating the space race: It may be too late, now, to arrange the co-operative moon exploration which President Kennedy once offered to Moscow. Perhaps not.

But both sides have an obvious interest, at the very least, in moderating the expense of a competitive race to the planets.

There is no reason whatsoever to go on spending billions on what is essentially a matter of prestige, namely who gets first to Mars and Venus.

Avoidance of confrontation in the Mideast and Mediterranean: This is the area where interests and priorities are most blurred. There is an element of obvious common interest in prevention of another Arab-Israel war, since each great power could be drawn, against its will, into such a conflict.

Whether on Moscow's part this interest supercedes a drive to win influence in the Arab world, and if not, whether the two objectives can be reconciled, is a major question mark.

Psychological Moment Right

So too are the ground rules under which the Soviet and NATO fleets are to operate in the Mediterranean area. An understanding on this point could ease or prevent much future trouble. It is a good time to try.

Despite Czechoslovakia, therefore, and to some extent because of it, the psychological moment for Soviet-American summitry could be right.

There is need for some plain speaking to Moscow about her belief that she is free to act as a latter-day imperial master in her spheres of influence, aggressively contemptuous of external restraint or "interference."

This theory and practice could lead to severe upheavals, negating the effect of all other efforts at pacifying Soviet-American coexistence. It could lead, for example, to a major German crisis.

A warning of this peril would come more palatably from Johnson than from a President Nixon, who — were he to give it — could well sound like a cold warrior, spoiling for four years of combat.

Summitry is always a risk. The risk today is counterbalanced by considerable opportunity.

Their Eyes Were Opened

New York Times

Mr. Dubcek neither began his country's fight for freedom, nor can he end it. Unlike Hungary which had a mere two weeks of liberty in 1956 before the Kremlin's tanks went into action, Czechoslovakia enjoyed almost eight months. In that time all elements of the nation's population had a chance personally to experience free thought and free expression. An entire generation raised in ignorance of Czechoslovakia's true history had its eyes opened to the falsehoods upon which it had been reared, and was in effect dedicated to striving for the rebirth of a free and independent homeland. And the invasion itself produced a political unity such as this sorely divided nation has never before known in modern times.

It has begun to dawn on Moscow that what the Kremlin must consider a cancer of freedom has been planted in its empire. Only such a dismaying reflection can explain the threat of the Soviet occupation chief, Gen. Pavlovsky, to send troops into Czechoslovakia's schools. Everywhere the invaders feel the silent hatred and contempt with which they are surrounded, and more and more of them must be realizing the crime they have helped commit. Moscow has succeeded in turning Czechoslovakia into a bastion of anti-Soviet feeling that will persist for many years to come, until and unless the full rights of that small nation are restored and only Czechoslovak troops march on Czechoslovak soil.

The Wrong Lesson

RATIFICATION BY BRITAIN has moved the nuclear non-proliferation treaty one step closer to realization, but United States recalcitrance continues to leave its future in doubt. The treaty was shelved by the U.S. Senate before the November 5 elections because a majority of senators argued that the Czechoslovakian affair made its passage inopportune.

President-elect Richard Nixon was also urging that ratification be delayed, and this has caused further uncertainty about American intentions. President Johnson pushed hard for the treaty and now is considering calling a special session of Congress before Mr. Nixon's inauguration in January in order to hold a vote. He would be taking the risk, however, that if the Senate's mood were unchanged and it voted down the pact, then the agreement might never be retrieved.

If this should happen, everyone would be the loser. It would be tragic if the United States allowed anger and resentment over the invasion of Czechoslovakia to blind it to the real issues involved in the non-proliferation treaty. This pact, which was first proposed by the United States, would bar any of the nuclear powers from transferring nuclear arms or technical know-how to a country which does not already possess them. It is no more advantageous to the Soviet Union than to anyone else and there is little point in blocking the treaty to "teach the Russians a lesson."

More than 80 nations have approved the treaty, indicating how widespread is its support, but so far only three have given formal ratification. The others are expected to move quickly once the United States has signed, but in the meantime they are waiting for the world's most powerful nuclear nation to make up its mind.

Protectionism Emerging From Currency Woes

EUROPE is in something of a daze after the financial convulsion which culminated in the Draconian British and French austerity measures of recent days. Inter-European financial forces tending toward an alteration in currency values led the three major governments to tighten their grip on their respective currencies, subordinating all other considerations to the maintenance of current values.

Traynor

The Germans have firmly set their face against pressures for upvaluing of the mark, though this has exacerbated strains on the French franc and the British pound. General de Gaulle has refused to acquiesce in the devaluation of the franc, preferring to try to counter pressures on him with an austere defensive program designed to close off the sources of instability.

Unsettled by the general confusion, the British government has sought to re-insure the recently devalued pound against further pressure by yet another addition to the already formidable array of defences with which sterling has been hedged around.

Leaves New Uncertainties

The shake-up leaves in its aftermath new uncertainties for the world and for Europe particularly. Economic relations will be complicated by a series of defensive devices ranging from Britain's import restrictions to France's curbs on the movement of money out of the country.

The British measures, combined with the proposed French export subsidies, constitute a considerable step toward protectionism in the interests of accelerating inflows of money needed to remove doubts about currencies. It hardly need be said that such obstacles to world trade and finance run counter to the series of post-war developments in which Western prosperity is based.

The French action is a sharp setback for the European Common Market, which is dedicated to the integration of European trade and finance. It can only be reconciled with the ECM aims as an emergency measure, and tentative approval has been given on that basis.

The European Free Trade Association, comprising seven European countries outside the Common Market, has been similarly jarred by the British import curbs, whereby the passage of foreign goods into Britain will be contingent on the payment by importers of substantial deposits to be held by the government for six months. Though technically this may not be a breach of Britain's EFTA obligations, it certainly runs counter to the spirit of the association.

Germany, for its part, has contrived equally complicated though very different restrictions to ease pressures for the revaluation of the mark. In place of revaluation, the Germans erected a series of controls on the inflow of money, and made taxation adjustments to curb wealth-producing exports and encourage imports. The purpose of the exercise is in keeping with the spirit of the Common Market, but the actual measures will create distortions comparable to those instituted by the French.

Caught in the Vice

Internally, France will be caught in the vice to which Britain has become accustomed, domestic production and consumption being squeezed in the interests of minimizing imports and maximizing exports, until there is a sufficient net inflow of money from abroad to provide secure backing for the currency.

The British austerity measures, which include indirect tax increases and credit restrictions, represent a further tightening of the vice. They were taken because of disturbing signs that internal consumption, and consequently imports, exceeded calculations made following devaluation and were becoming a threat to the stabilization of the currency.

The French enter the vice with credit restrictions backed up by wage restraints and cutbacks in government spending on the British pattern, though possibly even more severe. Reduced demand for foreign goods will exacerbate the trade problems created by the various protectionist devices.

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

Go for a hike around Thetis Lake. It can prove very interesting at this season.

As you start along the lower lake trail, there are two very fine yew trees that are straight and tall. They have very few lower branches, for they are reaching for the sun and have to compete against the firs.

Close by the Indian plum is already showing the bright green buds for the new season. Look around on the lake side and you can see the new buds of the salmon berry. These new buds take on a whitish tinge as they grow out from the somewhat crooked stems. Do you know that the new shoots of this shrub are edible? As they grow older they are armed with short, sharp prickles. Often the delicate pink flowers will appear before the leaf.

I do not think that there is a better place to see the polypody ferns than around this trail. They are in large banks and some of the fronds are over a foot in length. They hang like beautiful tapestry curtains on the rock faces and from mossy banks and from the higher limbs of trees.

Look on the back of the fronds and see the sori that are a bright yellow in color. Note how the fronds are slightly serrate. The roots of this plant are edible though it is not advisable to eat too many. They have a rather bitter licorice flavor. This fern is particularly a winter fern and likes the damp moist air.

As you go up the trail where the rock outcrops are in the sunlight, look among the mosses and lichen. You will find the dark green carrot-like leaves of the spring gold, one of our earliest flowers to bloom. Sometimes this flower will show blossoms in early January.

As you walk along the higher ridge, look across the lake. It is a darkish blue color that reflects like a mirror and one can see the reflection of the trees and rock faces blending.

Perhaps there will be flocks of sea gulls grouped together in one spot. There possibly may be some minute fish or other food there. There are often a few pond ducks close by the island. They seem to be quite content to swim lazily in large circles.

As you cross over the culvert at the top end of the lake you will notice cattails growing there now. The old stems of last year's growth are drab and bedraggled. Look closely under the water there. The tiny new shoots are beginning to appear. The green living world never stops. It is constantly breaking down and rebuilding.

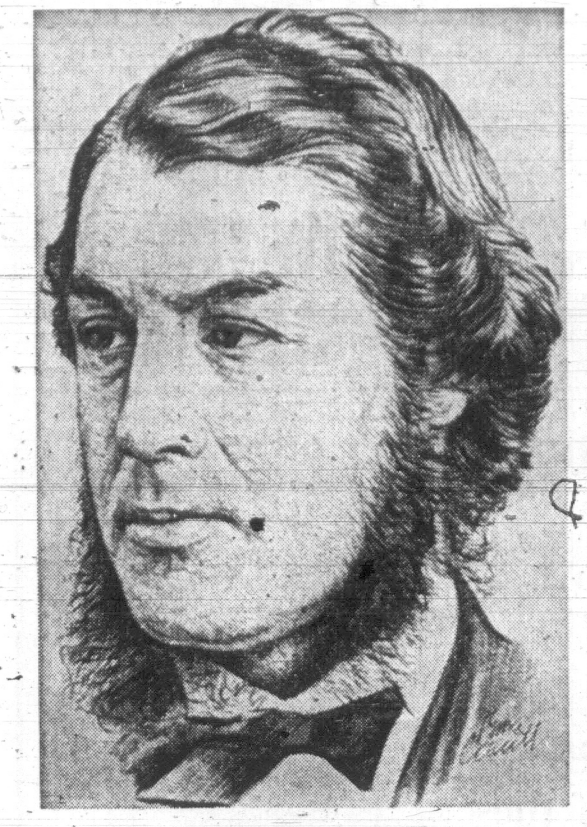
Language Issue in the U.S.

ONE FACET OF THE LANguage problem common to the United States and to Canada is now undergoing serious study by our neighbors. More highly conscious now than they have been over the problem posed for Mexican-Americans, the United States is investigating the "extent to which rules and practices of public-school systems preclude or impose sanctions on the use of Spanish in school or on school grounds."

This, it is suggested, involves inquiry into the extent to which denial of the right of instruction in the individual's mother tongue is a violation of his civil rights.

There is, of course, a significant difference in the problem confronting the United States and Canada. In this country French is a recognized official language and, as such, enjoys a preferred position over the tongue of any minority which speaks neither French nor English.

The civil rights element in the American dispute does, nevertheless, have some interest for a very large number of Canadians. They may be expected to await with some concern the findings of an independent, bipartisan investigating agency which shortly will open hearings on the question in San Antonio, Texas.



SIR CHARLES TUPPER
. . . Father of Confederation

Let's Cut Through the Shag

ABRAHAM LINCOLN

We tend to criticize our young people for the wrong reasons. It is made to appear that it is somehow seditious or un-American for a young man to let his hair grow or to affect sideburns and a beard.

Most of the young men who signed the Declaration of Independence and the U.S. Constitution had long hair; if they were under-endowed by nature in that respect, they usually wore wigs.

General Washington had a superb assortment of artificial hairdos to compensate for a sparse pate, yet no one has raised questions about his patriotism on this account.

Consider men's beads and necklaces. Few modes of dress are more colorful or replete with ornamentation, including chains and beads, than those worn by members of religious hierarchies.

It would seem absurd to suggest that such decorativeness is a reflection on the character of the wearer.

What is considered objectionable, of course, is not the long hair on the beards or the neck chains, but the fact that they are different. This is the main point.

To regard beards or beads or dress in general as a major reason for castigating young people is to stand on the weakest of all grounds.

Young people have a way of launching new styles. And older people, despite all their fulminations, have a way of following.

It is highly possible, before long, that long hair and beards will be in general style. At that point, no doubt, many young men will revert to fully shaved faces and crew cuts.

Too Effeminate?

And at this point they will most likely be denounced by many of their elders for being effeminate. It will probably be said that if God wanted men to look like women, He would not have put extra hair follicles on their faces.

Is it contended that the main arguments against young people today are directed not to their appearance but to their morality and their ideas?

Here, too, we may be criticizing them for the wrong reasons. Their morality is not so much a departure from the developed and traditional forms as it is a literal expression of them.

Disturbing as it may be to ponder the implications of the fact, their personal philosophies in many cases consist largely of ideas associated with the Sermon on the Mount and the writings of the ancient prophets.

What has happened, of course, is not that young people have condemned morality, but that they are measuring their parents by the parents' own yardsticks and find them wanting.

Young people don't have to invent revolutionary ideas; they can find them in the documents and doctrines that are woven into the texture of our religious and political life.

What young people tend to reject, therefore, is not so much the "old" morality as what they believe to be the distortion of morality by society as a whole.

Face to Face

The trouble with most of the arguments offered against young people is that the valid grounds for constructive criticism are often obscured.

For young people need to be confronted — not in absentia or in the abstract, but face to face.

They are open to serious criticism and they will listen — once they are convinced they will be listened to.

Where do many young people fall short? Their most common failing is that they tend to be non-historical. Many of them are so intent on rejecting the present that they allow themselves to become cut off from the past.

They become disconnected from the accumulation of historical experience. The attempt to see the world through eyes free of rote or encumbrance is natural enough, but it has made their vision starkly incomplete.

History — good, bad, or indifferent — may be an accumulation of errors and the end product may be less glorious than morose, but it is the only opening we have to a better future.

And the perception of the connection between cause and effect is still the finest expression of human intelligence. The particularization of this connection is what history is all about.

It is one thing to spurn the values of the present, but the divorce from history that usually goes along with it weakens the ability to know how to replace or rebuild.

There is nothing square or unhip about knowledge. No one has managed for very long to get by without it.

Living Organism

Society, however scornful or shaky, is still a living organism. It involves an incalculably large number of interactions. It needs not just pervasive, withering analysis and dissection, but steady, unremitting attention at all its stress points.

It calls for operational skills and an ability to deal with gradations — not just between the obviously good and the obviously bad, but betwen the endless mixture of partially good and bad.

Sustaining judgments have to be made all the time — judgments which, if they are to be sound, must reflect not just a capacity for swift indictment but a clear view of the total structure, running from its foundation and props to its full design.

The question is not now, any more than it has ever been, one of the absolute versus the relative in the operation of a society.

The question is still one of balance — how to pursue and locate the governing principle; how best to fit the pieces together and make them work. Again, it is a process that cannot be detached from history.

By NORMAN COUSINS
Saturday Review

In this sense, many young people are vulnerable to criticism in their approach to peace.

They inveigh against war and its evils. They demonstrate for peace. But few of them have pursued the historical requirements of peace.

They have not matched their ardor for peace with strong commitments to the things that made peace possible.

They have not seen the connection between strong world organization and the control of the causes of war.

They have argued against the manufacture of weapons of mass destruction, but they have not pressed for the development of effective and enforceable mechanisms of disarmament and control.

They call for amity among nations, but they have not advocated or worked for a strengthened United Nations as a prime means of bringing this about.

They want a larger measure of social justice, but they have yet to see fully the connection between a world arms race and the dislocation of social programs at home. In short, they have not really attached their intelligence and passions to the cause of world peace under law.

It is on the grounds that many of the young people can be faulted. Condemning them because of appearances and other superficialities only widens the gap.

The young will welcome confrontation and respect their elders all the more when we have something serious to say.

Youth Is Right to Keep Cool About Value of Possessions

By VICTOR ROZOV
Soviet Union Today

Of all the numerous qualities of the youth, which I, as a writer, have observed and which for me have become something significant, I would like to mention one which I regard as a joyous phenomenon, and this is an unruffled attitude towards commodities.

This is not that scorn for the value of, and for commodities in general, that I have seen among the hippies —an exaggerated and even violent scorn. This is a simple attitude towards commodities, determined by their essence, by their purpose.

My observations lead me to the conclusion that no hippies can appear among us. And this is not only because we are as yet not too well off materially, but also because hippies have appeared, I believe, as a protest against the senselessness of the wealth in which grownups saw the meaning of life.

In our country, in the best traditions of the former intelligentsia there is just that calm, healthy attitude towards the material side of life. Not deliberate poverty, nor yet inflated wealth that has turned into the master.

This reminds me of a mirthless joke that young friends of mine have told me with regret about a family who was also young: "They think that they have acquired a household, actually the household has acquired them."

Emancipation from wealth, from the pursuit of it, has allowed the youth to perceive true human values: Spiritual wealth, humaneness.

●

This quality of the youth is very dear to me, personally, for I believe that freedom from material want is a great freedom, but that material slavery is too high a price to pay for it.

I do not advocate asceticism, by any means. I rejoice in every success of our industry or agriculture, I rejoice in the growing prosperity of society. With everyone else I wonder at the technical wonders of our days.

But—and this may sound sacrilegious to some—the isolated fact of man landing on the moon, Mars, or Venus is not enough to make people happy. The loftiest aspirations of man lie in the sphere of his social and spiritual—esthetic and ethical—life.

To love, to be a friend, to overcome one's base and egotistic tendencies, to be able to bring happiness to people through one's activity or even an opportune kind word, to establish kind human relations on earth—those are the true human values. That is why I rejoice in that trait of the youth that I have noted.

I am 55. For 36 years of my life I was poor, at times very poor, but most of the time I was happy: I studied, loved, had friends, discovered the world, and getting up in the morning saw the sky through the window, either clear or overcast, but always beautiful and bringing joy to life.

At that time many told me: "You're pretty hard up." And I answered with a laugh: "Money isn't everything." There were those who sadly shook their heads and summarized: "You only say that because you haven't got it."

●

The rest of my life I have been living well-off. But I still value that which I valued before. Only, perhaps, I put a higher premium on health, of which there is not too much now.

And when I now say: "Money isn't everything," some disapprovingly wag their heads and answer: "You only say that because you've got it."

I am glad that for most of our youth the meaning of life is not in making money. That's an absurdity. I am glad that the youth of my country treasures and understands true spiritual depths, true human values.

The Vital Part Is Still The Nut Behind the Wheel

By ART STOTT

When the competent and courteous gentlemen at the government testing station had run my venerable car through the required drills and it had emerged with flying colors and no apparent, dangerous faults, I offered a slightly unkind comment to the man who took my money for this compulsory examination.

Stott

"I am," I told him, "now paying a penalty of a dollar and a half and 40 minutes of my time to prove that I keep my car in good shape."

He accepted by chuntering with good grace. "But," he said, "think of the protection we are giving you by removing from the road so many of the defective cars which, in effect, are accidents just looking for a place to happen. They could slam into you on the highway and you'd be in the hospital. The driver of the mobile wrecks would probably have no money to provide compensation."

He told me of some of the people whose cars had been declared defective. "They get out of the driver's seat shouting, kick the fenders and go away mad," he said.

For my part, I pointed out to him that in this instance, as in so many more, including rate setting for insurance premiums, the responsible person pays the penalty for the irresponsible. He was inclined to agree.

★ ★ ★

Since then I have tried to find out how many accidents are ascribed to mechanical defects in cars and how many to human error. No one I could reach came up with any authentic figures—and for good reason. When a wreck occurs, how can you prove that some feature of the car was faulty before it became a twisted mass of metal, with all sorts of broken parts?

However, from a person of experience in such matters, I received the opinion that mechanical failure could account for about 3 per cent of all accidents, unsatisfactory highway conditions for another 2 per cent and maybe the other 95 per cent could be attributed to error on the driver's part. My informant emphasized the fact that his figures were surmise—he thought reasonable surmise —but he couldn't give me detailed statistics.

He served to buttress my own belief in the old, old saying that the most important factor in the operation of a car was the nut behind the wheel. If that nut is irresponsible, has a heavy foot and is always ready to take a chance, he can pile up an impressive record of accidents in a new car without any apparent mechanical defects.

As I drove away from the testing station I was converting the $1.50 examination fee into meaningful terms—that's three packages of cigarettes which I should stop smoking, or half the price of the Sunday roast, and I'm eating too much. I began to think a little more seriously of drivers who persist in riding around in defective cars knowing they are defective. And I came to the conclusion that the defects in such drivers were infinitely more dangerous than the defects in their cars.

You can lift such a driver from behind the wheel and tell him that his jalopy is a menace to life and limb on the road. So he can kick the fender, go away mad and get himself another car. The rolling stock he acquires may be mechanically excellent. But when he becomes the nut behind the wheel, with a carefree attitude to safety for himself and for others, the car assumes what a former B.C. Supreme Court judge used to call the character of a lethal instrument.

I was impressed by another matter as I drove away. My car has a clean bill of health until June. Fine. The last time I took a physical check-up I was given a clean bill of health too, But I could rise from the chair where I am typing now and drop in a heap before I took two steps if one of the several imponderables occurred.

What happens if my car has the mechanical equivalent of a heart attack on my way home from the office? Will the approved sticker in the lower right-hand corner of my windshield cure the problem?

My ponderings aren't very reassuring. They tend, also, to take my mind off the fairly critical business of driving. 'Twould be better if I left the ruminations for the time I'm sitting in an easy chair, safe at home.

In the meantime I'll follow my regular practice of driving scared.

★ ★ ★

A long time ago a man of some experience with cars advised me to consider everyone else on the road as a potential nut, an idiot without a thought to safety, and to drive with extra caution with that in mind.

"Then," he said, "consider the possibility that you're a little nutty too, and drive twice as carefully."

It's an unfriendly way to look at fellow motorists, but it can avert some unpleasant surprises. And it's probably the best known way to avoid difficulty with the nut behind the wheel, which no mechanical test under government auspices can handle half so well.

Hong Kong Flu Got Boost From Bug-Packing Doctors

By MAX WILDE

GENEVA — Most parts of the world face another Asian flu epidemic in the coming months and, although inadvertently, doctors have helped to spread the virus.

The new influenza virus came to light in Hong Kong where it caused an epidemic of about half a million cases late in July. In mid-August, Singapore was attacked and, by the end of the month, outbreaks had begun in Taiwan, Malaysia, South Vietnam and the Philippines.

In September, the infection reached Madras, Bombay, Thailand and the Northern Territory of Australia. Ships from Hong Kong or Vietnam carried the virus to Japan and even to the west coast of the United States.

Then in mid-September, the International Congresses of Tropical Medicine and Malaria attracted several thousand doctors to Teheran. Some of these came from areas infected by the new flu virus and about 30 per cent of the doctors at the congresses caught it. It then spread first to the inhabitants of Teheran itself and then to other parts of Iran.

Influenza is unique among diseases because of its capacity to spread at great speed throughout the world in the form of pandemics.

It is expected that it will reach the Northern Hemisphere in full force between now and April, and the Southern Hemisphere in its later winter season.

Fortunately, the present form of influenza is fairly mild, according to Dr. Charles Cockburn, senior Virology Expert of the World Health Organization in Geneva.

These influenza pandemics, Dr. Cockburn said, occur about every 10 years. For reasons as yet unknown, a new type of virus emerges at these intervals, overcoming the immunity persons have acquired in attacks by earlier types of virus. There was a pandemic in 1947 and again in 1957.

This year's virus, already named the Hong Kong Virus, Dr. Cockburn explained, is not entirely different from the A2 virus that emerged in 1957, but sufficiently so to infect large proportions of people exposed to it.

As soon as the Hong Kong outbreak was reported in mid-July, and the new virus isolated by Dr. W. Chang, virologist in charge of the WHO National Influenza Centre there, the WHO emergency plan went into operation.

The virus was immediately sent by jet aircraft to the WHO World Influenza Centre at Mill Hill in London, where Dr. Helio Pereira, director of the centre, found it to be sufficiently different from previous strains of the A2 virus to alert WHO headquarters in Geneva.

Then, each of the 80 national influenza centres in 55 countries, which co-operate with WHO, were informed of the emergency and sent samples of the new strain, cultured in London, as well as at the National Influenza Centre for the Americas at Atlanta, Ga. These centres were asked to test the immunity of people of different ages and report their findings to WHO.

When these tests showed that persons who had had attacks of influenza due to strains prevalent until a few months ago, or who had been inoculated with vaccine made from these strains, showed little evidence of immunity from the new strain, this was made available to vaccine producers.

However, Dr. Cockburn pointed out, it takes three to four months to produce a new vaccine on a large scale, so that little will be available before next month and even then the quantity manufactured will not meet the probable demands and will not nearly cover the first wave of the disease.

For this reason, such vaccine as is available will be used in the first place to protect those at special risk of dying from the infection — the old, debilitated, and those with heart, lung or chronic metabolic diseases.

For the great majority of people in the world, Dr. Cockburn warned, vaccine will not be available. However, they can do much to help themselves and reduce the risk of complications (which is very small for normally healthy people) by going to bed as soon as they are attacked and staying there until their temperature is normal. This also reduces to some extent the speed with which infection spreads.

There is a political aspect to contemporary influenza pandemics. Although both the 1957 Asian flu A2 virus, and this year's Hong Kong virus were first spotted in Hong Kong, there is good evidence to believe that the new strains originated not there but in Southeast China, probably some months before.

If China were an active member of the United Nations and its specialized agencies, including the World Health Organization, and a WHO national influenza centre could be established in China, much valuable time could be saved in activating the WHO emergency plan.

Boys Changing Scout Program

A streamlined program aimed at involving the boys themselves has been introduced by the Boy Scouts of Canada, a local official said Thursday.

Everything about the movement in past years has been changed — the uniform, the Scout law and promise, the merit award requirements and the focus of activity.

"The new thinking is that the scouting program should be based on what the boys want to do," Peter McCarthy, regional field executive with the movement, said.

"We are making the Scout program oriented to the boy, rather than to the program itself or the Scout leader.

"Leaders, being adults, in the past found it hard to relate to the boys and would have a set program. This wasn't always what the boys wanted or expected."

SIMILAR INTERESTS

Now, patrols of Scouts — which may have had as many as eight boys — are smaller and centred around groups of similar interests.

A patrol may have as few as three members, Mr. McCarthy said, who are of the "same age, are friends together, or of the same mental and physical development."

Each Scout troop will have advisers to work with the patrols on whatever they decide they want to do. These advisers will be parents or other interested adults.

"Boys can now come into Scouts at any age — the terderfoot badge only takes two meetings to earn.

"Each one can go on with the other badges according to his mental level as well as his interests."

The standards which used to be set for merit badges have been changed to make them more adaptable to the individual boy in a troop, Mr. McCarthy added.

"Not every boy will have to meet the same requirements. He will be able to earn his badges on work done according to his ability."

Also gone is the old Scout law (with 10 parts) and promise, which used the terms "duty to God and the Queen" and "obey the Scout law."

The new promise reads "... to love and serve God, my Queen, my country, and my fellow man" and "to live by the Scout law."

The new law says what a Scout is, rather than telling boys what a Scout must be, Mr. McCarthy said. The emphasis is taken away from anything that might sound like a command, he said.

Uniforms have been changed from the green shirt with epaulettes and the broad-brimmed hat to a shirt cut so it can be worn inside or outside the trousers, without epaulettes, and a red beret.

Merit badges will no longer be sewn to the shirts but will be worn on a "bright red" sash over the shoulder.

And the old class badges — second class, then first class and finally Queen's Scout — have been dropped. In their place, boys will work towards a Pioneer, Voyageur and Pathfinder award.

The Queen's Scout award is now called the Queen's Venturer award. The ages for Scouts are 11 to 14 and for the senior level, Venturers, 14 to 17.

The changed became official in September, after a two-year trial with troops in Peterborough, Ont., Mr. McCarthy said. Troops in the Victoria area are now "in the process of conversion" and must change by next September.

To the Citizens of the Greater Victoria Area:

PURPOSE OF THIS CAMPAIGN—To raise money toward the cost of six new buildings of four units each which will accommodate an additional 24 persons.

Through the generosity of the citizens of Greater Victoria, aided by Government Grants, donations from the Kiwanis Clubs of Victoria, Bank and Mortgage Loans, many of our senior citizens have and are now enjoying happy years in the comfortable surroundings of Kiwanis Village at the least possible cost.

LOCATION—Area bounded by Cedar Hill Road, Cook Street and Lang Street.

TENANTS—54 self-contained cottages in Kiwanis Village housing 88 persons. In addition, 79 persons are housed in Kiwanis Villa in individual rooms with modern centralized dining facilities. Total 167 persons living in Kiwanis Village and Villa combined. Four more self-contained units have just been completed.

MONTHLY RENTALS—
(A) Self-contained units for a couple including stove and refrigerator — $41.00.
(B) Self-contained single units for survivors, including stove and refrigerator — $31.00.
(C) Board and Lodging at the Villa for single residents — $95.00.

THIS DRIVE IS FOR CAPITAL FUNDS ONLY, AND MONIES RECEIVED ARE USED TO PAY FOR CONSTRUCTION AND FURNISHINGS. OUR OPERATIONS ARE SELF-SUSTAINING FROM RENTAL INCOME.

WHAT OF THE FUTURE?—Because of the constantly growing waiting list the Kiwanis Village Society has a long range committee at work to expand this project. There is room for an additional 40 housekeeping units on our present property and, as funds permit, these will be built. Adjoining property will be considered for expansion in due course and, with the help of the citizens in this area, the Society will continue to work for the betterment of this community project, to which all Kiwanians contribute their time and effort voluntarily.

INCOME TAX DEDUCTION—Contributions are eligible for Income Tax Deduction.

Author of Kandy Checks Surfing Set

THE PUMP HOUSE GANG, by Tom Wolfe; Farrar, Straus and Giroux; $5.95.

Reviewed by Gillian Thomas

It is unlikely that a collection of essays by Tom Wolfe could create such a sensation as his first book, The Kandy-Colored, Tangerine-Flake, Streamline Baby. In The Pump House Gang he has collected 15 of his studies of various social phenomena. The quality, admittedly, is patchy but the total effect is extremely impressive.

The title essay is a study of a California surfing set and revolves around the question of status as do several of the other essays. In this social milieu only those under 25 are socially acceptable. Some of the clubs even refuse admission to over-25s and demand identification at the door. Wolfe describes a situation where a girl is refused admission:

"Nothing in the world is going to make a woman look stupider than to stand around trying to argue, 'I'm younger than I look, I'm younger than I look!' So she practically shrivels up like a Peruvian shrunken head in front of her boyfriend and he trundles her off, looking for some place you can get an old doll like this into."

Lacks Focus

But the essay as a whole lacks focus and like many of the others in the book is too impressionistic to be very much more than entertaining journalism.

Three of the essays, 'The Life and Hard Times of a London Society Girl," "The Noonday Underground," and "The Private Game" are set in contemporary London. Oddly enough Wolfe seems, in some respects, more at home in describing this scene than his native North American one.

He catches some of the social nuances of the English class system a good deal more closely than most contemporary English writers and has a nearly infallible ear in perceiving the subtle put-down implied by certain accents and speech patterns.

Contemporary English writers have needed to present these behavior patterns in situations where there is extreme disparity in class background, but Wolfe explores the much more interesting area where slight gradations of social status are betrayed by the merest word or gesture.

The three essays on the modern British scene are however marred by an almost unconsciously puritanical tone. Tom Wolfe, like many other Americans seems to see London as basically degenerate.

The stance that emerges is not that of the traditional puritan who declares that pleasure is Satanic but its modern counterpart, that of the puritanical swinger who implies rather languidly that the whole thing is really rather boring and vacuous. The essays might come over more strongly if this stance were adopted consciously but it is never more than a dragging undertow to his description of the contemporary scene.

The two longer essays of the collection are superb. Their focus is sharp and the writer's observations are made with a force that is lacking in some other parts of the book. The first, "King of the Status Dropouts" is a long description of Hugh Hefner's life in his 48-room Chicago house. Hefner, it seems, lives like a modern parody of a recluse, almost never stepping outside his own front door, nursed by a vast battery of electronic devices.

Playboy Fantasy?

At first the description strikes one as a fantasy of how the editor of Playboy could be expected to live, but then the realization dawns that the whole thing is a factual description, including Hefner's bragging about the super-efficient system of life he has evolved:

"This place is run like a hotel ought to be run. It goes 24 hours a day. There's a full kitchen staff 24 hours a day, a chef, anytime I wake up, I can get anything I want. I've got a staff of 25 people here on a 24 hour schedule. I've got an Ampex engineer on the staff . . . I sent him to the Ampex school in San Francisco. He's on 24-hour call."

The electronic equipment, the vast hi-fi, the "gleaming galaxy of speakers, tubes, rheenters, wheepers, flottoes and dials," is like an absurd parody of the Playboy lifestyle.

There is even a television camera with full videotaping equipment trained on the huge circular bed. Wolfe asks him why he has the camera in the bedroom:

"'Well,' Hefner smiles, his cheekbones come out, his eyes turn on, 'who knows when something very beautiful might happen in this bedroom!' "

The essay on Marshall McLuhan, "What If He Is Right?" gives us not only a very clear sense of McLuhan as an individual but articulates the half-recognized anxiety that one tends to feel about some of McLuhan's prophesies about our environment. He catches almost perfectly the Delphic tone of McLuhan's pronouncements. He tells how, in an attempt to place him in an alien environment, Wolfe and his friends took McLuhan to a topless, and very nearly bottomless, restaurant in San Francisco.

As it turned out, only McLuhan remained entirely cool about the situation:

"Inside of thirty seconds McLuhan had simply absorbed the whole scene into . . . the theory. He tucked his chin down.

" 'Well!' he said. 'Very interesting!'"

" 'What's interesting, Marshall?'

" 'They're wearing us.' He said it with a slight shrug as if nothing could be more obvious.'

" 'I don't get it, Marshall!'

" 'We are their clothes,' he said. 'We become their environment. We become extensions of their skin. They're wearing us'."

One of the most interesting aspects of this essay is the comparison made between McLuhan and Freud. Both found that their theories met only with ridicule at the outset.

Both derive much of their theoretical material from literature, Freud using both literary terminology and examples, and McLuhan beginning his teaching career, "in one of the most exquisitely squalid hells known to middle-class man: freshman English at a Midwestern university."

Wolfe suspects that just as Freud developed his generalizations about the nuclear family partly from his own family situation, so McLuhan has developed his theories based on the pervuasiveness of communications media from his own teen-age children constantly disturbing his study with the blaring of radio, television, records and the telephone.

Although the formation of the theories of both may well have evolved from such arbitrary influences both are highly disturbing as prophets of their age. Just as Freud "savaged and very nearly exterminated traditional Philosophy," McLuhan "has been the savager of the literary intellectuals. He has made the most infuriating announcement of all: You are irrelevant."

Just Suppose

Whether or not one counts oneself in the category of those being savaged, like Tom Wolfe, we all have the recurring anxiety, "What if he is right?"

Each essay in this collection has as a frontispiece a drawing by the author. Some of these are as pertinent to the subject matter as the essays themselves. One of the cruelest is a drawing of Hugh Hefner lying in a foetal position on his enormous circular bed, clutching a Pepsi bottle, and obscenely plugged in to dozens of electronic devices.

It would be rash to compare Tom Wolfe to the great graphic or literary satirists, but it will be interesting to see how much further he will develop in this direction. Perhaps, in a society that so often unconsciously parodies itself, the most that the satirist can do is what Wolfe already undertakes — simply to report its more extreme absurdities.

Young Officer's Imagination Put Frogmen Into Asia Action

THE FROGMEN OF BURMA, by Lt-Cmdr. Bruce S. Wright. Clark-Irwin, 152 pp., Maps. Illustrated. $6.50.

Reviewed by R. H. Roy

One day in January, 1941, a young sub-lieutenant in the Royal Canadian Navy Volunteer Reserve was awaiting a posting in St. John's, Newfoundland. Bored with a week's inactivity, he volunteered to take out the small vessel which patrolled the boom guarding the ships in harbor. During the night he began to wonder how the ships might be attacked by infiltrating through the net and other devices designed to protect the ships against a surface or submarine attack. He thought it might be done by specially trained swimmers carrying limpet mines.

FORMS FIRST

He wrote up his idea, submitted it to his interested superior, and eventually it reached the desk of the chief of combined operations in London, Vice-Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten. He, too, was keenly interested in the submission and as a result, Lt. Bruce Wright, a recent graduate from the University of New Brunswick, was called to London to form the first unit of British frogmen.

For Wright, the next few years were filled with a type of adventure which few Canadians experienced. He was given the task of selecting, training and equipping a group of men to perform hazardous tasks which eventually were given to what were termed the Sea Reconaissance Units.

In his unit there were men from all over the Commonwealth. Trained in the United Kingdom, California and the Bahamas, Wright experimented as he trained and learned by doing. Little was known at the time of the habits of sharks, barracudas and other undersea dangers, and some of the most exciting chapters of his book describe the encounters between the frogmen and these brutes.

Much to Wright's disappointment, his unit was not required for the Normandy landings and it was not until January, 1945, that he and his men were called for action in the southeast Asia command. Oddly enough, the frogmen were not required for sea operations, but to assist the 14th Army's crossing of the Irrawaddy River as it pressed on to Mandalay.

WRAPS OFF

Wright's descriptions of the frogmen in action forms about one-third of the text, and it is a fascinating account. The admiralty only recently lifted the wraps from the secrecy surrounding the exploits of these specialists, and no better man could have been chosen to write the account than the young Canadian naval officer who first formed the unit and later led his own group in action in Burma.

Commander Wright writes with a simple, direct style which is most appealing. The story he has to tell will hold the reader's interest from start to finish. It is a man's story about men, and there is more adventure in this slim volume than one will find in a shelf full of similar books.

Prince Albert Saved Flower Show

The Royal Horticultural Society was founded in 1804 at the suggestion of John Wedgwood, son of the famous potter, "to collect every information respecting the culture and treatment of all plants and trees, as well culinary as ornamental." It sent its collectors across the world in search of new species. When close to bankruptcy, it was saved by the timely patronage of Prince Albert and has prospered ever since, with Wisley and the Chelsea Flower Show drawing increasing crowds every year.

The Story of the Royal Horticultural Society (Oxford University Press) is a handsomely illustrated volume prepared by Mr. H. R. Fletcher, Regius Keeper of the Royal Botanic Garden, Edinburgh. It provides illuminating glimpses of social history as well as a great deal of scientific information.

Beauty Lover, Scientist Pleased

BIRDS OF THE EASTERN FOREST: I. Paintings by J. F. Lansdowne, Text by John Livingston. McClelland and Stewart Limited. $17.50.

Reviewed by Dr. G. Clifford Carl

It was a happy circumstance that brought Fen Lansdowne and Jack Livingston together for the first time some years ago. The contact was the beginning of an association highly productive to both parties and leading to the publication of "Birds of the Northern Forest" in 1966 and its companion volume this year "Birds of the Eastern Forest."

When they first met, young Lansdowne's bird paintings were scarcely known outside of the Victoria area. Mr. Livingston, then executive director of the Audubon Society of Canada, recognized the artist's special talents and arranged a showing of his work at the Royal Ontario Museum in Toronto. The much needed publicity helped launch Fenwick on his painting career. Since that time exhibitions of his work have been given in a number of leading art galleries and museums and numerous paintings have been purchased by both institutions and individuals.

Lansdowne with painting

A joint publication by these two talented persons was a natural outcome. Each is admirably suited to complement the other. Lansdowne's flair for composing his subject in a pleasing natural posture with a minimum of habitat and his great attention to minute detail results in a picture that satisfies both the beauty lover and the scientist, while Livingston's chatty style is refreshingly informal and spiced with interesting personal experiences. The combination of these special gifts in the form of pictures and words is eminently successful.

52 VARIETIES

The latest work consists of an introduction in which the area covered is described followed by accounts and color plates of 52 birds typical of the eastern forest. All the species featured occur in eastern North America but fully two-thirds of them have a much wider over-all distribution. Thus some such as the pied-billed grebe, great blue heron, American bittern, sparrow hawk, mourning dove, and pileated woodpecker, to name a few, are found in the far west as well, and some such as the barn owl, common gallinule, common tern and bank swallow also occur in the Old World.

LINE DRAWINGS

An interesting feature which adds much to the usefulness of the book is the series of sketches, occasionally a single sketch, which precedes each account and color plate. The line drawings, apparently done from life, often show the bird in several characteristic postures which may be of help to the serious student wishing to learn field marks of value in identification. In any event they are a delightful bonus.

Not many years ago bird watching was a hobby indulged in by people who were thought to be slightly odd. Nowadays this activity is highly respectable and, in fact, watching birds is one of the fastest growing outdoor pursuits in North America. The publication of this superbook is a good indication of the status now attained by this hobby.

FARMER BUCKLER GROWS

A New and Fertile Crop

OXBELLS AND FIREFLIES by Ernest Buckler. McClelland and Stewart; $7.95.

Reviewed by Eugenie L. Myles

Ernest Buckler's a farmer, so he says.

A farmer, we remember, who grew a crop that lifted to lyric and passionate heights in his novel The Mountain and the Valley. In ten years of reviewing, exclaimed the delighted Claude Bissell, this was the best Canadian book to reach his desk.

That was in 1952.

For long Farmer Buckler's field lay fallow. Then of his sowing came forth, in 1963, The Cruelest Month, a disappointing harvest often choked with tares.

Now we have Ox Bells and Fireflies. Again the author's name recalls the excitement that greeted his first novel, that poignant tale of David Canaan's growing and suffering in the Nova Scotia valley.

But we're puzzled by this new book. It's a kind "of fictional memoir," says the author on the gentian-blue dust jacket.

SUSPICIOUS SNIFF

We see in the frontispiece the words "Canada Council" and we sniff suspiciously.

We look further and are glad to find that again we are in David's valley, and that in the first chapter, entitled "Seven Crows a Secret," the speaker "I" is a ten-year-old farm boy. It is the first of May when "swallows shimmer, hills kindle, and the fields sheen themselves with resurrection and internal rhyme."

The lad must go with his parents to give comfort at the home of neighbor Jim Stedman, who has just fallen from the staging on his barn roof and broken his neck on the rocks beneath. Presently they walk back from the churchyard, and the boy counts the crows circling overhead:

"One crow sorrow, two crows joy; three crows a wedding, four crows a boy; five crows silver, six crows gold; seven crows a secret never to be told."

LOVING DETAIL

Lovingly, within the next near-300 pages, Buckler paints for us, with all the fine lines and the varied colorings of a Grandma-Moses primitive, the multitude of detail that makes up the outward mystery of life in the Nova Scotia valley.

First there are the boy's memories, some surely too perceptive for a ten-year tyke, memories of the farm routine in each of the seasons, of the neighbors, of the one-room school, and particularly of the texture of the countryside. These blend into the memories of the youth and man who in a chapter entitled "Plow, Scythe and Peavey," recalls how, on a winter day:

"The brilliant air went to your blood quicker than wine. It brought all your senses out, clear-eyed, to the edges of yourself. A plenty beyond asking, they filled you with such a glow of completeness that you felt like giving everything a pat.

"A knee braced against first one ox's warm monolithic leg and then the other's, you drew the yoke straps tight through the leather headpieces studded with brass hearts, and cross-laced them firmly in the grooves of the yoke pegs. You gave the oxen's muzzles a pat."

SUGGESTIVE

Ensuing chapter titles suggest the kind and the breadth of the reminiscences: "Seed, Forges and Rising Bread"; Goose Grease, Death and Parables"; and "Soft Soap and Drawknives."

Sometimes we tire of the too-obvious straining after images and of cloud of morbid inactivity relieved too infrequently by bits of lively doings—but relieved near the close, fortunately, by several short sketches which demonstrate the author's gift as story-teller.

We tire of the too-frequently interlarded bias against the city and the city-dweller. "These country people talked another way too. And not the cheap way city people talk with their souffed or flinty tongues . . ."

NOSTALGIC

And we tire of the exalting of the splendors of yesterday. Mr. Buckler is writing nostalgic Wordsworthian nonsense when he implies that the glory of the rose may not be, is not, a perennial lifetime affair.

Though this book is, then, sown with too many yearned-for yesterdays and watered with too many elegaic tears, it still represents a bumper crop.

In fact its tangled exuberance reminds one of the growth that springs up from a packet of wild flower seeds, with a potpourri of scents, a kaleidescope of color.

From Little Boxes Spiritual Safaris

By TED LINDBERG

Helen Piddington's prints are delectable, irresistible confections of good quality — translucent and fruity — some crystalline or opalescent, some opaque.

Lindberg

They are rehearsals of memory and imagination that reveal her seemingly inexhaustible powers of observation, association and transliteration.

An extensive suite of these works, described by the artist as "single-plate, monocolor etchings," are being exhibited at the Print Gallery in Oak Bay until Dec. 4.

Like her teacher, Stanley William Hayter, who maintains the world-famous Atelier 17 in Paris, Miss Piddington may be well on her way to becoming a printmaker's printmaker. Only those with an inkling of this demanding craft can fully appreciate the quality of these impeccable impressions.

The secret of her success, however, goes beyond the skill she has achieved in mixing matchless hues, applying diverse inks to a single plate, and maintaining a consistent quality thoughout an entire edition.

It is her imagery which is singular, the design of rare and exotic "stamps" borne on messages from unheard of and unfathomed regions, which makes us realize that the limits of the known world are constantly subject to revision.

Even the fact that Miss Piddington was first a graduate anthropologist from UBC, does not in the least seem incongruous when one gazes at these images. For her, I suspect, every facet of human investigation, whether scientifically or intuitively divined, reaps rewards directly proportionate to the effort expended.

Helen Piddington is a kind of renaissance explorer and her prints are kinds of little boxes in which all journeys may be kept.

Although these etchings are generally abstract in form, they are biomorphic, organic or geological to the extent that one can effortlessly and pleasantly discern a wealth of associations — common denominators, which stress the ecology and wonder of the natural world.

●

There is a mythic content within this highly personal vocabulary and rhetoric — perhaps also related to the anthropological studies — which is coupled with expertly achieved qualities of erosion and antiquity.

To look at these prints, one after another, is to be transported through racial memory, through levels of consciousness, focusing through the eyes of another. The artist becomes a 'guide' for a little time-space safari, the extent of which depends on each individual's willingness to be transported.

There are first, veils of evanescent color overlays, such as in En Face, Mountain High, Valley Low and A Little Later; subtle, whispered suggestions of spiritual flight.

These are observed through seldom-experienced qualities of light, bringing to mind anything from a rarefied atmosphere of some Himalayan niche to a single drop of pond water under a microscope.

What dream-like revelation, what medium of youthful, transcendental mobility, one wonders, permits this artist to transport herself to these ends of the earth: returning with charts and relics, litmus papers of measured emotion?

●

Other compositions, by comparison, involve very specific and discrete shapes in tiny formats: cellular knobs and blobs; foetal creatures; phantasmagoric flagella, existing in some microcosmic landscape.

In these, the figures and ground, or segments of equivocal space, are reduced to simple, flat areas of delicate coloration, highly dependent on separating lines which record gentle but unremitting tensions.

At still another extreme are the heavily patterned, opalescent images, in which Miss Piddington demonstrates this prowess for mixing or laying up colors on the etched plate, so that magical gradations (reminiscent of 'accidental' watercolor experiments) can be predicted and perfectly controlled.

These are perhaps one of her most characteristic modes: jewel-like configurations; paisleys of passionate pinks, magentas, aquas and pale blues.

Compositions like Bakkaris, Un Petit Fruit and The Eyes of Night are incomparably rich, original definitions of beauty — unabashed, forthright expressions in the face of what has become a semantically useless term.

●

Even in the use of more earthy colors: grays, greens, blacks and browns, she achieves a richness of texture, which is at once tangible and illusory, such as in Eleousa, a reddish-black monolith suggesting anything from a venerable ant hill to Ararat — depending on one's penchant for scale.

Many of the gestural shapes in these more complex designs remind me of ancient runes or Arabic: rubbings from half-corroded armor; again, denoting some inscrutable antiquity, a quality which in contemporary art is extremely difficult to approximate.

A recent stay at the Queen Charlotte Islands netted her the only remotely representational prints in the show, some totemic faces, compounded in mystery as few can render such images, perhaps the first time since Emily Carr herself attempted the task.

Helen Piddington's prints, among other things, are virtually unphotographable (which is literally why we run no picture this week . . .), so the only solution is to see them in the flesh, while this rare opportunity is yours.

'A Play for Voices'

One day in the lives of the inhabitants of a small town in Wales—the funny, pathetic, humorous, heart-stirring emotions and incidents experienced by ordinary people—that is the substance of Dylan Thomas, Under Milkwood.

Yes, the people may be ordinary folk, but Thomas' understanding and sensitive insight, communicated in words of the utmost beauty and significance make them poignant, never-to-be-forgotten figures in human drama.

Under Milkwood — A Play for Voices, was first performed as a BBC commissioned broadcast with an all-Welsh cast headed by Richard Burton in 1954.

RPA Productions will offer it to Victorians as a pre-Christmas treat, Thursday, Friday and Saturday of next week and Dec. 12, 13 and 14 at McPherson Playhouse.

CAST ALMOST LOCAL

Timothy Bond, who staged the recent RPA comedy, Generation, will direct the Dylan masterpiece.

The cast, with one exception, is local and consists of Ann Purdon, Ethel Lloyd-Jones, Jill Adams, Joy Richards, Pam O'Neill, Phyllis Gaskell, Owen Foran, Harry Hill, Pat Patterson, Rod Symington and Brian Allen.

Principal narrator will be played by Vancouver actor Eric Schneider.

Despite its sub-title, "A Play for Voices," Under Milkwood has often been presented on stage in different degrees of dramatization.

The version to be seen at the McPherson, is a "dramatized reading." There will be a set, the actors will play their parts—each portrays several characters—and move about the stage.

It is a reading only in the sense that they will carry their scripts as in a radio play.

Dylan Thomas, the greatest Welsh poet and writer of the age, worked on "Milkwood" over a period of 10 years, completing it only within a month of his death in 1953.

After its first production, Plays and Players' magazine described it as "alive and irresisibly gay. The humor earthy and rich."

Under Milkwood bookings are now open at the McPherson box office. Curtain time will be 8:30 p.m.

It's High Noon On the Campus

By AL FORREST

Television gets nailed for many of the world's ills and this week a San Francisco professor blamed TV for student unrest.

This generation, he told the American Psychological Association, is the first one in history to have grown up in the television age. Our young people's concept of the world has been shaped by crime adventures and westerns.

At the first sign of trouble a student will shout: "Put the wagons in a circle, men, we'll fight them to the last man."

A bad gang running the town?

"It's up to us, men. We're going to clean up this town right now."

The gangleader?

"Arrest him."

And after that?

"Lynch him!"

Somebody protests?

He's shouted down.

"Never mind the law. It's our moral duty!"

"Yes," adds a teen-age girl, "it's our social responsibility. String him up by the flagpoles!"

How was he captured?

A high noon shoot-out. A face to face confrontation.

Man to Man?

Well, yes; that is, about 6,000 (the students) on one side and one (the college president) on the other. But fact to face, just like in the westerns.

A fair fight?

"Well . . . uh, fair enough. We're trying to make our campus the land of the free."

But not the home of the brave?

"Well . . . but our cause is just. We're searching for the qualitative society. Our aim is . . ."

Yes, but your methods?

"Put the wagons in a circle, men. Run the bad guys out of town. We're taking over."

Taking over within the safe borders of the campus, in your own little make-believe world. What about the real world out here?

"Like man, we don't dig that channel out there at all."

ANN-MARGRET
. . . last year's flame

PERRY
. . . a comeback?

The good old days are recalled this weekend with some famous names of yesteryear appearing in TV specials.

Whatever became of Perry Como?

He's out of retirement briefly, for his only TV special of the season at 10 p.m. Sunday on Channel 5.

Then there's last year's heart throb Ann-Margret back on TV once more with her own special at 9 p.m. Sunday on Channel 12.

But for pure nostalgia there's Elvis Presley Tuesday at 9 p.m. (Ch. 6) singing his big hits of 1956, Hound Dog, Heartbreak Hotel and Love Me Tender.

He also gets an early lick at the yule season by singing Blue Christmas.

Watch for a few strange things to happen in the closing weeks of U.S. professional football.

Buffalo Bills (1-11 and one tie) and Philadelphia Eagles (1-11) both have their eyes on O. J. Simpson the sensational college fullback. Whichever team ends with the worst record gets him.

So if a Philadelphia halfback accidentally drops the ball or the Buffalo quarterback tosses the ball up in the air and it's intercepted, well, that's the way the chips fall.

The players on both teams realize that their jobs next season could depend on their performance in the closing games this year.

One good play and they're finished.

Baroque Music For Noontime

Music at Noon, the University of Victoria music division's daytime concert series, will feature the chamber orchestra Tuesday at 12:30 p.m.

Conductor will be John Avison.

The program will consist of three numbers: Henry Purcell's Suite from Gordian Knot United; Concerto Grosso in A by Charles Avison and Symphony No. 49 by Haydn, all representative of the Baroque period.

Admission to the concerts, held in the MacLaurin Building, is free.

MY FAIR LADY AUDITIONS

Hot on the heels of their success with The Desert Song —which was sold out Friday and again tonight — Victoria Operatic Society announces casting auditions for their spring production.

This will be Lerner and Loewe's My Fair Lady.

Auditions for anyone interested in any aspect of this production will be held Monday, Dec. 9 and Wednesday, Dec. 11 at Servitus Hall, Superior Street, at 8 p.m.

Sugar 'n' Spice and Pros To Fly at Capades Show

The colorful and varied 1968 version of Ice Capades proves once again that the show's creative staff are expert in family entertainment. There's something special for each member—from tot to Grandad.

The all-new ice extravaganza, which will be in Victoria's Memorial Arena Dec. 11 through Dec. 14, features new faces and innovations throughout the show.

Headlining an outstanding cast of international skating stars is Wolfgang Schwarz, the 1968 Olympic Gold Medal Champion. Schwarz, who was signed by Ice Capades directly following his win in Grenoble, France, is on his first professional tour.

MAGIC SCREEN

Other newcomers include Roy and Sandi Wagelein, members of the U.S. Olympic team. The Wageleins not only signed a professional contract with Ice Capades after their Olympic appearance, but they decided to team up permanently and were married in July.

Motion picture film is a big attraction in the ice show and is used throughout the productions. The fascinating Magic Screen—a process which has the active skaters literally "diving" through the screen and seen in action, continuing the story, on the huge motion picture screen.

During the Wild, Wild West segment of the American Swings production number, skaters join in a hectic chase after a bag of gold. Good Guys, Bad Guys, Cowboys and Indians are seen both on ice and on the film in a crazy western spoof.

FRESH DESIGNS

As always, costuming and production numbers are lavish and elaborate. Bill Campbell, the show's talented costume designer, has created 500 fresh designs for this year's show. The production staff has assembled fast-paced variety of numbers ranging from the frothy children's number, Sugar 'n' Spice to the swinging America Swings number, which features skaters Roy and Sandi Wagelein taking a cross-country tour of the United States' fun spots—New York, San Francisco, Chicago and the West.

Each town has its own special number and featured stars.

So, make plans for a very entertaining evening with Ice Capades during their five-show engagement at Victoria Memorial Arena. Wednesday and Thursday performances will be held at 8 p.m. and those on Friday and Saturday evening at 8:30 p.m. A special matinee is scheduled for 2 p.m. on Saturday.

Young people, 16 and under, can take advantage of the special half-price admission on Wednesday, Thursday and the matinee at 2 on Saturday.

PROVIDING A BANG for the Ice Capades coming to Victoria next month is funnyman George Bussey.

Boy Soprano Now Director

Timothy Vernon, the Christ Church Cathedral boy soprano who sang the title role in the cathedral's first production of Amahl and the Night Visitors in 1959, has been honored by being asked to direct a performance of American music in Vienna this Christmas.

Mr. Vernon is specializing in conducting at the Vienna State Academy.

This Christmas, the cathedral will present the short, beautiful music drama of Amahl for the fourth time in nine years.

The role is being sung by Geoffrey Finch, great-great grandson of a former dean of the cathedral who later became noted as Bishop Cridge.

Others in the cast are Peggy Walton Packard, Stanley Martin, Bill Broadhead, Bill Dyson (who sang Amahl in the 1965 production and now assumes the role of King Balthasar), and Tony Patriarche.

Amahl and the Night Visitors will be seen Dec. 27, 28, 30 and Jan. 2, 3 and 4.

Victoria's Own Scott-Wood Duo To Highlight Symphony Concert

The last program for 1968 in Victoria Symphony Orchestra's 28th season, will feature two leading Victoria artists — Winifred Scott and Robin Wood. (See picture on Page 11).

These two notable Canadian pianists have long established an impressive reputation as a duo piano team, and on Dec. 8 and 9 they will perform with Laszlo Gati and the orchestra, two works for duo pianos.

One is the Mozart Concerto for two pianos in E-flat. The second is the unusual and exciting Bartok Sonata for Two Pianos and Percussion.

Balance of the program consists of Mozart's Marriage of Figaro Overture and the Peacock Variations by Kodaly.

MET ON JOURNEY

Winnipeg-born Winifred Scott and Victoria-born Robin Wood both won scholarships to study at the Royal Academy of Music in London in 1946.

They first met on the journey to England and formed a musical partnership which developed two years later into marriage.

As students they won all the major awards at the academy and in 1954 were appointed to the professorial staff.

Both as a team and as soloists they made reputations in Europe and appeared frequently on BBC. They also appeared in two special invitation concerts before royalty.

In 1965, they returned to Victoria to take part in the development of the Victoria Conservatory of Music of which Mr. Wood is principal.

Since their return, Miss Scott and Mr. Wood have taken part in many concerts and performed on radio and television.

Film-Maker To Narrate New Russia

Clay Francisco, a young American who is a leading producer of travel motion pictures, will personally narrate his color travel film, The New Russia, when it is presented in two showings at McPherson playhouse, Monday.

Formerly associated with Time Inc., Mr. Francisco's journey to the Soviet Union covered more than 10,000 miles and with his wife, he photographed a comprehensive and revealing report on how Russians live.

Included in the film are scenes at Peterhof, where scores of fountains, cascades and canals are a man-made wonder; inside the Hermitage, foremost among the world's art galleries; a performance of the Kirov Ballet; the Moscow film festival; the U.S.A.-U.S.S.R. track meet, and treasures and pleasures of Leningrad.

Outside the great cities, the film visits a collective farm, ancient places and mosques, the fabled lands of Central Asia, the antique cities of Samarkand and Bukhara.

Showing times are 6 and 8:30 p.m.

Opera Company Fast, Fast Crowd

One of the hazards of being a travelling opera company is the speed with which one has to operate, from arrival in town to arrival on stage, made up, costumed, refreshed and in the right frame of mind to tackle whatever role happens to be current.

Take the Canadian Opera Company, for example, which will perform Rossini's comic opera, The Barber of Seville, twice at the Royal Theatre, Sunday and Monday.

The company arrives at the Empress Hotel at approximately 10:30 a.m. Sunday.

WELL-PACED MUST

The singers can take 10 for a little rest and refreshment but the technical people must hustle over to the theatre for setting up installations.

By the time the singers, musicians and conductor arrive, all other factors will be prepared, for soon — at 3 p.m.—the curtain must rise on a dynamic, well-paced performance.

As far as the company is concerned, however, it's all part of the profession and every aspect of the production has been geared to meet these day-to-day demands of touring.

Victoria Symphony Society is presenting the Canadian Opera Company in this visit and there has been a heavy demand for tickets for "Barber" is one of the most popular and delightful operas in the repertoire.

The second performance, Monday, begins at 8:30 p.m.

Blue Goose In December

A three-act comedy, The Blue Goose, by Peter Blackmore, will be presented in December by the Country Church Players, in the hall of St. John the Baptist, Colwood.

Directing the production is Lillian Chambers.

Dates are Dec. 5 and 6 and curtain time is 8 p.m.

NOW . . . Hey Jude-Bob-John 'Make It Better'

By RUSSELL FREETHY

The most talked about Lennon-McCartney composition, except for "I am a Walrus," is their recent single Hey Jude. Interpretations of the lyrics by various people suggest religion, drugs, sex and many other controversial subjects. However, the following two explanations are prevalent and most likely are closest to the "message" of the song.

Freethy

Jude, short for Judas, probably refers to Bob Dylan. They are seen as comparable in that they both forsook their station — one for silver and one for self-preservation.

The song, then, is a plea, urging Dylan to again involve himself and take his place among the few social critics who can see clearly through the smothering smog that tends to blind us.

The Beatles feel that Dylan has sold out his interests in people and their problems.

Apparently the words of Hey Jude were written solely by Paul McCartney and according to some he was referring to the recent emotional turmoil that John Lennon has been through.

He is telling John to forget the pain he has suffered, and make the best of his relationship with Yoko ("take a sad song and make it better"). And that he shouldn't cut himself off from his old friends, just because he has a new life ("it's a fool that plays it cool").

This second version is probably correct. Because several months before "Jude" was released it was reported that there was a serious disagreement between John Lennon and the rest of the group over a song one of them had written.

There are many pseudo-intellectuals running around saying that one song means this and another that. Their interpretations may or may not be correct, but it is unlikely that each and every song is written for a partieular purpose.

I am not suggesting that the Beatles are putting the world on. On the contrary, I can imagine that sometimes they just go into a studio, take the first things that come into their heads and work something out from there.

Aside from this spontaneity being a lot of fun, it can also lead to the best creations. If critics read personal meanings into every line and-or word of a song, I feel they are putting themselves on.

By doing their own things, The Beatles provide us with original material which we can use for our own enjoyment. This can be by just listening, or by knocking ourselves out trying to discover the hidden meanings to their lyrics.

Every time the Guess Who play the west coast, they sound better than the time before. This Canadian group is headed for international recognition, and quite possibly their latest effort (Of a Dropping Pin) will be the one to do it.

Last Saturday night, the newly formed Oak Bay Youth Council held its first event of the year. It was a dance, and the Guess Who were there,

DYLAN

along with two CKLG "boss jocks," Daryl B and Roy Hennesey.

The turnout was tremendous; over eleven hundred teen-agers were admitted and several hundred had to be turned away because of fire regulations.

Under the guidance of Wayne Cue and Gary Parker, two officers of the Oak Bay police, the O.B.Y.C is an organization in which the kids, themselves, are responsible for their own activities.

On Saturday night this group of teen-agers created a place for other teen-agers to go and socialize in an open atmosphere.

At the same time they were protected from the undesirable elements in Victoria that have long been the plague of open dance operations.

As usual, it has taken Oak Bay (and the rest of Greater Victoria) many, many years to realize how important it is for teen-agers to have such a place to go.

Remember, it was only five years ago that the voters in Oak Bay turned down a complete recreation centre.

McCARTNEY
. . . from a Beattle

Now maybe the elders of Victoria can see that they must get off their comfortable stools and do something to provide for their children and grandchildren before it is too late. Something that will insure the next generation complete recreational facilities. And it is about time!

The more I listed to Spirit's album, the more I realize how complex and involved the arrangements are. There isn't one track on it that can be called insipid or awkward.

They maintain complete control over the transition through the multitude of musical diversities employed in the themes and patterns of each selection.

This album is a perfect blend of the talents of Spirit and Lou Alder their producer.

The group has released another single. It rates the same credits for its exceptional instrumental activity and could be "hit-bound."

Modern Masses Fit For Disneyland

By BERYL PROUDMAN

Twentieth Century Folk Mass; Rev. Geoffrey Beaumont LPR 201. The American Folksong Mass; Rev. Ian Mitchell FEL 7401M. Rejoice! Music for the Worship of God in the Twentieth Century. Students of Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary S 527.

Brave Beaumont, the courageous pioneer who based his C20th Mass on popular music of his day, brought down upon his head distressing accusations of sacrilege and blasphemy for his effort, but without his pilot venture, the possibility of setting sacred services to contemporary music might never have been opened up.

For accompaniment to his mass Geoffrey Beaumont used the sound of a popular theatre organ. He brought unity to the setting by allowing beguine rhythms to dominate and by referring back several times to his version of Praise the Lord.

•

Syncopation set in and by using triplets and running through conventional line-endings, he made an honest attempt to set the lancient words to contemporary music.

The Mass fails to have lasting value because it is written in a popular style which was already outdated before its publication in 1955.

Those over 30 will recognize the songs of their youth while younger listeners think it sounds like the sound track of an old movie.

To add to its vintage style, the cantor's part is sung in a marcel-waved voice and the echoing chorus came straight out of the sunset closing fade-out of an early Walt Disney production.

The lining device by which the cantor sings each section and is echoed by the chorus is of questionable value.

•

Not only does it suggest that the congregation is too stupid to learn the various sections and therefore doubles the length of time taken to sing them, it also brings with it undignified associations with the bouncing ball technique used in music halls and large evangelical meetings.

The American Folksong Mass is even more limited but for an entirely different reason. The Rev. Ian Mitchell belongs to the young generation of priests which believes in mingling with the people wherever possible. He has appeared in nightclubs and is a popular entertainer with a bent to the sacred in his songs.

He made the mistake of thinking that his sincere belief and a glancing acquaintance with music would enable him to compose a valid Mass for the emancipated people of the C20th to sing.

The songs are not well-set. Little effort is made to change the music style to fit the words. There is rhythm galore but the pathetically shapeless tunes depend on the personality of the singer to get them across.

Ian Mitchell sings with manly fervour and his wife's charming lyrical voice would sell songs if anything could. Despite the varied and attractive guitar settings, most of the songs sound like the improvisations of a gifted child.

Only in the most backwoods area where Western music was the only kind ever heard, could this setting be said to reflect the popular contemporary music of the people.

Of the three settings, Rejoice is the most successful because it has a timeless neutrality and simplicity. The tunes are easily learned, even by children. Unlike Beaumont's stylized version, Rejoice is written in plain unadorned unison which depends on strong rhythms and good tunes for its effectiveness.

The music is varied to suit the words more skillfully than in the other two. In Beaumont's Credo, a lively organ flourish heralds the resurrection but the following section does not match the triumphant mood.

A similar change of mood incorporated into the Credo in Rejoice is integral and the excitement continues beyond a flourish.

With characteristic restraint, Our Father in Rejoice captures the casual loping style of the cowboy and this tasteful suggestion is likely to outlast the obviously Western thumpings of Mitchell's Lamb of God which clumps about in boots and tambourine-emphasized spurs.

•

The strong simplicity of the music of Rejoice is aptly recorded by a robust choir of Seminarians. Each recording offers a bonus of humns which are similar in style to the service setting.

Whenever churchmen feel that a new music will revitalize their services, conflict arises between the old familiar form and the comparatively strange new mode. While change for the better is both necessary and beneficial, change for its own sake may prove a backward step.

Unfortunately, so few serious musicians have given thought to modern service settings that the choice is limited. It would be appalling to sacrifice Palestrina or Stanford for anything as ephemeral as Beaumont or as banal as Mitchell.

It is rumored that Benjamin Britten is planning to compose a C20th setting soon, and perhaps Donald Swann, the most successful composer in this field will recognize the need and write an alternate to Rejoice, a service setting worth changing to.

Diamond In the Groove

Sidney Thespians Plan Pantomime

The Christmas season at Sidney is to be highlighted by an entertainment in the best English Tradition—a pantomime.

Dick Whittington is the choice of the Peninsula Players for this occasion.

Director is Neil Horth and the show will be staged in Sanscha Hall on the evenings of Dec. 19, 20 and 21 with a matinee on the Saturday.

Mrs. Vivian Cowan is the producer of this true community effort which involved 19 players, 20 dancers, 10 singers and at least as many more backstage workers.

Choreography is by Rae Burns and the dancers are members of the Rae Burns School of Dancing.

City Man Plays In Prize Quartet

A young musician from Victoria, Michael Adamson, played second violin with the resident string quartet at the University of Keele in Staffordshire, Eng., at their inaugural concert Nov. 13.

Mr. Adamson, 24, is the son of Mr. Mrs. R. M. Adamson, Yale Street.

Other members of the quartet are all English musicians. They first worked together in 1966 and in that year won the Gerard Haller Memorial Prize.

Appointment of the quartet in residence for two years was made because of a grant from Leverhulme Trust.

Top Talent At 'Y' Service

Well-known Victoria contralto Eleanor Duff, the Amity Singers directed by Rodney Webster, Romanian violinist Nastase Perlea, and young all-round Victoria musician Colin Bonneau, are the artists who will combine talents in a Christmas concert sponsored by the YM-YWCA.

This is a Sunday afternoon concert, taking place at 2:30 at Metropolitan Church, Dec. 15.

All proceeds from the collection will go to World Service, helping others to help themselves in countries around the world.

Included in the program will be carols for all and Christmas scripture passages which will be read by Bishop Remi De Roo, Bishop of Victoria, and Dean Brian Whitlow of Christ Church Cathedral.

U.S. MARKET

New York Jumped As Paris Fiddled

By PHILIP GREER
The Washington Post

NEW YORK — The easing in the latest international monetary crisis and the stock market's own technical strength sent stock prices broadly higher this week.

The actions taken by the French government, while they may not have solved the problems of the franc, at least put off the moment of truth and prompted speculators to unload some of their holdings. The franc, the pound and the dollar fared somewhat better in money markets and Wall Street was only to happy to respond.

That response culminated in a classical Dow theory bull signal when the Dow Jones industrials pushed through to a new high for the year — and the highest they have reached in almost three years. The average's gain for the week — 18.02 points to a close at 985.08 — left it just 10.07 points short of its all-time high-water mark set in February, 1966.

At the same time, the Dow rail average broke out of its trading range with a 6.82-point rise to 279.28.

Standard and Poor's 500-stock composite and the New York Stock Exchange index, both in all-time high ground for some time, climbed even higher. The S and P composite was ahead 2.07 points to 108.37 and the NYSE index added 1.18 point to 61.27.

Trading volume slipped for the week to 61.8 million shares from the 63.28 million turned over a week earlier.

In the over-all box score, there were 1,120 advances and 467 declines, compared with 927 up and 651 down a week earlier. The number of new 1968 highs rose to 383 from 320 and there were eight new lows, down from 21.

Merger situations and attempted takeovers were sprouting all over the place, but some of the investment-grade stocks also put on a good show. The Dow industrials' initial breakthrough its old high for the year brought in some profit-taking that clipped the blue chip group back on Wednesday, but by Friday, the bellwethers were leading the way up again.

Profit Shown By Crestbrook

VANCOUVER (CP) — Crestbrook Forest Industries Ltd. Friday reported a $881,785 before taxes for the nine-month period ended Sept. 30, equal to 65 cents a share.

The unaudited statement did not include comparative figures for the same period last year.

Control of he company went to Honshu Paper Manufacturing Co. and Mitsubishi Shoji Kaisha Ltd. of Japan early last year. Construction of a 350-ton-a-day pulp mill at Skookumchuk in the British Columbia interior was started in March, 1967.

Pulp production is scheduled for January with financing and markets provided by the Japanese.

Lumber, plywood and other sales during the nine-month period totalled $8,256,203, the company said.

SUDS MAKERS WANT FROTH

By JOHN LeBLANC

LONDON (CP) — A couple of suds makers are whipping up billions of dollars worth of froth in the British financial and drinking community.

It may mean that Canadian E. P. Taylor will have to look to his title of—as he has been described here—"Master Brewer to the United Kingdom."

The threat comes from a proposal by soap-making Unilever to take over beer-making Allied Breweries, which runs second to the Taylor-inspired Bass Charrington group in the race for quenching British thirsts.

The Unilever-Allied Breweries marriage would add up to about $2.6 billion, making it the biggest ever in this merger-happy land. It is just in the preliminary stages.

News of talks between heads of the companies came out Friday mainly because a newly-toughened British code of rules on financial takeovers has caused executives to step warily. Under-the-table deals are barred.

Possible Defect In Ford Brakes

DETROIT (UPI) — Ford Motor Co. has notified owners of 81,200 Ford and Mercury cars there may be a possible brake defect in their cars and advised them to return them to their dealer for inspection.

Ford has announced there was a possible mispositioning of the front brake hose which could rupture, leading to a loss of front braking power in the 1969 model cars.

Braking effiency would be reduced substantially, but not completely, Ford said, because the dual brake system would keep the rear brakes operative.

'Bootleg Grain' Coming Into B.C.

FORT ST. JOHN (CP) — Lower priced "bootleg grain" coming into British Columbia from the Prairies is undercutting Peace River grain, according to an official of the Farmers Union of British Columbia.

Elevator operators in the Peace Area have had orders from their head offices to cease purchase of Peace River-grown grains, Don Marshall, South Peace FUBC president, said Friday.

The grain is being sold at prices lower than a pre-establevel set by B.C. grain elevator agents, he said.

WEEK ON MARKET

Prices Hit Records

By GERALD CLARKSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A surging bull market lifted Canadian share prices to record levels this week.

Blue chips and seasoned issues picked up last Friday after a one-week decline, and broke through to new high ground on Wednesday morning.

Over the last five days, the Toronto industrial index gained 5.80 to 186.84, while the composite index on the Montreal and Canadian exchanges was up 4.91 to 183.15.

The leading groups were real estate issues, western oils, beverages, steels, banks and forest industries. Golds and base metals were fractionally off.

Among the biggest rises, Great West Life jumped 5¾ to 75, Tonecraft 5 to 27, Kaps Transport 4 to 17½, Jefferson Lake 3⅞ to 35½ and CPR 3½ to 74⅞.

Although the indexes were boosted largely by strength in the senior industrial list, there was a noticeable recovery among smaller speculative stocks.

The Toronto index of seven real estate issues rose more than nine per cent, and J. H. Crang and Co's "go-go stock" index of 78 junior industrials was up about three per cent.

BELOW RECORDS

However, both these averages still are well below their records almost three weeks ago. Between them, they provide the main barometer of this year's wave of speculation in junior stocks.

The latest leap forward by the market as a whole is a continuation of the trend which started at the end of March in both Canada and the United States when President Johnson announced plans to limit the war in Vietnam and not to run for re-election.

However, the Canadian market has been the stronger of the two, and far less sensitive to outside news.

The Toronto industrial index has advanced almost 30 per cent since its lowest point in March, while the New York Dow Jones index of 30 industrials has gained about 20 per cent in the same period.

The currency crisis in Europe was expected to dent North American stock markets.

INVESTORS CONCERNED

Now, however, analysts are taking a different view of the possible effects of a monetary crisis on the stock market. The say investors will be increasingly anxious to put their money into common stocks if any of the major currencies are likely to be devalued.

On index at Toronto, golds fell .42 to 219.80 and base metals .17 to 112.71. Western oils rose 5.01 to 236.89. Volume was 21,084,000 shares compared with 20,285,000 last week. Gains outnumbered losses 491 to 288.

On the Montreal and Canadian exchanges, combined volume was 7,631,000 shares compared with 7,542,000 last week. Gains outnumbered losses 225 to 133.

Investment Pace Hot

By G. S. KENT
Business Editor

Investment growth in Victoria has been rated among the highest in Canada by some local financial managers, a phenomenon that is difficult to explain and impossible to prove.

Acceptable proof most likely would be a comparison of sales and trading volumes between localities, and such information is closely confidential. Competitors just don't extend that sort of gratuitous gesture to one another.

But a number of indicators help to back up the statement that stock trading and investment activity here is a fertile field for brokers and securities salesmen.

For example, Greater Victoria private bank debits — a sign of capital flow in the community — are at a healthy and expanding level.

This is not conclusive in relation to investment spending, but according to one view it is a contributing factor; that is, where there is lots of banking activity in the community, there is likely to be investment action.

Another point is the relatively large number of retired persons with means who settle here, bringing their investment portfolios with them from the more matropolitan parts of North America where many of them have been active as entrepreneurs, managers, executives.

In other words, they are already knowledgable when it comes to the more sophisticated ways of handling money, and as one investment manager said this week, they are quick to seek out a firm of investment counsellors and dealers to suit their individual needs.

•

A third point is the growth of investment houses in the city in the last dozen years. There are today 18 local members of the Investment Dealers' Association of Canada, plus a handful of smaller investment offices which do not belong to the IDA.

In 1960 there were nine major dealers, including IDA members, and about five smaller brokerages and securities dealers — unchanged from 1955.

There is a higher level of education in Canada today than there was a decade ago, national prosperity is riding high and people have more disposable income as well as more savings. The net result is that more people are potential holders of bonds and equities.

One deal said business in his office has grown steadily in the last 19 months and during November he expected the books would show a new record.

"The level of business has never been higher and the quality has been good; the vast majority is in the blue chip area," he said.

He attributed this partly to better investor services and research facilities offered today's clients by the national dealers with their centralized market study departments and quick dissemination of information to offices across the country.

With this and the ability to set aside some income for investment, clients are becoming more aggressive, he felt.

There also are more young investors, both men and women, in their early 30s to late 40s, who play an active role in today's trading. These are likely to be new $10,000-a-year men who see the markets as a source of income, capital gains and insurance against erosion of spending power through inflation.

The newest of the national firms to settle in Victoria is Gairdner and Co. Ltd., whose manager J. L. Northey opened offices in the Weiler building two weeks ago. Formal opening will be within a few days.

Red Dear-born and a practising pharmacist until he entered the investment business in 1964, Mr. Northey comes from Gairdner's Calgary office, where he specialized in oils and mines. Prior to that he was the owner of five Alberta drug stores.

Assistant manager of the investment branch is Bruce McKendrick, a native of Vancouver and formerly associated with Midland-Osler Securities, Doherty Roadhouse and McCuaig, and Gairdner's Calgary office.

Their Victoria branch is an example of improved service to investors. It is the first here to employ the Trans-Lux Jet quotation board, an electronic modification of the conventional travelling tape, but using ultraviolet light to illuminate glowing numerals rather than a printed quote on ticker tape.

The next firm to obtain the easily read Jet will be Midland-Osler, which will move into new, expanded premises on the ground floor of the Bank of B.C. building, Fort Street, next summer, again demonstrating growth of the securities business here.

Manager Ross Nursey said his office will have its quote board mounted so it may be read from both sides, serving a public area and the office's sales staff. Total area in the new location will be about 30 per cent greater.

•

A new plant for ATCO Industries Ltd. is being negotiated in a province not now represented by the company, president Ronald Southern said in Montreal this week.

Earlier indication was that this would be B.C., but Mr. Southern did not elaborate. He told investment analysts ATCO wants a Gulf of Mexico port, probably Houston area, to handle exports.

The industry, making factory-built, portable structures for housing, military needs, construction and industrial use, expects increased profits this year and before next fall will announce acquisitions as a result of a decentralization policy.

U.K. Sales Slow

TORONTO (CP) — In the first nine months of 1968, there has been almost no change in the amount of Canadian dollars flowing into Britain, said Stanley Randall, Ontario minister of trade and development.

He told the British Canadian Trade Association that British exports to Canada so far this year advanced only 14.6 per cent over the same period last year, or about the cost of devaluation of the British pound.

"But board of trade officials are confident that the full benefits of devaluation are just beginning to become apparent and they expect the rate of growth in exports to accelerate."

He said Britain is stepping up its drive for Canadian sales on all fronts by planning more trade missions and emphasizing better market research, improved deliveries and after-sales servicing "which frequently have not measured up to Canadian standards."

The minister said Britain is learning that Canada is not an easy market: "It is highly sophisticated and to reach it meaningfully you also have to compete with the United States and the Japanese."

British firms accounted for only 11 per cent of the $510 million imported by Canada last year. The United States took 80 per cent of the orders.

Mr. Randall praised British exporters who pay attention to Canadian standards by working with the Canadian Standards Association in England.

He said the shipping industry, after a cautious approach to container traffic across the Atlantic, has advanced with recent announcements that United Kingdom-based lines are planning container services to and from Britain and the Continent. Recently a container dock was opened in Montreal.

On the other side of the coin, he said, Canadian exporters find their competitive position weakened in the world market because of rising costs of production and transportation and this year's labor unrest which has cut at Canada's reputation as a dependable source of supply.

He also blamed mounting protectionist sentiment in some "key markets" which he did not identify.

However, for Canada and Ontario "the potential for economic growth has seldom been brighter than today."

Tax Law Forces Liquidation

By BORIS MISKEW

MONTREAL (CP) — Two Montreal engineers were forced to merge their multi-million-dollar firm with an American company to give their estate a more liquid form as they approach retirement age.

C. B. Fisher, president of Radio Engineering Products Ltd., said his company has merged with Nytronics Inc. of Alpha, N.J., to provide continuity and to reduce the big problem of paying off stiff succession duties in the event of death.

Mr. Fisher, 60, and his twin brother S. T. Fisher, the firm's vice-president, founded the company 22 years ago with $30,000 and have seen it blossom into a $100 million enterprise — with the most rapid growth taking place in the last three years.

The president said he and his brother agreed to merge with Nytronics because their children were not interested in carrying on with the family business which is engaged in the manufacture of electronic communications equipment.

The Edmonton-born brothers, who attended the University of Alberta before moving east where they recieved engineering degrees from the University of Toronto, spent 15 years with Northern Electric Co. before branching out on their own.

Radio Engineering is best known for the multiplexer — a device which permits transmission of several telephone conversations on a single radio channel — that the Fisher brothers developed. It also produces other communications devices, most of which are sold to the United States military forces.

The company has grown steadily and this year's sales are expected to total $17 million compared with $5 million in 1967. It employs about 150 persons at its headquarters in Montreal and another 1,350 at the manufacturing plant at Campellton, N.B.

Last February Radio Engineering became a public company with the issuance of 500,000 of its 2 million shares, all held by the two brothers. The shares went on the market at $7.50 and now are traded at about $46.

Under the merger deal, Nytronics is acquiring 1.4 million shares of Radio Engineering still held by Mr. Fisher and his brother, representing 70 per cent of the outstanding Radio Engineering stock.

The New Jersey firm is making an initial payment of $5 million in cash. The agreement also involves approximately 608,000 shares of Nytronics stock, with additional payments of about 1.2 million shares of Nytronics stock over the next three years.

Nytronics has announced its intention to make an offer for all the publicly-held stock of Radio Engineering, amounting to 600,000 shares, on the basis of 1.41 shares of Nytronics for each share of Radio Engineering.

The American company expects sales of $100 million this year, and its stock has risen steadily to about $35 a share.

TAXES RUIN ESTATE

The deal leaves the Fisher brothers the largest single shareholders in Nytronics. Meanwhile, they will continue in their present capacities for the next three years by which time they hope to have new executive officers trained to take charge of Radio Engineering.

"We want to have an active retirement," said Mr. Fisher, adding that the problem of inheritance taxes was a major factor in their decision to merge with Nytronics.

In the event of death of one of the brothers, he said, the selling of the shares in the settlement of the estate "would bring the market price of the company's shares down, devaluating the stock of the surviving brother and that of the rest of the shareholders."

The government would probably impose the taxes on the basis of the full market value of the shares at the time of the brother's death, not on their depressed value after the disposal.

"It could wreck the estate," Mr. Fisher said. "Every family-owned company faces this problem when the owners get up in their 60s. It's a good example of how estate tax can ruin a family-owned company."

Minerals Set Record

A new high for value of copper produced in B.C. has helped set a record for projected 1968 mineral output.

Figures based on monthly returns of producers were compiled by the department of mines and petroleum resources, and show that the $402-million mark will be reached to set a new gross for the seventh consecutive year.

The year's output is estimated to be worth $15.2 million or 4 per cent more than 1967 mineral production.

Metals contributed 60 per cent of the gross from $235.9 million to $252.1 million, or about 7 per cent improvement. Copper is the most important of the metals with $89 million estimated value due mostly to price improvement. Actual production will be down by about 4 per cent.

The high price of silver — approximately $2.31 an ounce this year — also helped put gross silver value into a record category at $16 million, up $5.7 million.

Molybdenum output was up because of B.C. Molybdenum's mine coming into production at Alice Arm for the full year.

Value of industrial minerals went down about 15 per cent to $24.9 million; structural materials declined 9 per cent to $43.1 million, and fuels rose about 10 per cent to $81.9 million. Crude oil is valued at $50.2 million, second only to copper.

Japanese Surplus

TOKYO (AP) — Japan had a $219 million balance-of-payments surplus in October, the biggest monthly surplus since April, 1965, when the country adopted the International Monetary Fund's formula for calculating external accounts. It compares with a $77.9 million deficit in October, 1967, the finance ministry reported Friday.

FUND SWELLS 140%

WINNIPEG (CP) — Assets managed by Investors International Mutual Fund Ltd. increased by 140 per cent to total $94.19 million for the fiscal year ended Sept. 30, company President C. E. Atchison said in his annual report Friday.

"This growth was due partly to an upward trend in equity prices on stock markets and partly to a very rapid increase in the number of fund shareholders," he said.

The number of shareholders of the Winnipeg-based company increased 127 per cent to total 21,165.

B.C. Sugar Sours

Net earnings for British Columbia Sugar Refinery Ltd. fell to $3.26 million for the year ended Sept. 30 compored with $3.48 million the year before the company reports.

Value is equivalent to $3.83 a common share, down from $3.98 in 1967.

A company spokesman attributed the drop in earnings to "very low sugar prices in the last six months of the fiscal year, the disappointing sugar beet crops in 1967-68, and to the increase in income taxes."

Giants Talk

Two giant British companies announced Friday they are holding talks on a possible merger that would give them combined assets of $2.4 billion.

Unilever, a soap, fats and detergents group, and Allied Breweries, Britain's largest drinks company said their talks, which opened Monday, "are proceeding with a view toward a merger."

Bills Down

PORTLAND (AP) — Aaron M. Frank, 77, generally regarded as the most powerful single figure in Oregon's business life for more than three decades, died early today.

Frank had been principal figure in directing Meir and Frank Co., Oregon's largest department store firm, from 1930 until his retirement in 1964.

Finance Firm Folds

MONTREAL (CP)—Credit St. Laurent Inc., a Montreal finance company which was a subsidiary of the bankrupt Corporation Fonciere de Montreal, has gone into voluntary liquidation.

Francois Boisvert, the firm's president, said Friday that "as a former subsidiary of Corporation Fonciere de Montreal, we have lost the confidence of practically everybody from our bankers to the trustees."

Block Bros. Boosts Profit

VANCOUVER (CP) — Net profit of Block Bros. Industries Ltd. increased more than $500,000 in the nine months ended Oct. 31, the company reported Friday.

Earnings were $1,219,893 this year compared with $702,359 in the same period of 1967. Share earnings were .67 this year on 1.6 million shares compared with .55 in 1967 on 1.3 million shares.

Total income in the latest period was $7,063,083 against $4,224,814 last year. Of the $7 million figure, $4.2 million was derived from commissions, fees and property management income.

Retained earnings at Oct. 31 were $3,245,634 compared with $1,997,603 last year.

Anticipated sales for the year ended Jan. 31, 1969, now are estimated at $105 million, an increase of 43 per cent over the previous year.

First, Cultivate Observation

By JACK BEASTALL

Success in gardening does not depend solely on a wide knowledge of plants and procedures. We have instances of gardeners with extensive knowledge whose efforts can hardly be described as successful.

Jack

Knowledge can be theoretical but not necessarily practical, and in no science is there a wider gap between theory and practice than in horticulture and agriculture.

The greatest attribute of a successful gardener is ability to observe small details.

Most of us consider ourselves reasonably observant until we put our powers of observation to a test. It is then we realize the difference between seeing and observing.

For example, we can recognize an apple tree from a pear tree, but given a single leaf or blossom of each our identification is likely to be incorrect nine times out of ten.

★ ★ ★

We can name a plant from its general characteristics when we see it growing in a garden, but we have never observed the details of a leaf or a flower sufficiently to recognize a small portion detached from the plant.

This lack of observation of details applies throughout our daily living. It is the reason we pick up the wrong product at the supermarket, or try to unlock the door of a car similar to our own in a parking lot.

For a test of your ability to observe, try making a drawing of your favorite plant, something you have grown for years.

You will discover the vast amount of detail you have never noticed, shape of leaf, toothed or plain edges, veining, position of leaves and flowers on a stem, and so forth.

More to the point for the home gardener is ability to observe the slightest change in appearance of a plant, for any change in appearance indicates improvement or slow deterioration.

Most of our plant losses are due to failing to observe the early stages of change in appearance.

Observation is not limited to one human sense, that of seeing with the eyes. The successful home gardener observes also with sense of touch and sense of smell.

Texture of foliage when felt with the fingers clearly conveys condition of the plant's state of health, while smell of compost or soil is a reliable guide to contents and general quality.

Most questions related to gardening problems can be answered from observation.

When you call a garden consultant, or adviser, to diagnose your gardening problems, have you ever paused to think about his method of determining cause from effect.

★ ★ ★

When he arrives at your garden he has, in all probability no idea of what you are growing, how you are growing it, nor the condition of the soil within the boundaries of your lot, yet he may pinpoint the trouble in ten minutes or less.

How? By observation of details — observation through seeing, feeling, and smelling.

There is no doubt in my mind that the first attribute of successful gardening is the ability to observe, and that is something in which we each must train ourselves.

Observation answers such questions as: How do I know when cuttings have rooted? How often should I water, and how much? When should I feed and what fertilizer to use? What is eating the leaves of my rhododendron?

Observation not only prevents serious trouble by forearming the gardener, it also makes gardening a more interesting hobby by increasing the gardener's knowledge of the different plants he grows.

When we start recording mentally the tiny differences in a group of plants grown from seed, or the minute variations in blossoms from different varieties of applies or different species or ornamental plants within a given genus, gardening becomes more than fun, it becomes a fascinating pastime.

When we wander happily through wild land and consciously record the kind of plants that grow together in a community and the kinds that never appear in some communities of plants, we increase our ability to succeed with cultivated plants.

When we observe that wild climbing plants always root beneath some protective vegetation, then scramble high for light and air, we have an answer to our failures with wall climbers planted without companion plants to provide root protection.

Observation of details by seeing, feeling, and smelling, is not only the key to successful gardening, it is also the key to happy relaxation when gardening and to an absorbing and fascinating hobby that had previously been drudgery and frustration.

Spend every moment you can spare observing details of your plants, feeling texture, smelling their aroma (for aroma changes as plants deteriorate), and mentally recording your observations for future reference.

Such moments could well prove the most profitable of any time spent in the garden.

Tragedy Prompts Bhutan Issue

By ROBERT G. OLIPHANT

On Dec. 7, the small princely state of Bhutan will release two completely different issues: one of which is the result of a tragic occurrence.

During the week of Oct. 5, a sudden destructive flood took place in Bhutan and North Bengal, India, as a result of a cyclonic storm followed by heavy rain. Many deaths occurred, important bridges and roads were washed away, drinking water was contaminated, power systems were disrupted, livestock were killed, and poisonous snakes overran large areas of the flooded regions.

To aid the victims of this catastrophe, the government of Bhutan overprinted their three Olympic stamps with: Flood Relief, and added surcharges. The new values are: 5ch and 5ch, 80ch and 25ch, and 2nu and 50ch; the total value being 3.65nu.

On Dec. 7, Bhutan will also release seven stamps featuring five rare species of birds indigenous to Bhutan. The birds featured and the respective values are: Crimson-winged laughing thrush, 2ch; ward's trogon, 3ch; grey peacock-pheasant, 4ch; rufou-necked hornbill, 5ch; myzornis, 15ch; ward's trogon, 30ch; and grey peacock-pheasant, 50ch.

The birds were drawn by Dr. Salim Ali of the Bombay Natural History Society. The face value of these stamps is equivalent to about 15c.

●

Bhutan is situated in the eastern Himalayas, and it is bordered by India, Tibet and Sikkim. The vast majority of Bhutan's inhabitants are Mongolians following the Tibetan form of Buddhism. Animals such as bears, elephants, leopards, deer, wild hogs and the rhinoceros can be found roaming Bhutan.

Among others, rice, wheat, barley, potatoes, turnips, corn and mustard can be grown in the few fertile portions of this state. Lofty mountains and beautiful valleys cover most of Bhutan. The area is about 18,000 square miles, and the population is around 680,000.

Punakha, a strong fortress, is the winter capital, and Tashi Chho Dzong is the summer capital. Bhutan's first postage stamps were issued in April, 1962, but not until Oct. 10, 1962 did they become valid for international use.

On Nov. 11, Austria released three stamps to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the founding of the Austrian Republic. Two of the values were designed by Dr. Franz Jonas, the president of Austria. A portrait of Dr. Karl Renner, the first president of Austria, is featured on one of the stamps. All three denominations depict the coat of arms of the nine federal states which comprise Austria.

●

On Nov. 14, Umm Al Qiwain released nine stamps (perf. and imperf.), and a souvenir sheet (perf. and imperf.) to honor the gold medal winners of the Mexican Olympics. These stamps are overprints of the pictorials previously issued for the Olympics. The overprints bear the names of the winners along with the event in which they won the gold medal.

The events and the gold medal winners honored are: javelin throw—Janis Lusis (U.S.S.R.); 800 meter run—Ralph Doubell (Australia); basketball—U.S. team; shot-put—Randy Matson (U.S.); 400 meter hurdles—David Hemery (Great Britain); 10,000 meter run—Naftali Temu (Kenya); decathlon—Bill Toomey (U.S.) 110 meter high hurdles—Willie Davenport (U.S.) The respective values are 10d, 25d, 50d, 1r, 2r, 2.50r, 3r, 4r and 5r. The souvenir sheet contains the 4r and 5r values.

On Nov. 11, Guyana released 6c, 25c, 30c and 40c stamps to celebrate Christmas. Two designs are common. Each stamp bears the message: "Guyana Sends Christmas Greetings to the World." They were printed in the Delacryl process in sheets of 50 by Thomas De La Rue.

Sweden issued Nov. 25 a booklet of ten 30-ore stamps featuring birds and animals. These engraved stamps were printed at the post office stamp printing works on fluorescent paper in various colors.

Quizzing the Gardener

By JACK BEASTALL

Q. Can orchids be successfully grown in an average home by an amateur? — T. A., Victoria.

A. Yes, if certain basic growing requirements are met. Suggest, first reading a book or two from public libraries on amateur orchid growing; then contact one of local growers.

Q. Is callistemon hardy outdoors here, or should I continue to grow it in my greenhouse? — A. J. P., Saanich.

A. Callistemon (known as the shrub Bottle-brush) is hardy outdoors here if given a sunny, warm situation in rather poor but well drained soil, and shelter from north-east wind in winter. We see these in bloom during summer.

Wait until spring before putting your shrub into garden, since it will be rather soft with indoor growing. Late May or early June will be soon enough.

Callistemons are native to Australia, and do best in soil which is rather sandy, with only moderate amounts of humus.

●

WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL

Garden furniture, stakes and other accessories should be cleaned for putting into storage to dry. Painting can be done later.

One hose or soaker should be left readily available for watering shrubs near foundations or in recessed alcoves where rain never reaches root areas.

Continue planting of fruit and ornamental trees, also shrubs. A mounded heap of soil already mixed with sand will be less wet than level soil, and should be used in close contact with roots at planting time.

Check stakes and ties of previously planted trees, also their name labels.

Loosen wires of tags to prevent strangling; better still, record accurately name and source of supply, also date of planting, in garden notebook.

If lily bulbs are available locally, purchase needed supplies at once in order to prevent drying out of scales.

Should soil be too wet for planting, put bulbs singly into pots, or well spaced in flats, cover with damp sand and peatmoss and keep in cold place free of frost until garden planting is possible.

Hunch Pays Off as Cats Make Doug's Plan Work

By ERNIE FEDORUK

VERNON—Victoria coach Doug Anderson had a hunch and a plan early Friday.

The hunch paid off, his Cougars made the plan work and the Cats turned their visit to Vernon into a 5-4 B.C. Junior Hockey League triumph over the Essos.

It was a well-deserved victory, fashioned, in part, by goaltender Ed Forslund and a solid team effort. Forslund figured in Anderson's hunch, and the team followed Anderson's orders to get the Cougars off and running on their second road trip to the Okanagan.

Cougars move on to Penticton to face the league-leading Broncos tonight and then wrap up the swing against Kamloops Rockets on Sunday.

Forslund and Ron Grahame have been alternating in Victoria's goal all season. It was Forlsund's "night to work" but Grahame's record threw the Victoria coach into a bit of a quandry. Grahame has a goals-against record of 3.2 and has been a winner in six of his seven starts. Forflund had a 5.0 record heading into Friday's game.

Anderson seriously considered breaking the rotation pattern but decided, on the way to Vernon, to stick with the order. Besides, Anderson said, "It's Forslund's home town and I have a hunch he'd like to play."

Forslund also decided he would like to play. On the strength of two third-period saves, he made the hunch pay off at the 11-minute mark.

Vernon's Larry Quechek and Bill Tarnow rode in on the Victoria goal on a 2-on-1 break. Quechek, the league's No. 2 point man, pulled the lone Victoria defender aside and put a neat pass into Tarnow's stick. Tarnow had a clear run at Forslund, but the Cougar goalie came up with a sparkling save.

The score was 4-3 for Victoria at that stage. Cougars promptly turned around, wheeled into Vernon's zone, and hard-working Len Barrie scored to make it 5-3. Because of Forslund, the goal turned out to be a winner.

Cougars Were Strong on Defence

Wayne Dye reduced the margin to 5-4 in the 16th minute and Cougars still weren't out of the woods. With a minute to play, Tarnow again had a clear run at Forslund. Again, Forslund sprawled to make a sparkling save and preserve the margin.

Despite leg-weariness coming off a 12-hour bus trip and, for some, a brush with a cold bug, Cougars played a strong defensive game and exactly as Anderson ordered.

"I wanted them to skate and check in the first period. If we could hold Vernon then, I figured we could win it in the last two periods — after the players get their skating legs back," said Anderson.

That's how it went. It was 0-0 after the first frame, and 3-3 after two. Defencemen Laurie Moore and Barrie each scored twice while rookie Scott Munroe added the other. Centre Grant Evans packed off three assists.

TOTAL REACHES 39

Evans' three assists are significant. It raised his point total to 39 points in 15 games. Victoria's top point-getter last year — Barry Clarke — mustered only 38 points while playing the entire 40-game schedule.

Dye scored twice for Vernon while Quechuck and Bob Blanchette collected the others. Forslund finished with a total of 39 saves while Vernon's Al Alexander blocked 30 shots.

Alexander was especially strong in the first two periods, thwarting Adrian Blais (twice), Doug Gibson and Evans.

The game was marked by rough play in the first two periods. John Van Horlick and Barrie drew fighting majors along with Bob Mayer and Bob Craig of Vernon. Vernon also was assessed a major when Quechuck was caught for butt-ending. Munroe also took a misconduct for "unnecessary remarks".

The games 59 minutes in penalties all came in the first two periods. There were none called in the final, and it produced a sparkling period of hockey for the benefit of 975 fans — Vernon's largest crowd of the season.

The victory — Victoria's first-ever in Vernon — balanced Cougar's road record at two wins, two ties and two losses for the season.

Gump's Value To Canadiens Was Obvious

By The Canadian Press

Maybe Montreal Canadiens should hire a hypnotist to help goaltender Gump Worsley overcome his fear of flying.

Several major league baseball players have learned to live with frequent air travel after undergoing hypnotism. And the Canadiens must be desperate enough now to try any method of treatment.

Montreal's need for Worsley became obvious when the Canadiens lost 5-4 to Oakland Seals in the only NHL action Friday night.

The Canadiens' first-string goaltender Rogatien Vachon suffered an eye injury and substitute Tony Esposito allowed two goals in only six shots on the net.

Activity resumes tonight with Minnesota North Stars visiting Toronto Maple Leafs, New York Rangers playing the Bruins at Boston, Philadelphia Flyers meeting the Blues at St. Louis and Los Angeles Kings welcoming Pittsburgh Penguins.

Sunday, Montreal meets the Black Hawks at Chicago, Toronto visits New York, Minnesota is at Boston, Philadelphia plays the Red Wings at Detroit and Pittsburgh journeys to Oakland.

A crowd of 8,105 at Oakland saw the Seals upset the Canadiens to move into a tie for second place with Los Angeles in the Western Division. The Canadiens remained on top in the Eastern Division, two points ahead of runner-up Boston.

Ted Hampson, Oakland's top scorer, and Billy Hicke paced the Seals with two goals each. Mike Laughton, recently recalled from the minors, scored the other Oakland goal.

Jean Beliveau scored two goals and assisted on two others for Montreal to move into second place in the scoring race with 32 points—six back of leader Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks.

REFUSED TO FLY

The Canadiens outshot the Seals 28-20, but the inadequate Montreal goaltending made the difference.

Worsley left the Canadiens at Chicago Tuesday, refusing to fly to California. His future in hockey is expected to be decided next week after the chubby 39-year-old goaltender has talked to team officials and doctors.

Esposito was called up from Houston of the Central Hockey League to replace Worsley. He was not expected to play, but Vachon's injury changed that. There was no immediate word how long Vachon, hit by a shot from George Swarbrick, would be out of action.

Canuck Cricket Body Honors Fred Maurice

Veteran Victoria sportsman Fred Maurice was honored by the Canadian Cricket Association Friday night during the annual awards dinner of the Victoria and District Cricket Association.

Maurice received a life membership in the Canadian association in recognition of his many contributions to the game. The presentation was made by Arthur Hessford, vice-president of the B.C. association during the ceremonies at the Racquet Club.

For the sixth straight year Cowichan Cricket Club received the Colonist Trophy Presentation was made to club-president Bob Walton.

Albions were presented the Knockout Cup and veteran George Payne collected two honors — the Gillespie trophy as the player of the year and the Hobday award as the leading scorer.

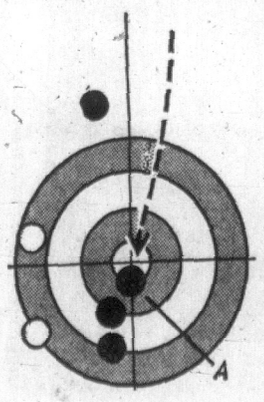
David Auld of Cowichan, Rob Wilson of Incogs and Peter Mason of Alcos were given with special awards for hat-tricks while John Moss of Alcos received a prize for being the only player to hit a century in 1968.

CURLING TIPS

By RON NORTHCOTT, 1968 world champion

THE SITUATION — It's last end and the score is tied, with whites having only the last rock to come.

The white skip can play a running hit at "A", play a quiet hit on "A" or draw to "A" and let the sweepers control the rock.



THE STRATEGY — I feel you definitely have to play either the quiet hit on "A" or draw to "A". This last rock has to count and the best way to make sure it does, is to play the draw. This way you can take full advantage of the sweepers. If you play either of the hits, especially the running hit, you must be exact to count. Even playing the quiet hit, you can't afford to roll very far, or you will lose.

TODAY'S TIP

Consistent shotmaking is spelt—CONCENTRATION.

Before beginning the delivery, all curlers must understand the shot the skip has called. If you are not exactly sure what shot he wants, don't deliver. Find out exactly what is desired.

Concentrate completely on the shot, and shut out all other matters from your mind. Concentration helps overcome other distractions.

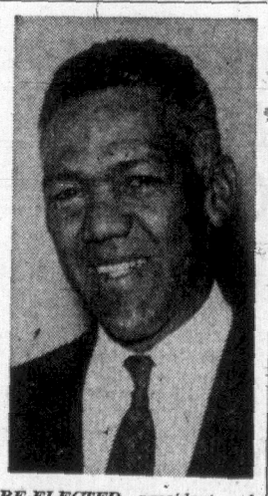
Samaritan Scrambles Scheduled

Motors will be snarling near Goldstream Inn Sunday as riders twist throttles in the seventh annual "Good Samaritan Scrambles" of the Victoria Motorcycle Club.

All proceeds from the meet will be used to buy children's beds for St. Joseph's Hospital.

"All our top people will be out Sunday," said Jack Batey, president of the 85-member club, which was formed in 1927 and is now the oldest of its kind in Canada. "We are expecting several visiting riders and are hoping Stan Amor (last year's winner) will be able to make it from Vancouver.

Expected to be the strongest challengers from the host club when action starts at 1 p.m. are Martin Spriggs, the top VMC rider; Al Barclay, and the father-son combination of Bill and Paddy Smith.



RE-ELECTED president of Greater Victoria Umpires' Association is Doug Hudlin (above). Also selected by umpires during annual meeting were Len Leach, first vice-president; Doug Wilson, second vice-president; Ken Lloyd, secretary and Bert Waring, member-at-large.

Spurs End Famine By Edging Runners

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Denver Spurs scored their first Western Hockey League win since Nov. 8 Friday with a 5-2 victory on home ice over Phoenix Roadrunners. It was their third win in 24 starts.

Centre Billy Carter slapped in a goal from 10 feet out at 2:36 of the first period to give Denver the lead, but the Roadrunners tied it with two seconds remaining on a shot by Bob Charlebois.

Don Carter and Gord Vejprava scored in the second period to give the Spurs a 3-1 lead. Denver made it 4-1 in the third with a marker from Roger Picard at 4:21.

CANUCKS NIP TOTEMS

The final insurance goal came on a 40-foot slap shot by Jacques Lemieux. Charlebois also scored the second Phoenix goal in the contest before 1,784 fans.

Vancouver Canucks strengthened their hold on third place as they edged Seattle 3-2 in the other game before 6,737 spectators in Vancouver.

The Vancouver win increased their lead over fourth-place Totems to five points, leaving them five points back of second-place Portland Buckaroos.

Duke Harris scored two second period goals after Bob Barlow gave Vancouver a 1-0 lead in the first period.

Jim Powers and Bob Courcy replied for Seattle.

Canucks dominated play in the first two periods before the Totems charged back with two goals in the final period.

Harris' two markers, both fluke shots, were his sixth and seventh of the season. His first goal came when he fired a rebound over Seattle goalie Don Head's shoulder.

Two Kickers Of Opponents Out 21 Days

LONDON (Reuters) — Allan Clarke, Leicester City forward, has been suspended for 21 days, starting next Monday, by an English Football Association disciplinary committee.

Clarke, an England under — 23 international, was suspended form "kicking an opponent in retaliation" during Leicester's first division match against Burnley Oct. 26.

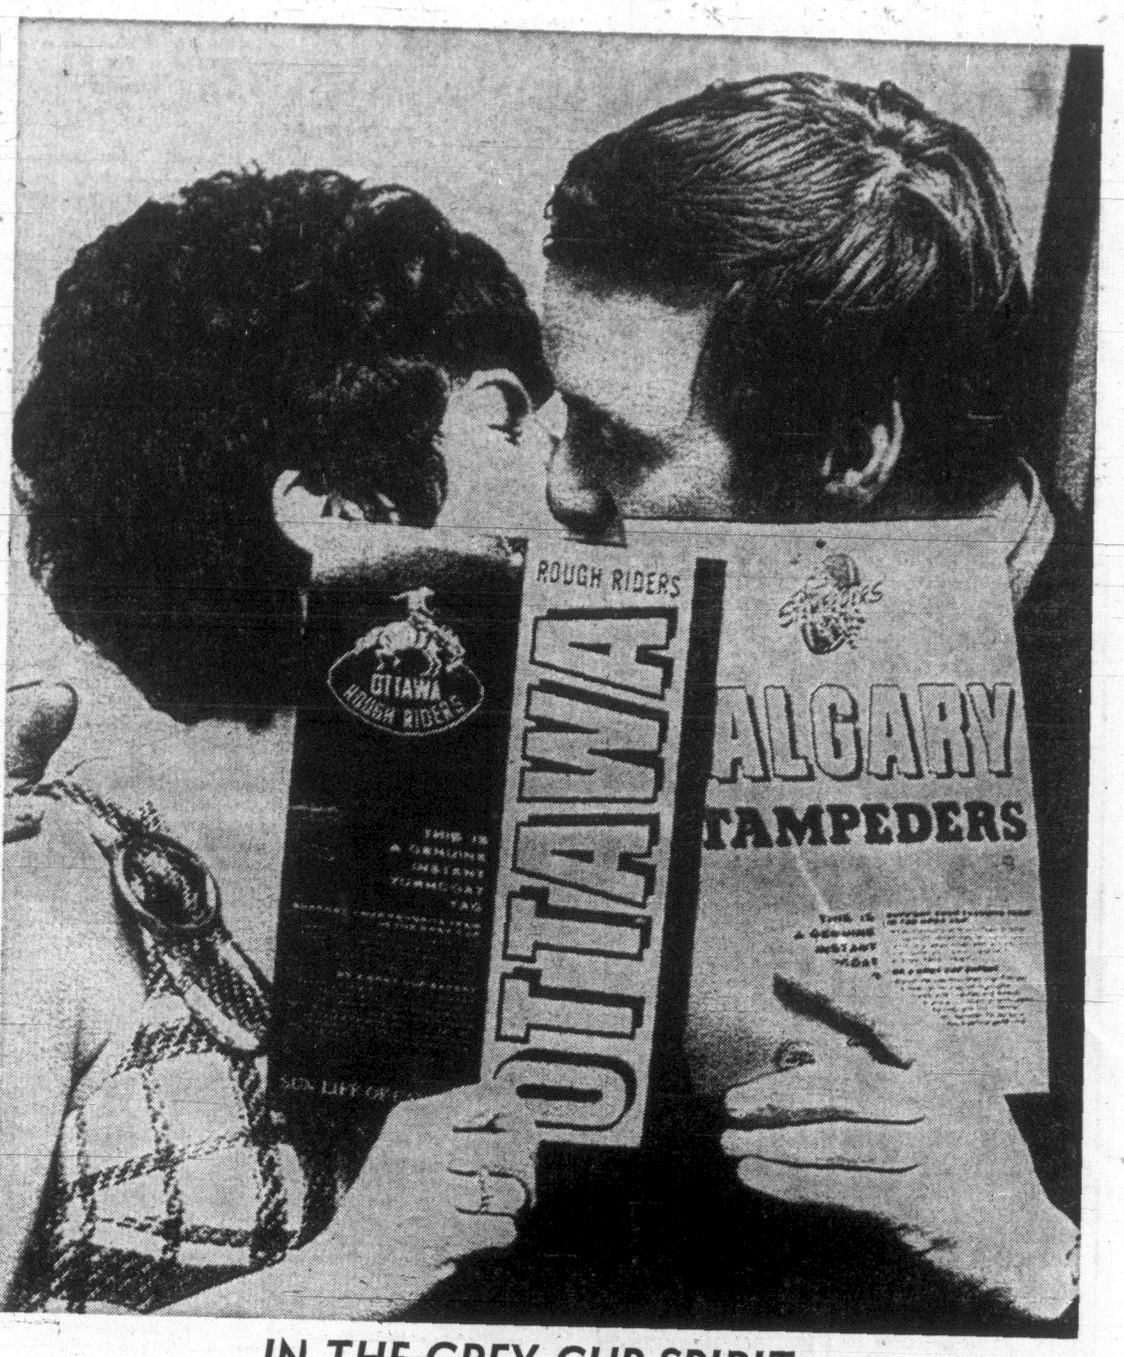
Brighton wing-half Nobby Lawton also was suspended for 21 days for kicking an opponent during a Third Division match with Orient Oct. 21.

JUVENILE CLASH TOPS 'REP NIGHT' AT ARENA

It will be "Rep Night" at Memorial Arena tonight as the Victoria Minor Hockey Association stages a three-game program, starting at 5:30.

Evening Optimists will tangle with Saanich as peewee clubs get the call for the first game and peewee pups will swing into action at 7:15 in a game that will match Cosmopolitans against Esquimalt.

Highlighting the evening's festivities will be a Vancouver Island Juvenile Hockey League game, scheduled to get under way at 8:30 with Victoria Nixons facing UCT of Esquimalt. Nixons will be back in the arena Sunday at 4:40, clashing with Nanaimo in another league contest.



IN THE GREY CUP SPIRIT

East meets west as two fans of opposing teams seal own non-aggression pact before today's Grey Cup football final in Toronto. Helen Toth of Toronto, hoping Ottawa Rough Riders would win the game, and Montrealer John McCann, a Calgary Stampeder fan, were far from enemies during pre-game festivities that hit fever pitch with arrival of Calgary fans. It's Been Big Two Days In Life of Miss Eskimo

TORONTO (CP) — About the two biggest events in the life of 19-year-old Barbara Casault have been compressed into the last two days.

Friday night the 5-6, 120-pound student was named Miss Grey Cup for 1968 and today she was to sit with Prime Minister Trudeau throughout the Grey Cup game in CNE Stadium.

"I still can't believe it," Miss Edmonton Eskimo said again and again at a news conference following her choice over nominees from the eight other Canadian Football League cities.

She received her crown from halfback Bill Symons of Toronto Argonauts, Thursday named the most outstanding player in the CFL, and had the royal sash placed around her neck by Nancy Greene.

TRIP TO MEXICO

Miss Greene, world champion woman skier and honorary marshal at the gala parade preceding today's CFL playoff championship between Calgary Stampeders and Ottawa Rough Riders, also gave Barbara the keys to a 1969 convertible, one of her many prizes.

The honor also carried with it a trip for two to Mexico, a mink coat, a complete wardrobe, a diamond watch and a movie camera.

Named princesses to the brown-haired University of Alberta French major were Jacquie Perrin, Miss Argonauts, and Kathy Cumming, Miss Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

CALGARY FANS ARRIVE

It's been a long time since a trainload of Calgary Stampeders football fans have hit the Royal York Hotel and it may take another 20 years to get the grey, fieldstone structure tilted upright again.

For more than a week people in Toronto have been trying to remember back to 1949 — the last time Calgary made an appearance in the Grey Cup Canadian Football championship game, also in Toronto — in the hopes of finding something bright to look forward to.

The brightness was all around seconds after the CPR train with eight special cars hit Union Station across Front Street from the hotel, and there was no question what was happening.

A homemade siren attached to a car battery and carried by car salesman Syd Gastel signalled the arrival of the white-hatted, whooping crowd.

"Go, Clagary, go," they screamed while banners waved and eardrums shrank. "Yipee, Stampeders all the way."

One banner proclaimed "Strathmore — Beef Capital of the World," and forecast "Stampeders, Canadian Champions."

The hundreds of curious onlookers at Union Station were well warmed up by the precision playing and marching of the Regina Lions Junior Band and the high-stepping of the Roughrider Rideretes, who preceded the Calgary arrivals into the Royal York lobby where they proceeded to ring the rafters and make talking impossible.

Packers Threaten To Move in Front

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Green Bay Packers still are very much alive in the National Football League and could take over the Central Division lead Sunday, depending on the result of the struggle of defensive giants between Minnesota Vikings and Los Angeles Rams.

If the Rams (9-1-1) beat the Vikings (6-5) at Minnesota, the Packers (5-5-1) could go out front by defeating San Francisco '49ers (5-5-1).

COLTS FACE FALCONS

Baltimore Colts (10-1) will be watching the score of the Rams game with interest while they close out their home season against Atlanta Falcons (2-9). The Colts have only a half-game edge on the Rams in the Coastal Division.

Cleveland Browns (8-3) can wrap up the title in the Century Division by knocking off New York Giants (7-4) at Cleveland if St. Louis Cardinals (6-4-1) are upset by Pittsburgh Steelers (2-8-1).

The Giants are skidding on the edge of elimination in the Capitol Division where Dallas Cowboys, who played Thanksgiving Day, are about ready to wrap it up. Cleveland would like to nail down that Century crown before its final game, Saturday, Dec. 14 at St. Louis.

Because of the two Thursday games, there are only six games on the Sunday NFL schedule. In the other contest, the battered Chicago Bears (5-6) will be at New Orleans Saints (3-7-1). The Bears still have a mathematical shot in the Central Division.

Of the six new teams in the American League, Miami Dolphins have the best record. A 1966 entry, they will try to expand that record Sunday against New York Jets, the Eastern Division champions.

Colwood Winners

Ruth Thomson captured "A" division honors while Grace Sluggett and Dorothy Kelly topped other divisions in a women's "iron" competition played at Royal Colwood Golf and Country Club.

Two New Clubs In Hoop League

All teams in the Inter-High School Girls' Basketball League will be in action when a new season starts next Wednesday with two new teams—St. Ann's Academy and Belmont—in the fold.

Belmont will host Esquimalt and St. Ann's will tackle Victoria High at St. Patrick's. In games between holdover clubs, defending-champion Oak Bay will be at Claremont and Mount View will visit Mount Douglas.

BOWLER OF WEEK

Spectacular start paved way for Don Samuelson to collect men's tenpin award in eighth week of annual Times Bowler-of-the-week competition. Rolling at Mayfair Lanes in Victoria Senior League, Don battered pins for 248 in opening game and followed with efforts of 217 and 194 for series of 659, best tenpins tally in contest this season.

Ineligible Players Used; Soccer Team Penalized

Victoria and District Soccer League officials have reached a decision that seriously alters standings in the second division.

London Soccer Club has been sent down to 12th place in the 14-team league for using what the league executive has ruled were ineligible players. LSC was previously in a third-place tie, only three points behind Watson's Hotspurs, Cosmopolitan Royals and Suburban Motors.

Nine points were lost following the decision in which it was decided that four wins and a tie were null and void for using the players in question.

PERFORMANCE BOND

As well as losing the points, LSC was put on a $50 performance bond, payable today, manager Harry Morris was given a three-game suspension and Bob MacCraee, who played ineligibly, was handed a one-game suspension.

Morris has indicated that an appeal of the decision will be submitted to the B.C. Soccer Commission.

LSC is slated to play Norsemen at the University of Victoria Sunday at 2 p.m.

Eintracht Rugged Rival With Ex-Pros in Lineup

Victoria O'Keefes will be testing the new power in the Pacific Coast Soccer League when they step out on the Macdonald Park pitch Sunday afternoon at 2.

They'll be going against Eintracht, the Vancouver club that suddenly switched from doormat to contender by signing five players who campaigned with Vancouver Royals in the North American Soccer League.

With the former pros in the lineup, Eintracht got its first win by thumping Burnaby Villa 5-1 and last weekend battled to a scoreless draw against the league-leading Firefighters.

The ex-Royals who have injected new life into Eintracht are forwards Joaquin Rey and Lajos Vicek, halfbacks Tomas Krivitz and Gorgy Liptak, and goalkeeper Chris Varnavas, who will miss Sunday's game because of a broken finger received in the rugged clash with Firefighters.

STRONGER DEFENCE

In addition to greater offensive power, Victoria coach Bill Abbott estimates that Eintracht's defence "has strengthened twofold."

But he adds that the O'Keefes are "really keen to play this one."

"The boys are more up because of the five ex-Royals playing on Eintracht and will be out to prove themselves," he added.

Only one O'Keefe is on the injured list — Peter Stoffers — out for at least five weeks because of a broken toe received in the last game. Last year at this time Victoria had about six players out of action and yet went on to win the championship.

Abbot plans only one lineup change, moving Bruce Twamley to right wing.

Abbott said this was done because, "In past games Bruce has been able to turn in a better performance when working with Ike MacKay on the right side." MacKay will take the inside-right spot Sunday.

Spares will be Peter Wilson, Dunc McCaig and Dick Joyce.

Oak Bay Downs North Kamloops

NANAIMO — Oak Bay High School downed North Kamloops 72-60 Friday to move to the semi-finals of the first Hubsters basketball tournament.

Vancouver College will provide the Oak Bay opposition in the semis this afternoon.

Vancouver advanced with a 52-38 defeat of Chemainus.

Hazelwood Shoots For Three Crowns

Grant Hazelwood will be shooting for three titles when the finals of the annual Saanich open badminton championships are played tonight at Brentwood Community Hall.

In Friday's semi-final battles, Hazelwood first downed Bob Lewis 15-3, 15-9 to take a men's singles berth in the final while Bob Hunt advanced to the other vacancy with a 15-11, 15-8 win over Roger Lindal.

Lorne McLean teamed with Hazelwood to take a men's doubles semi against Eric Hibberson and George Lane 5-15, 15-9, 15-7. Hunt and Ed Hedley won the other semi-final through a 15-7, 15-10 victory over Jack LeQuesne and Lloyd Park.

Pairing with Val Kent, Hazelwood shared a mixed doubles final berth by defeating Jean Wescott and Park 15-7, 7-15, 15-9, while Muriel Knott and George Lane won from Mary Jane Smith and McLean.

In the women's doubles semi-final, Muriel and Pat Knott downed Virginia Lindal and Val Kent 15-1, 15-10.

Matreen Hibberson and Jean Wescott defeated Mary Jane Smith and Renee Palmgren 15-9, 15-8 in the other semi-final.

Tonight's draw:

7 p.m. — Ladies open singles — Pat Knott vs. Jean Wescott; Ladies handicap doubles — Illeane Beatle and Yvonne Grant vs. Nan Paterson and Gwen Wharton.

7:30 — Men's open singles — Bob Hunt vs. Grant Hazelwsad; Veterans mixed double — Muriel Knott and George Lane vs. Barb Ford and Jack LeQuesne.

8 — Ladies open doubles — Jean Wescott and Maureen Hibberson vs. Muriel and Pat Knott. Men's open doubles — Bob Hunt and Ed Hedley vs. Grant Hazelwood and Lorne McLean. Mixed handicap doubles — Marilyn Sluggett and Ray St. Dennis vs Renee Palmgren and Bob Lewis.

9:30 — Ladies veteran doubles — Barb Ford and Val Kent vs. Muriel and Myrtle Smith. Men's veterans doubles — winners vs. winners.

Burch Paces Hoop Vikings

Barry Burch fired 25 points to pace University of Victoria Vikings to a 84-60 win over visiting Mt. Vernon College of Washington Friday night in the Uvic gymnasium.

Vikings employed a strong second-half finish to overcome a slight 34-32 lead at the half and received strong help from John Lauvaas who canned 23 points. Mt. Vernon was paced by 14 points from Gary Randal.

Both teams will meet again tonight at 8 p.m. in the same place.

Uvic Jayvees downed Simon Fraser 44-33 in a junior women's preliminary game. Sheila Brockington was high for SFU with 17 points but greater depth paved the way for Uvic, paced by Trish Hadfield and Lynette Goff with 14 and 12 points, respectively.

Stockers Protect Slim Hockey Lead

Stockers North Americans stymied a bid by Uvic Vikings to gain a share of first place in the Vancouver Island Hockey League but failed to extend its own lead.

Stockers battled Vikings to a 1-1 tie Friday night in Esquimalt Sports Centre while Esquimalt Butler Brothers jumped to within two points of Vikings with a 6-5 edging of Queen's Own Rifles.

Brian Whitten gave Stockers an early lead only to be balanced by a tally by Vikings' Bill Gidden at 2:30 of the last period.

CUSO Seeks Skilled Youth

By BOB MITCHELL
Uvic Correspondent

Africa and South America need welders and nurses more than they need university graduates with bachelor of arts degtees.

That is why the Canadian University Service Overseas, an organization dedicated to sending technical aid to developing nations, gives priority to volunteers with technical rather than academic qualifications.

There were 29 University of Victoria graduates in a CUSO contingent that went overseas last year. Only three had BAs — the majority were education and science graduates.

The Uvic contribution to CUSO is one of the highest per capita for any Canadian university and representatives on the campus are understandably proud of the figure.

Most universities belong to CUSO. The organization is administered from Ottawa, where six regional directors are responsible for sending volunteers to one under-developed area in the world.

Some of those volunteers are at work now doing two-year stints in countries such as Peru, Sierra Leona and India, doing tasks such as nursing, agricultural advisor and well digging.

CUSO began its annual recruiting campaign this week at Uvic, and student chairman Ian McKinnon explained how volunteers are selected. Applications are assessed first at Uvic, then at head office.

Finally, a dossier on the applicant is sent to the government of the country in which he wants to work, and the government decides whether it needs a person with the applicant's qualifications.

Volunteers receive preliminary six to eight week training before they are sent into the field. Training includes indoctrination on the sociology of their chosen country and fundamentals of the native language.

'CULTURE SHOCK'

Training is designed to soften the effects of the "culture shock," or the frightening experience of being suddenly thrust into a totally alien way of life, Mr. McKinnon said.

But some volunteers become so involved in the life of their adopted country that coming back to Canada after two years is sometimes a worse shock.

"Students that have taught overseas and then tried to teach here said that teaching is much easier, say, in East Africa," Mr. McKinnon said.

"Children there are so eager to learn that as long as you have knowledge to give them they listen."

He said CUSO volunteers have almost complete independence from Ottawa while in the field.

"CUSO head office is lucky if it hears from its volunteers once every six months. They try to keep bureaucracy to a minimum."

Unlike Peace Corps volunteers who are hired and paid by the U.S. government, CUSO volunteers are employed by the government of the country they work in. The organization is financed by member universities and by the federal government at about $2,000 per volunteer. Salaries paid by the host countries are sometimes not sufficient to enable volunteers to live comfortably.

Volunteers' usefulness doesn't end when they come back to Canada, said Mr. McKinnon. One of their most important roles at home is an educational one.

"Returned workers help to educate Canada into the ways of these countries," he said.

CBC Official Named Mediator

VANCOUVER (CP)—Clive B. McKee, 48, director of industrial relations for the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, has been appointed a mediation officer with the B.C. mediation commission.

The appointment was announced Friday by commissioner Pen Baskin who said Mr. McKee is expected to take up his appointment March 1 after a heavy slate of CBC contract bargaining.

Students Avoiding N-Science

OTTAWA (CP) — Shock waves of nuclear weapons are shaking the fabric of western society — the younger generation is stearing clear of careers in the sciences that led to their discovery.

Something like that is occuring also in engineering, possibly as a reaction against the technology that produced television.

These views were placed before the Senate science policy committee Thuesday by Dr. O. M. Solandt, chairman of the Science Council of Canada, and Dr. P. D. McTaggart-Cowan, the council's executive director.

Senator Andrew Thompson (L-Ontario) said he suspects that on moral grounds youngsters with really able minds aren't going into the natural sciences.

Dr. Solandt said there is no doubt that this is a tendency in Britain and the United States, and to a lesser extent in Canada. The shift was toward biology and other "life sciences."

PATTERN DEFINITE

Dr. McTaggart-Cowan said the percentage of students entering physics and chemistry is dropping while for those aiming for the life sciences it is growing rapidly. Engineering, after a period of declining growth in enrolments, had levelled off and probably would turn upward.

Studies showed that there were two reasons. One was that in high school, physics and chemistry were looked on as "tough" subjects.

"And students seems to feel that the life sciences are constructive while physics and chemistry are non-constructive."

Dr. Solandt said a "curious sidelight" has been an upsurge in student interest in mathematics, possibly as a result of the development of computer sciences.

He said the major swing in enrolments has been towards social sciences such as political science, sociology and anthropology and the life sciences like biology and medicine. Philosophy and history were "extraordinarily poorly represented" in student enrolments.

U.S. May Dry Canada Grain

OTTAWA (CP)—The government is looking into the possibility of having wet Canadian wheat moved to the United States for drying, Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin said Friday.

Mr. Pepin made the statement in the Commons as opposition members peppered him with questions about what action the government is taking to meet the problem of excess moisture in the 1968 Prairie wheat harvest.

Student-Faculty Group Advances Uvic Reforms

By ALAN WHITE

More information on courses offered at the University of Victoria should be given students before they register, a special study group has told the university senate.

There should also be a student advisory system 12 months a year to assist students in choosing courses and freedom for professors to use their own methods of examining students.

The list of recommendations, studied this week by a joint faculties meeting and passed on to the senate for approval, was the result of two months of study by an eight-man student and faculty committee.

The group was one of five set up by the senate in September to consider students proposals for restructuring Uvic, and one of two falling under the academic planning organization.

STUDY COURSES

Headed by Dean Ronald Jeffels, dean of college and student affairs, the group was responsible for investigating all ways of improving the students' knowledge of courses and advice on what they should study.

The report said entries in the university calendar — the official publication listing programs, standards and regulations — should carry a description of courses, the name of the professor instructing, book lists and the number of essays and assignments.

The report said the faculty advisory system for students should be set up by departments. The students had requested such a system in a brief presented last July by council president Frank Frketich.

Advisors should be from the same disciplines being studied by the student "because they alone have the specialized knowledge required to give accurate information," the recommendation reads.

Each division of the university should appoint professors, offering either a stipend or reduction in teaching load, "guided by the opinions of third or fourth-year students . . ."

The group also recommended that high school students be encouraged to use the advisory system.

Under the heading of compulsory examinations, they said the calendar regulation concerning examinations held without option should be dropped.

In its place, they suggested, the rule for evaluating students should leave the method up to "the discretion of the individual instructor, in consultation with his department, school or faculty."

The original rule had called for examinations at the end of the year in all courses.

In addition, the group recommended that students who do not wish to be evaluated "in the normal way" should be permitted to attend classes and participate in them.

They would pay full fees and if they later wished to enter a degree program they would be able to "challenge the course standards" of the division of the university.

Austerity, Poor Audiences Tax London Theatres

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP) — Stay-away audiences and austerity taxes have brought dark days to London's theatre.

West End managers say they have rarely seen a worse season, with half-empty houses and rising costs.

Three Broadway musicals—Cabaret, Man of La Mancha and Sweet Charity—are closing Saturday after runs ranging from seven months to a year. Management had expected bookings for all three would continue well into 1969.

Although late fall tends to be a slow season, managers are blaming some of their losses on higher costs, a direct result of such imposts as the payroll tax, designed to hit the service and leisure industries.

Donald Albery, a leading West End impresario who put on the Don Quixote musical, Man of La Mancha, says the percentage of seats he must sell to break even now is 60 per cent. Two years ago it was 45 per cent.

One production that lost nearly £5,000 (about $13,000) in six weeks was the controversial play Fortune and Men's Eyes, by Toronto-born John Herbert. Nobody was surprised that it folded, since the subject of homosexuality in a Toronto reformatory was a bit raw even for permissive London.

The failure of the musicals surprised the show-business world much more, especially that of Cabaret, the sweat-sour musical version of Christopher Isherwood's I Am a Camera.

Cabaret was hailed by London critics as "the best American musical in years" when it opened last March.

Man of La Mancha drew "tornados of applause" on opening night last April, but audiences died away as they did for Sweet Charity, in which American actress Gretchen Wyler scored well in the difficult task of replacing star dancer Juliet Prowse.

The three Broadway musicals folding this week all have downbeat—even sad—endings.

By contrast, Fiddler on the Roof, a U.S. import laden with schmaltzy good humor, continues to pack them in after almost two years.

Surprise hit of the season has been Hadrian the Seventh, a fantasy about a would-be priest who imagines himself pope. The unfashionable Thames-side Mermaid Theatre is making money for the first time in a decade, and among those riding high on the comet is Winnipeg-born Douglas Rain, who recently took over the lead.

SIZZLING HOT temperatures draw such sights as model Dawn Wilding, 24, down to Miami beaches. By the way, Dawn, a native of Memphis, Tenn., also sings when she's not modelling or creating waves on the beach. (AP Wirephoto)

Priest Has Long Love Affair With Canada's Soulful North

INUVIK, N.W.T. (CP) — Rev. Joseph Adams, an Oblate priest, has been involved in a love affair for 32 years . . . with Canada's North.

He arrives in the Northwest Territories in 1936 as a missionary. Today, he conducts services in an igloo-shaped church and ministers to the people and land he loves.

Now 60 years old and with an affinity for snuff, Father Adams, a Belgian by birth, says if anything is needed in the territories, it is an equal opportunity for everybody.

"This is a good land," he says. "It's big. Eventually, I think the Northwest Territories will have to be divided up to serve the people."

Father Adams has only lived in Inuvik — 1,000 miles north of Edmonton — since 1957 when he was recovering from tuberculosis contracted during his years with the Eskimos.

New Terror Campaign

HONG KONG (AP) — The Viet Cong Friday ordered a new guerrilla and terrorist offensive against American and South Vietnamese units and officials. The order was beamed to South Vietnam by Radio Hanoi and monitored in Hong Kong.

Go Hungary to Film

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "There is a saying that the Hungarian government grants only three-day visas to visit the country because the country has only three dishes to eat."

This was the jest of John Frankenheimer, who spent seven months in Hungary to film The Fixer. During that time he consumed an unconscionable amount of goulash, but he enjoyed the movie-making experience.

"If the situation were right, I would go back there and make another picture," said the director. "I found the Hungarian people to be extremely friendly, and the film workers were eager and helpful. We received excellent co-operation all along the line."

MONEY PROBLEMS

Frankenheimer and his partner, producer Edward Lewis, were sold on The Fixer as soon as they had read the Bernard Malamud novel in galley form. They had previously tried to transfer another Malamud book, The Assistant, into the film medium, but were unable to acquire financing. It was no easy matter with The Fixer either.

"After I finished Grand Prix, Eddie and I proposed The Fixer to MGM; we were turned down," said Frankenheimer. "But then the president of MGM, Robert O'Brien, read the book and was sold on it. He said MGM would back the project if we could make it 'for a price.'"

SOUGHT SOVIET LOCALE

Lewis and Frankenheimer agreed to do so, and they began searching for topography and cityscapes that would resemble 1916 Russia. They wanted to film inside Russia itself, but they were told "via the grapevine" that such a request would be denied. The reason: The Fixer deals with anti-Semitism, which is said to still exist in Russia.

"We figured if we got a turndown from Russia, that would scare off any of the satellite countries," said the director.

"After looking at Czechoslovakia, Romania, Hungary, as well as Yugoslavia and Austria, we decided that Hungary offered the best backgrounds. The deal was arranged through the Tower international organization headed by Cyrus Eaton."

CAMPUS CRISIS: Born in 'Resources to Riches' Drive

By JOHN MIKA
Times Legislative Reporter

Current unrest on British Columbia university campuses is undeniably encouraged by "activist" groups which seize on every opportunity to promote student-faculty-administration confrontations.

But the root cause of the unrest is a home-grown product, with the merest of superficial trappings connecting it to the youth protest sweeping the world.

Nothing confirms that analysis more than the fact that the university administrators of our province are protesting just as much as the students.

When University of B.C. president Dr. Kenneth Hare this week announced he was launching a province-wide publicity campaign to make the public realize his campus alone needs up to $100 million worth of new buildings to cope with its enrolment by 1973, he was expressing dissent with the status quo in this province—just as much as the 114 Simon Fraser University students who were arrested for their sit-in this week.

★

The students may lose their degrees and Dr. Hare may lose his job for the protests, but that won't solve the problems.

The ironic aspect of the "activism" among both the front-office and classroom crowd is that far from being anti-establishment they are vehemently demanding more establishment as their due — more buildings, more teachers, more facilities and much, much more co-ordination of the university system to enable it to handle rationally the deluge of students.

Both sides of the campus are even more bitter than the school trustees and hospital boards throughout the province — all of whom have a common belief that they were sold down the government's two-river policy.

The universities' extra measure of rancor stems from the fact that UBC's former president, Dr. John Macdonald, clearly warned the government in 1962 of what was coming.

Re-reading his famous 1962 survey of the province's needs in higher education, the native causes of campus unrest in this province become obvious.

Dr. Macdonald predicted that in 10 years, by 1971-72 there would be at least 33,000 students demanding admission to university level and that it would require an expenditure — based on 1961 cost projections — of at least $200 million during that period to build classrooms for them.

★

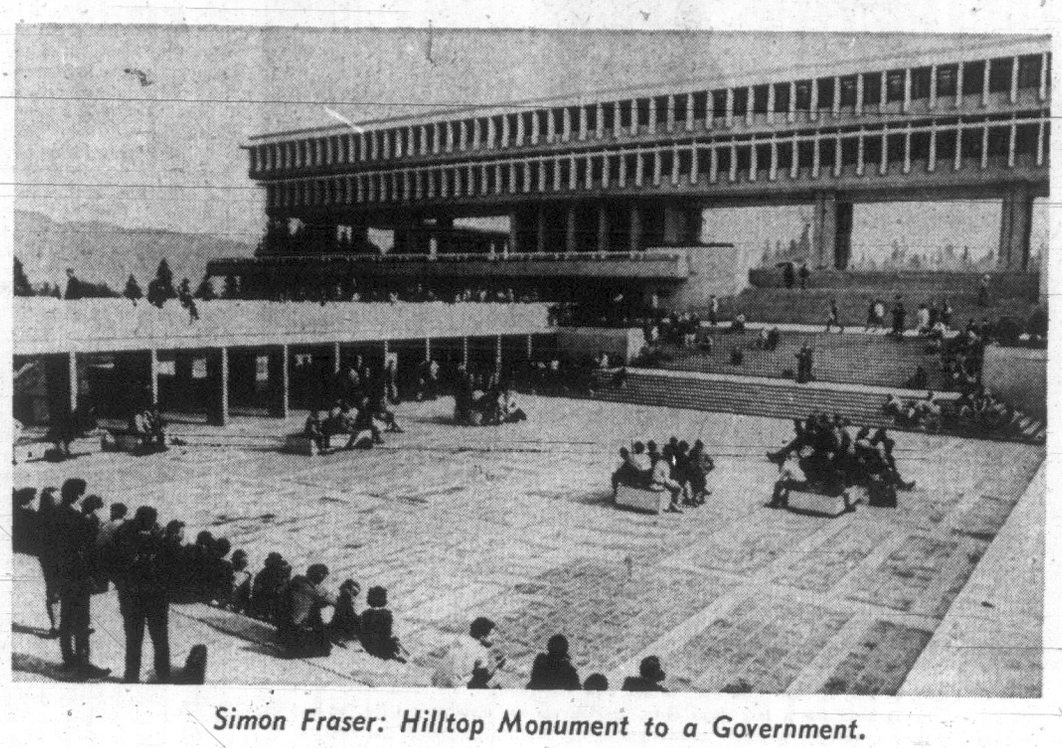
Dr. Macdonald said the province could support this program because its expanding population would not only produce the flood of students but also the financial resources for educating them.

By 1972, he estimated, the load could be spread over a population of two million—but Premier Bennett announced last year B.C. had reached that size already so the tax resources of the province have been growing even faster than student enrolment.

Mr. Bennett predicts his tax coffers will fill up with more than $1 billion next year.

Currently, full-year enrolment in B.C.'s universities has already passed the 32,000 mark, but barely more than $75 million has been provided for capital purposes — including the $21 million put up by public subscription in the tri-university campaign.

During the same period, the government has undertaken a $1 billion program of power development on the Peace and Columbia Rivers with concomitant extensions of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway.



Simon Fraser: Hilltop Monument to a Government.

The ratio of $1 billion for raw resources and $53.4 million for universities since 1962 appears to reflect the government's priorities.

Adding further bitterness on campus is the knowledge that the $125 million shortfall in university construction could be made up instantly from Premier Bennett's budget surplus and still leave a $50 million nest egg.

But probably the hardest thing for universities to swallow in the past few years has been the premier's claims of willingness to spend another $1 billion before the Macdonald decade is over for such items as developing the Liard River, paving the Alaska highway and extending the PGE clear to Whitehorse.

It isn't the imbalance in willingness to invest so heavily in raw resources to the detriment of human resources that outrages the academics so much, as the belief that priorities tragically have been turned upside down.

Dr. Macdonald's report warned — and he cited the rapid industrial growth of the United States and Russia — that B.C. will remain a province of hewers of wood and drawers of water unless it upgrades the educational level of its population, particularly in the post-secondary school area.

"Though we are blessed with a host of physical attributes for a healthy economy, the key to competition and growth is the condition of the human resources," he wrote.

"Do we have the vision, imagination, determination and courage to plot an educational course which will ensure our position in the front ranks?

"Or are we so submerged by our present creature comforts, our past successes and our confidence in the endless bounty of the land in which we live, that we pursue blindly a comfortable course that will lead us to ultimate failure?"

But those words — in effect, educate yourself before you go north — fell on deaf ears of both the old and the young men in the cabinet, and last year Dr. Macdonald left the province in despair.

Why?

His report had advocated four public degree-granting institutions backed up by six two-year regional colleges. At this time there are three public universities and only two colleges in operation.

His report advocated an autonomous academic board to ensure maintenance of high standards in the universities where B.C. parents send their children and to ensure that there was co-ordination among them on such things as course credits when transferring.

On the eve of departure he gave one final and blunt warning that if the government didn't change its attitude drastically towards higher education for British Columbians it would be betraying its own citizens.

There was little change and within a year the presidents of the other two universities also became victims in the continuing "cold war" between cabinet and campus, and another president might have become a casualty this week.

Despite an academic board, the govermnent has failed to promote co-ordination, to the extent that its most-prized university — Simon Fraser — has been wracked with unrest caused by a loss of Canadian accreditation last year over its poor standards, and this week's arrest of students who were protesting the fact they can't get credit in many cases when transferring within the province's own university system.

★

Probably the key recommendation in Dr. Macdonald's report was the one urging establishment of a grants commission which, working closely with the cabinet, would ensure that the universities received equitable financial help and that there was neither financial over-feeding nor — equally important — starvation of the universities.

"It is wasteful of the time of government and inefficient administrative practice to establish a system whereby cabinet ministers are required to analyze, appraise and adjudicate submissions from institutions that vary in size, complexity and stage of development," he warned.

"Such a situation of separate representation contributes to an unnecessary atmosphere of uncertainty and instability with respect to the annual budget of each institution; and it hinders drastically the effectiveness and conviction with which each may plan for the future," the Macdonad report stated.

Prophetic words indeed — but he was speaking to a blank wall.

Premier Bennett, who has always kept complete control of the province's purse strings, refused even to create a board which would have had only the power of looking at financial priorities for the universities and recommending its views to cabinet.

Instead, he made sure that such men as Dr. Gordon Shrum in SFU, Einar Gunderson in UBC and W. C. Mearns in Uvic, were appointed to the boards of governors so that an unspoken but rigid sense of priorities was observed every time someone suggested asking for money that might be used by the B.C. Hydro and PGE these men managed.

★

While government grants to the universities have fallen far short of those given to the crown corporations, even splitting the modest pie among the campuses has resulted in bickering, as predicted by Dr. Macdonald, in the absence of a grants commission to adjudicate impartially.

Repeatedly, UBC and Uvic have felt they were penalized to pour more money into the single new university created as a result of Dr. Macdonald's report.

It must be remembered, that where he urged creation of two more four-year institutions and several regional colleges — the government has taken pride in a record of building an exotic, almost monumental, campus on Burnaby Hill and has poured its publicity efforts into making all B.C. citizens proud of this institution.

Since SFU sprang into being in 1964, the government has given it $20 million for buildings — while UBC received $19.1 million in provincial capital grants and Uvic received only $5.7 million.

But what has been the result of building a hilltop monument instead of creating a university system responsive and capable of meeting the needs of a young population that doesn't want to hew wood and draw water, no matter how much those activities might enrich government coffers?

There is an indication that enrolment in SFU is not keeping up with projections — while enrolment at UBC and Uvic leaps in giant bounds ahead of projections.

Yet government channels continue pumping proportionately more into the favored campus, even in the face of the very question of whether it will be attended by any students at all.

★

No wonder that Dr. Hare, in his first full year as successor to Dr. Macdonald, has decided he too must protest. Despite the current situation Education Minister Donald Brothers, who inherited the chaos, says the use of the word "crisis" is a bit much.

His predecessor, Leslie Peterson, now attorney-general, indicated only last spring during the legislative session that he thought a "crisis" was brewing, so he set up a special committee headed by Dr. G. Neil Perry, deputy education minister, to review the whole order of finances and priorites in the public universities.

That review, he said, was to eliminate the "overlapping and over-competition" among universities —the very problem predicted by Dr. Macdonald if his grants commission proposal was rejected — which were misbehaving despite the government placing some of its key men in board positions.

(Interestingly enough, and probably a clue to where the government's heart lay, the deputy minister of education himself was put on the SFU board — and all he has reaped is personal abuse from frustrated students, barely surviving an unprecedented impeachment demand this fall.)

However, since Mr. Brothers has taken over the portfolio, the Perry committee has only met twice, both times in secret, and Dr. Perry has said its review can't be completed until sometime next year.

"After all, the committee itself is made up of some pretty busy people," he told a reporter recently.

Arthur Mayse

One evening this week, my wife and I held a parley from which a decision emerged.

This is still November, right? And Christmas is still almost a month away, right? Very well, then: for once, let's not be sucked in by premature ballyhoo for a commercialized festival. Right!

Next morning, a large rectangular envelope with a Toronto postmark arrived in our mail. My dear one held it up to the light.

"There's a holly wreath on it," she said, "and what looks like a candle. I wonder if we should put it away for about three weeks?"

"Good idea," I agreed. "It and any others that come."

So we put it away — stuck it under a desk blotter, and forgot about it for all of 10 minutes.

At least, we tried to forget about it. Finally I said, "Bernie and Jo. They always mail early."

"Yes," Win said. "And she writes little notes."

Turned out it wasn't a candle after all, but a star with rays slanting down on three camels. We put it back under the blotter after reading the note, but next morning, I noticed that it had strayed to the fireplace mantel. mantle.

"Home come?" I asked through a yawn.

"You mean the card?" Win cuffed our toaster, an appliance with a mind of its own. "It bothered me. I was doing our accounts at the desk, and it made a hump."

For most of the next day, we managed to avoid any untimely reminders that the year's big spending spree would all too soon be upon the city and the nation.

That evening, though, we turned on TV to catch a show we like, and were at once reminded.

★

One commercial showed a bunch of cuddly animal toys.

While we were still telling each other what a pity it was to rush the season, along came a household sequence that went like this.

First, a Christmas table with crackers, turkey, and all the trimmings. Next, that same table as the gorged feasters had left it.

A shot now of housewife regarding stacks of dishes, while husband sneaks up behind her with a Santa Claus hat on.

He leads her off to gaze on, of all things, a nice new dishwasher.

We watched this one in silence. But half an hour or so later, I got around to making a comment.

"I've been thinking."

"Me too," said the lady who washes 'em while I dry, "only I'm not sure we could fit one into our kitchen. Anyway, remember the agreement?"

★

Sure, I remembered. Still, we agreed that the going was getting tougher.

That same evening, I came on a neat list. It started with peel and ended with almonds.

"What's this?" I asked, pretty sure what the answer would be.

"Well," Win said, "agreement or not, there are some things that I can't leave too long."

Like Christmas cakes, for instance, and I must admit they made a pleasant sight when they emerged from the oven in their brown paper casings.

It's also hard to resist the contagion of stores gaily decorated, and crowds of people already choosing Christmas presents for other people.

That kind of thing wears away resistance, and by yesterday morning, ours had become pretty thin. As a matter of fact, we're about ready to accept the astonishing truth that we have been trying to suppress.

It's not merely that Christmas is all of a sudden 18 shopping days away, or that right now, householders here and there are wondering if its too early to rig their Christmas lights.

Early or not, something new yet very old seems to have crept into the air. And after all, what point in fighing it?

OLD SEALING SKIPPER TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

Max Lohbrunner, 83, Victoria's popular old sealing skipper, was taken off his small fishing boat Friday and taken to St. Joseph's Hospital.

He is apparently suffering from malnutrition.

His boat is tied up in the Inner Harbor, between the sunken whaling vessel Green and the garbage wharf.

Police said Max, who lives on the boat, was so sick he was unable to leave his vessel to get food.

Thomas Pagdin, 2194 Cranleigh Place, heard him call out, and notified police.

Ask The Times

Q. Will you tell me why some Canadian Universities have presidents while others have principals?—K.B.

A. The difference is one of terminology not of office or status. Some presidents simply prefer to be called principals.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

Bandaged Gunman Sought In Saanich Bank Robbery

By DERYK THOMPSON

Saanich police are still searching for a bandaged gunman who escaped with nearly $7,000 from a Cordova Bay bank branch Friday night.

The robber brandished a revolver from an arm in a sling as he ordered Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce staff to fill a paper bag with money.

RCMP and local police cordoned off the area within minutes of the alarm but the effort proved fruitless.

Several persons have been questioned but none held.

Police say descriptions of the robber supplied by bank staff and witness outside the building fit a "few suspects."

The man had bandages taped on his face in what is believed to be an attempt at disguise.

Officer in charge of the branch at Sea View Plaza, 5130 Cordova Bay, was 23-year-old Adrian Andrew, 430 Michigan.

He said he was locking the front door at exactly 6 p.m.

ARM IN SLING

"Just as I had the key in the lock a young fellow walked to the door with his right arm in a sling, a gun in his hand and said 'this is a hold-up, I have a gun.'

"I let him in and he told me to lock the door and leave the keys in it.

"He stood there behind the counter, held a gun on the three of us and ordered the teller to unload the top drawer.

The bandit then drew a brown paper bag from his coat, threw it to the floor and told teller Karl Perschbacker, 20, of 2879 Hagel, to fill it.

"I hesitated a minute stalling for time and then he told me to hurry up," said Mr. Perschbacker, "so I did."

$100 BILL

He filled the bag with $6,914, including $1,000 in United States currency and one U.S. $100 bill. The rest of the cash was in Canadian bills of various denominations.

The teller said: "I wasn't nervous then but afterwards I couldn't have held a match to a cigarette."

Mr. Perschebacker handed the bag to the man and Mr. Andrew let him out of the door and phoned police. The man walked out of sight around a corner of the building and none of the bank staff could say whether he got into a car.

'DON'T FOLLOW'

When the man came in he told them to keep away from the alarms, Mr. Perschbacher said. As he left he again warned them about the alarms and said not to follow him.

"By the time I got back from the door the alarms had been punched," Mr. Andrew said.

Also in the bank at the time of the holdup was teller Mrs. Gert Ashworth, 1120 Totem Lane. She was seated at a desk facing a wall.

"I heard low talking and thought he was a special customer who had come in a bit late," she said.

"I turned around, saw the gun, and turned back to the wall hoping he wouldn't shoot me.

"I was a little nervous," she added.

No customers were in the bank during the robbery but the staff said they had experienced a busy day as it was the end of the month, a Friday and a payday. All the other money was locked up at the time.

ADRIAN ANDREW
. . . opened the door

The man was described as being in his early 20s, about six feet high and of slight build. He wore an open zipper jacket, grey slacks and a blue cap.

"He was disguised with medical bandages," Mr. Perschbacker said. "There was one across his nose, chin, neck and on one of his ears."

NO SHOTS

The gun was said to be a .38 revolver. No shots were fired.

Police in surrounding municipalities were immediately on the alert to apprehend the robber and Saanich police officers with tracking dogs were called to the scene.

The last two armed bank holdups in the area were in 1967 and 1966, both at the Fort and Richmond brance of the Bank of Montreal.

One man was convicted of taking $2,655 from the bank Oct. 13, 1967, and three men are serving lengthy jail terms for taking more than $18,000 from the bank in February, 1966.

Automatic Suspensions Begin Tonight

Motorist found guilty of impaired driving will automatically lose their licences for a month starting midnight tonight.

The attorney-general's department announced Friday the suspensions will be imposed "without any exceptions whatsoever."

In outlining the new policy this week, Attorney-Gerneral Leslie Peterson said it would make all drivers in B.C. know that by taking a drink they run the risk of losing their right to drive for a definite period.

The motor vehicles branch defines an impaired driver as a person whose "ability is impaired by alcohol or a drug, where you are in care or control of a motor vehicle that is in motion or is not."

The department emphasized that it will be a "complete suspension" and will not be varied to allow a person to drive for business purposes or to drive during specified hours of the day.

Last Night to See Close-Up of Stars

The Dominion Astrophysical Observatory on West Saanich Road will be closed to the public until next April.

The final public viewing for the season will be from 8 to 10 tonight.

Path to Freedom Ends in Victoria

By PAT DUFOUR

The immigration laws of Canada were relaxed a year ago, allowing Canadian Chinese to bring close relatives to this country. By this action, the Canadian government has given new hope to at least one young escapee from mainland China.

Twenty-five-year-old Pui Him Lee arrived in Victoria a week ago and is now living in the Admirals Road home of his brother and sister-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Yam Jim Lee. This is the first reunion for the brothers since 1947.

The Lees were one of the firs' to apply under the new regulations, in the hope that Dr. Lee's young brother might share the way of life which caused both of them to renounce their former nationality to become Canadians.

Emily Lee is from a fourth-generation Hong Kong family. Her husband and brother-in-law hail from the village of Kiyoung.

Pui Him's arrival in Canada doesn't mean that Chinese mainlanders are allowed to come to Canada through official channels. He escaped from his home country four years ago and has spent the in-between years working in his uncle's clothing factory in Hong Kong.

Not only does he have to now become familiar with a new way of life, he also has to learn the English language. This shouldn't be too difficult for a young man who so much wanted to live in freedom, he walked for six nights (hiding for all but two of the days) until he reached the borders of Hong Kong.

Through the lips of his sister-in-law he tells of some of those days:

"We'd walk all night because there was less risk of being caught. But, there was always the fear of losing your way or breaking an ankle.

"One night, 10 of us were walking along a path. I slipped and fell into some bushes. When I looked again, it was only those bushes that had saved me from falling over a sheer cliff."

He tells of another time when he climbed down one mountain, only to find he had to wade through ice-cold waters until he reached the other side ... and another mountain.

"I was numb with cold. I wrapped most of my clothes around my stomach to try and get back some feeling into my body."

'GOOD SAMARITAN'

During the last two days, Pui Him knocked at many doors, trying to get food to ease his hunger. Most turned him away but his eyes warm with gratitude when he tells of one man who took him in, fed him and gave him clothes.

Even when he reached the border at Sha Tao Kok, Pui Him still felt the fear of the hunted. Of the 11 in his party, eight were caught, arrested and sent back.

Through Emily Lee, I asked Pui Him why, at 25, he has only a Grade 9 education. I had thought the Communists were avid in their search to provide higher learning for the Chinese people.

They are ... but only to members of the preferred society. Pui Him's parents were land-owners and no children of land-owners are permitted to advance their studies beyond a certain level.

"But," I asked, "surely their land was taken away from them? This would make them, and you, equal."

Despondently Pui Him replied that it made no difference.

I hesitated to ask my next question. But having seen many news releases that appeared to prove that Pui Him's generation had accepted Communism with open arms, I enquired why he had never embraced the ways and principles of the Party.

NOT HIS KIND

The interpreted answer was that the Communists were not the kind of people he could respect. It also went against his in-born respect for the aged to see teen-agers ruling their elders.

Elaborating, his sister-in-law explained that many of Pui Him's generation who had been able to enjoy privileges and carve careers under the new regime were now in mental revolt.

"The southern Chinese are extremely individualistic and independent of thought. Some of them just can't accept the new way of life."

She quotes a saying which summarizes this independance. Roughly translated it is:

"The Heaven is High — the King is Far."

It is this freedom of thought that impels people like Pui Him to risk death and worse in order to recover a way of life that's lost to his own country.

Pui Him Lee, at left, is seen with his brother and sister-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Yam Jim Lee. In Victoria for a few days only, he travels on discovery trips, armed with only a map, lacking a basic knowledge of the English language. To counteract this weakness, he's taking a night course through the Institute of Adult Studies, this being bolstered by 'homework' taught him by the Lees through the use of a tape-recorder. Men Entering Home Ecs

GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — Dr. Margaret McCready believes there is a place for men in the field of home economics.

"The old idea that home economics is only for women is gone," says the retiring dean of the University of Guelph's Macdonald Institute, and she points out that in the United States a large number of men have already entered the field.

To keep pace with the expanded scope of home economics, she says, a hotel and food management school will be established at Guelph next year and the name of the course will be changed to family and consumer study.

Curiously enough, Dr. McCready's decision to enter home economics came on the spur of the moment while she was trying to decide what to study.

She said she visited the university, passed a classroom where home economics was being discussed and "was so intrigued over what the woman was saying concerning the field that I registered then and there."

Dr. McCready's career in home economics included a term as president of the Canadian Economics Council and Chairman of the Canadian Hunger Foundation.

REALTORS STAGE A FIRST

The Victoria Real Estate Board made social history on Friday evening. It held its first annual ball in the Crystal Ballroom of the Empress Hotel.

The newly-decorated ballroom made a magnificent setting for the glittering affair which saw women guests wearing the latest and most colorful of formal gowns. Dave Pepper's Ill Winds played for dancing.

Attorney-General L. R. Peterson and Mrs. Peterson were honor guests. Other special guests included Mayor Hugh Stephen and Mrs. Stephen, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Pearlman, and Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Melville.

Greeting guests as they arrived for the cocktail party which began the evening's festivities were board president G. D. Peaker and Mrs. Peaker, and acting vice-president D. G. Whyte and Mrs. Whyte.

A smorgasbord dinner was served cabaret-style in the early part of the evening.

The Night for Tartans

Tartans of many clans will be much in evidence at Holyrood House this evening when members of the St. Andrew's and Caledonian Society and their guests gather for the St. Andrew's dinner and ball. His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor has consented to be patron of the formal affair. Dinner will be served at 7 p.m. and Gerry Inglis' orchestra will play for dancing from 9 p.m. Society president Mrs. Nan Hadden will introduce the special guests, who will include Alderman and Mrs. Robert Baird, Mr. Robert Peach, president of the Black Watch Association, and the society's honorary chaplain, Dr. Lewis J. McLean, and Mrs. McLean.

Pre-Ball Party

Mr. and Mrs. John Hadden will entertain at a cocktail party in their Moss Street home this evening prior to attending the St. Andrew's Ball of the St. Andrew's and Caledonian Society, to be held in Holyrood House. Mrs. Hadden is the society's president. Attending the party in the Hadden home will be Mr. and Mrs. James Kirk, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Sutherland, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Milligan, Mr. and Mrs. James McAulay, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Gillespie, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cameron, Mr. and Mrs. James McKenzie, Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Stewart and Mr. and Mrs. James Kemp.

She Paints With Kelp

HALIFAX (CP) — Talent, luck and a liking for seaweed have become an artistic career for a former Nova Scotian.

Marjorie Schwartz of Montreal uses a scallop rig and deep-sea divers to bring up kelp, the seaweed growing just off Nova Scotia's shoreline. With a talent for design, she transforms it into designer plaques and panels to trim office and domestic walls.

Miss Schwartz calls her designing with kelp "Hobby," but the hobby has become time-consuming, and won her an exhibition at the Atlantic provinces' Pavilion at Expo 67. Miss Schwartz puts the dried and colored kelp on glass-fibre panels.

After searching throughout the summer for kelp, she takes it back to Montreal, where she makes the panels in the winter months.

With a combination of sunlight exposure and sea water, she changes the kelp from dull black and dark green to bright warm hues of orange, yellow and red.

Then a piece of plywood, the same size and shape as the final glass panel, is printed with the design.

The glass panel is placed over the plywood, and melted glass fibre brushed over the glass panel. While this fibre is still soft, the kelp is manipulated, following the design on the plywood beneath the glass.

Her first attempt at working with kelp saw her making up framed designs.

But she found the drying plant hard to manage.

So on a chance, she called a chemical institute in Montreal, and asked if any formula was available for keeping the plant pliable enough to manipulate.

There was. It had been completed only the day before her call.

IN HMCS PORTE DE LA REINE

Wrens Take to Water

It's been many a year since ships of Her Majesty's Fleet set to sea with women aboard. It's so long ago, indeed, that most are unfamiliar with the fact that "Show a Leg" originated from the days when seamen being ordered out of their hammocks to go on watch did that to distinguish them from their female companions!

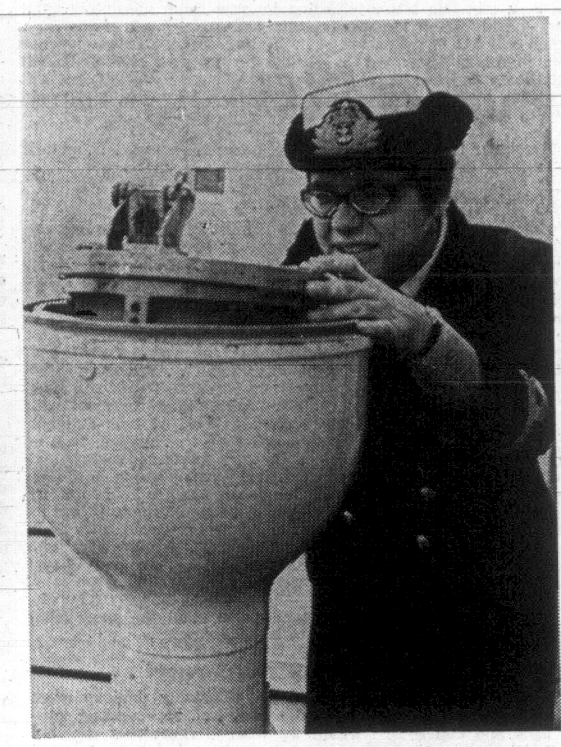
Nowadays, the chances for women to go to sea in naval vessels are few and far between, even if they serve as permanent force or reserve Wrens. When they do, they're expected to take their turn at carrying out the duties of a ship's company.

Not that they mind . . . these pictures show how Victoria and Vancouver Wrens welcomed the opportunity during a training cruise in HMCS Porte de la Reine between here and Vancouver.

But, full equality is still a long way off. Can you imagine a Wren being able to draw her daily tot of rum? Still, there's hope. On this cruise Lieut. (W) Jennifer Dyer, 912 Newport Avenue, was assigned the duty of issuing officer when tot-time came around. That's a beginning.

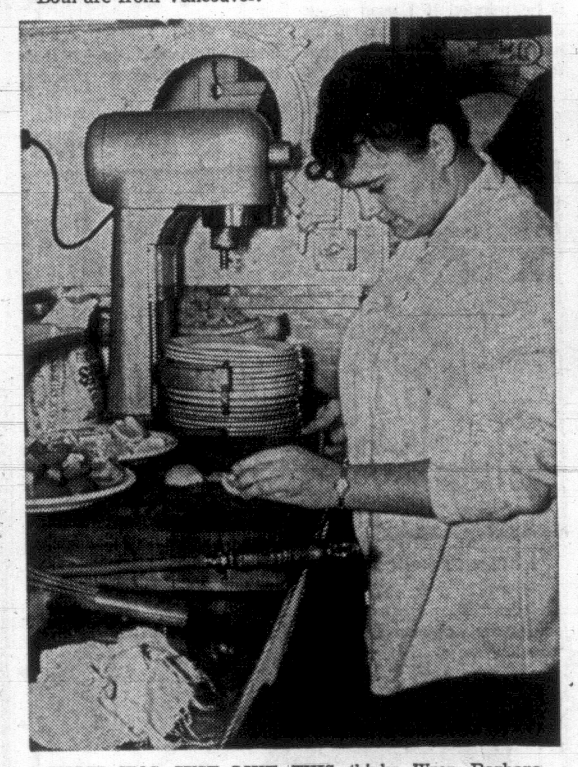
A CLEAN SHIP IS A HAPPY SHIP and this trio of Victoria Wrens are determined that HMCS Porte de la Reine will put her best decks forward when she enters Vancouver Harbor after the trip across the Gulf. Pushing scrubbers, left to right, are Kathleen McArthur, 1770 Rockland Avenue; Mary Ellen Boland, whose home town is Port Arthur, Ont., and Barbara Powers, who hails from Big Bras d'Or, Cape Breton Island.

ALL WORK AND NO PLAY makes Jill Tars dull people. Two Wrens from HMCS Discovery liven things up between watches with a little music on the quarter-deck. Pam Moir sings along as Rita Clarke strums a lively beat. Both are from Vancouver.



EVERY WOMAN WANTS TO KNOW WHERE SHE'S GOING and Sub.-Lt. (W) Sandra Shera is no exception. She takes a compass bearing in preparation for the next fix on the plot. Stationed at Esquimalt, Sub.-Lt. Shera hails from Montreal. She lives at 1182 Colville Road.

NINE YEARS OF DUTY IN THE SERVICE make P2 Wren Jean Deslippe, 606 Nelson Street, an old hand at handling a signal lamp. Her home town is Harrow, Ont. Standing by to take down the message is Wren Mary Ellen Bowland.



HOME WAS JUST LIKE THIS thinks Wren Barbara Powers as she draws galley duty on the trip across to Vancouver. Barbara admits, though, there are differences. There are more to feed and the menu is more varied. Lunch lists a choice of roast beef or scallops.

STEER A STEADY COURSE, Lt.-Cmdr. Jack Hannam, skipper of HMCS Porte de la Reine seems to be saying as he checks compass while Wren Lea Hawley of Vancouver takes her trick at the wheel. Actually, as can be seen by the expression on the helmsman's face, the skipper found his temporary 'crew' to be always on the job.

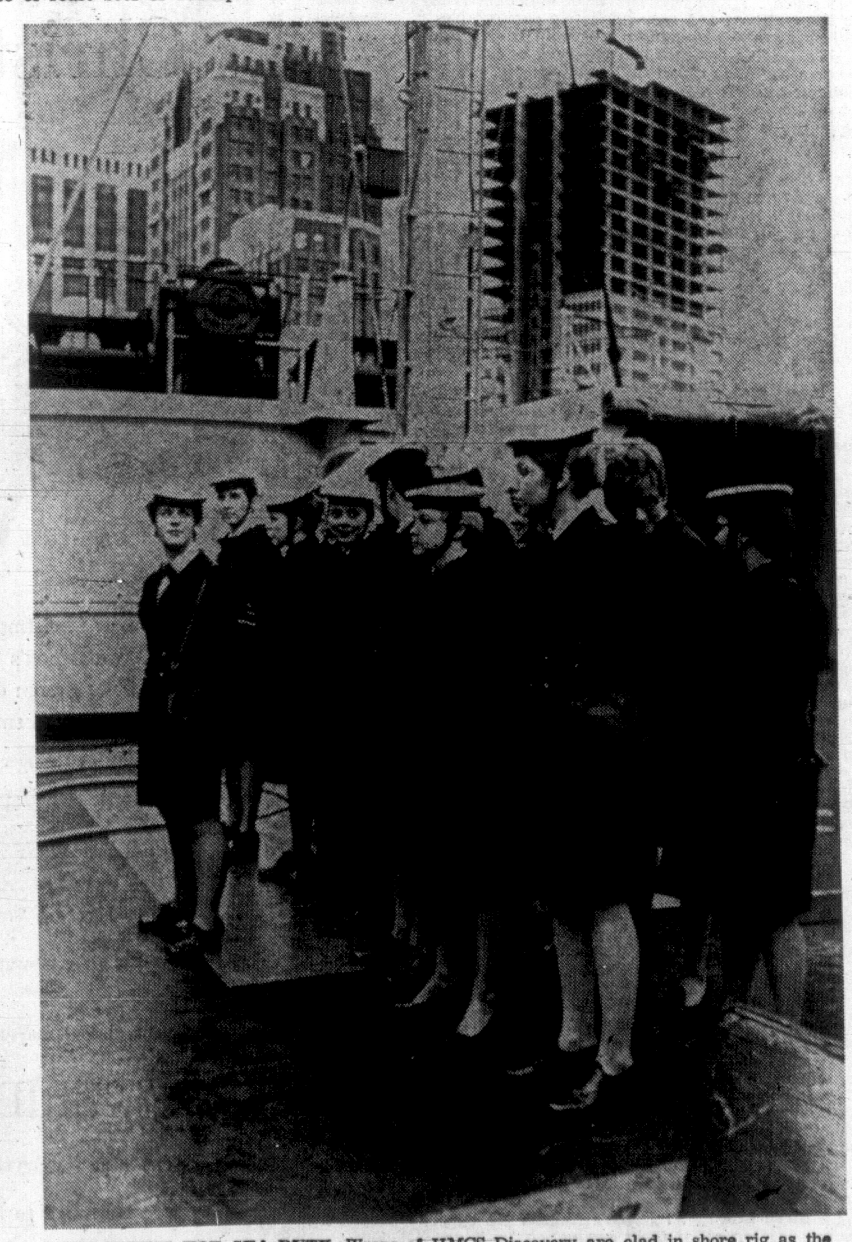
DOLLS IN DUNGAREES aren't usually to be expected in the engine room of naval vessels. Wren Kathie Robertson of North Surrey makes an attractive exception as she takes readings off an electrical console.

MEN ARE MEN AND WRENS ARE TOO when it comes time to eat dinner aboard HMCS Porte de la Reine. LS Floyd Ruttan tucks into his chicken in the seamen's mess, accompanied by Cheryl Dowding of Burnaby, Lea Hawley of Vancouver and Ann Pope of Vancouver (at far side of table). Seated next to him are Marianne Kurlak of Richmond and Melanie Gibberd of Vancouver.



REPORTING FOR SEA DUTY, Wrens of HMCS Discovery are clad in shore rig as the ship prepares to slip from the CPR wharf in Vancouver. Once leaving harbor routine is over, uniforms are stowed, to be replaced by more suitable dress until the ship approaches Brotchie Ledge en route to Esquimalt Harbor. Then the Wrens return to their familiar 'blues.'

Doing The Town

With DOROTHY FRASER

It's time for gentle hints . . .

Now that the football season's had its last hurrah . . . and husbands can start applying their minds to other important events . . . like Christmas, for instance . . . this might be a propitious time to start making with a few gentle hints . . . Your menfolk will bless you for clueing them in . . . and if you let it be known that Miss Frith's is a great place for a man to do his Christmas shopping . . . you'll be doing him . . . as well as yourself . . . a real favor! . . . Miss Frith's has a very competent sales staff who know just what sort of things wives like . . . they'll help him choose clothes and accessories . . . even model them for him . . . And if he's the bashful type, who shies away from lady clerks, Mr. Wyn Sinclair or Mr. Dan Nash will be more than happy to take over! . . . Right now Miss Frith's is literally sparkling with exciting things to delight the feminine heart . . . Suits and dresses . . . skirts, sweaters, blouses . . . handbags, hosiery, gloves, scarves and jewellery . . . glamorous at-home wear and housecoats . . . in this latter category we saw some absolutely stunning sparkly jump and pants suits and kodel-filled gowns . . . which only LOOK expensive! . . . If after seeing all these lovelies your man is still stymied . . . he can always get a Miss Frith Gift Certificate and let you choose your own! . . . Beautiful free gift wrapping too at . . . Miss Frith Millinery & Fashions, 1617 Douglas St., 383-7181.

Designer Galanos is in favor of the bra-less look . . . almost essential with the new slash front dresses.

Lovely sweaters for evening . . .

Evening sweaters, we sometimes think, often tend to be overornate . . . a case of gilding the lily . . . so we were especially pleased when we saw the new Hong Kong evening and dressy sweaters being unpacked at Wilson's . . . There are some lovely white wool hand-knits in the jackety Chanel style . . . whose raised wool embroidered flowers are all in different shades of the same color giving a subtly different effect . . . There are shades of turquoise, shades of beige and brown, and shades of blue . . . all on white, with white silk lining . . . Price tag is $30 . . . Other sweaters are soft fine lambswool . . . also silk lined . . . One style, in white, has silk embroidered rosebuds with several rows of French knots trimming neck, sleeves and bottom . . . small round pearl button fastening . . . mauve, blue or yellow flower trim on these . . . $25 . . . Another sweater, also lambswool, in blue, pink or white, has discreet beading in matching colors . . . The price tag on this one is a mere $17.50 and we think it's wonderful value . . . Any of these would make charming Christmas gifts . . . Also noticed some new scarves from Italy . . . long scarves in 6 or 10 inch widths . . . pretty colors with stripes on one side, the other side plain . . . W & J Wilson Limited, 1221 Government St., 383-7177.

Demure swim dresses and tunics will steal the show from bikinis next summer, according to fashion reports.

Take your Christmas list to The Carousel . . .

Don't know about you, but we get positively panicky when we set forth with a list of names in hand . . . representing various ages and tastes . . . whom we wish to remember tangibly at Christmas . . . It happened again last week but was mercifully short-lived . . . because we took ourselves and our list to the Carousel . . . and suddenly, beautifully, the whole gift problem was solved! . . . So it's with a real glow of gratitude and pleasure that we urge you to visit the Carousel and do some browsing on your own account . . . You'll find all sorts of delightful and unusual things you've likely never even thought of . . . not to mention a great collection of Christmas cards . . . lovely wrappings, many of them imported (be sure to see the Gordon Frasers) . . . really different Christmas place mats, cloths and serviettes etc. for your own use during the holiday season . . . We just can't begin to list all the gift ideas . . . for every age group . . . and at prices ranging from a dollar or two up to more respectable sums for those important gifts . . . And there's nothing chintzy about even the most inexpensive items . . . Everything in the store is personally selected by the Potters . . . and their taste and feeling for quality is unerring . . . So take our advice and visit . . . The Carousel, 1801 Fort St., 383-0111.

Small, almost severely-styled hats for spring were shown in Montreal recently.

Cosy capes . . . Leather jumpers . . .

We saw a cute chick trying on a red cape when we went snooping in the Madam and Eve Shop the other day . . . She looked like a sophisticated Red Riding Hood . . . enough to make any wolf in its right mind flip! . . . and we sure hope she bought it! . . . Anyway, we looked at all the other new capes just new in at M & E . . . They're from Raymond of London . . . in warm melton cloth lined with satin, and two different styles . . . one with a gold chain fastening at the neck . . . black with red lining, and hunter's green lined with gold . . . The other style has a high stand-up collar fastening with three covered buttons . . . This one comes in bright red, veridian green, and camel color . . . So if you've been wanting a smart cape to make the scene in, visit M & E soon before they're all snapped up . . . Capes are tagged at $42.50 and $49.95 . . . which latter price also applies to the new English tailored jackets . . . three-quarter length with four pockets . . . in red, white, green or camel melton cloth . . . Eye-catching, warm and practical . . . great for school or campus . . . Other new arirvals at M & E are suede and leather jumpers with the popular hardware trim . . . big industrial zippers right down the front from V-neck to hem . . . half-belts fore and aft . . . Leather jumpers are antique brown . . . suede ones come in beige, camel and green . . . and there's one very pretty blue suede, size 8 . . . Madam and Eve Shop, Trounce Alley, 383-7177.

Oscar de la Renta's resort and summer collection features flamenco skirts for evening . . . and belts on simply everything.

Have a custom-made gown for New Year's . . .

Whenever we run into a discriminating woman who confides to us that she likes to wear suits, dresses and gowns unlike anyone else's . . . or who has trouble finding ready-made clothes which really fit and are completely comfortable . . . we invariably suggest she go have a talk with Ursula Redwood . . . Victoria's leading designer and exponent of haute couture . . . And we can truthfully report that everyone concerned has been highly delighted with the results! . . . Mrs. Redwood makes the kind of clothes you usually associate with the Beautiful People . . . Her taste is exquisite, her workmanship sheer perfection . . . and women who wear her clothes certainly stand out from the crowd . . . If you'd like a very special cocktail or evening gown for New Year's Eve parties and after-Christmas balls . . . a gown designed and made just for you alone . . . don't wait till the last moment . . . see Ursula Redwood now . . . She'll show you swatches of the most gorgeous fabrics you've ever laid eyes on . . . design a dream gown which will enhance YOU . . . instead of vice versa! . . . And while we won't pretend all this comes cheap . . . it certainly won't cost you more than a really fine-quality ready-made garment . . . Phone or drop in to Mrs. Redwood's new Studio . . . it's convenient and there's plenty of street parking all around . . . Ursula Redwood, 1928 Oak Bay Avenue, 385-5833.

December's the month for egg nog . . .

Well, it's egg nog time again! . . . Starting on Monday your Northwestern Creamery milkman will be carrying egg nog in his big refrigerated truck . . . to deliver fresh to your doorstep . . . and he'll have a bonus for you too . . . a big beautiful plastic bowl with a cover . . . which retails at $4 . . . but which can be yours for just $2.25 with the purchase of 1 qt. of egg nog . . . And what delicious egg nog Northwestern makes! . . . Creamy and delicately flavored . . . made daily from cream rushed from local farms . . . farm-fresh eggs . . . delicate spices . . . You've never tasted any other like it! . . . You'll want plenty of whipping cream and other dairy goodies, too, to help make the festive season even more festive . . . so stock up . . . put your orders in early . . . and get your plastic bowl early too, because we've a hunch they won't last too long . . . This early ordering also applies to Velvet Ice Cream Yule Log rolls . . . without which no Christmas dinner would be complete! . . . and the supply of which never quite catches up to demands! . . . A delicious Velvet ice cream log is a festive dessert to be enjoyed often this month of December . . . along with Velvet's TWO feature flavors . . . Peppermint Candy and Egg Nog ice creams . . . A sweet Merry Christmas . . .

Just in case you'd forgotten . . . we want to remind you that Welch's ship their delicious candy to Europe, all over Canada and to every state in the U.S. including Hawaii . . . and there's still time to get your orders in for Christmas giving to friends and loved ones in other climes . . . if you act fast! . . . Actually, parcels to Britain should have gone off last week . . . but if mailing dates crept up on you unawares . . . don't worry too much . . . Just phone Welch's first thing on Monday and they'll promptly speed your gift on its way! . . . Former Victorians no longer inhabiting this Blessed Isle will doubly appreciate your thoughtfulness in sending them a taste of home . . . for nobody who's ever tasted Welch's chocolates can quite forget their unique goodness . . . We well remember our own glee when the occasional box of Welch's was handed to us by the postman during our Eastern exile! . . . Welch's candies are expertly packed for mailing and arrive at their destination fresh and delicious . . . All you have to do is give the recipient's name and address . . . indicate the amount you're prepared to spend . . . and leave the rest to Welch's . . . Such a nice, easy, toothsome way to say "Merry Christmas"! . . . Welch's Candy Shop, 755 Fort St., 383-6422.

DEAR ABBY . . .

'Spoiled' Child May Need Medical Care

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Is it normal for a 5-year-old to tell adults, "I hate you, drop dead," and so forth?

This child is a neighbor. She curses like a mule skinner and will throw anything she gets her hands on.

Yesterday she called me an insulting name for a female dog, so I shook my finger in her face. Then she threw a flower pot at me. Another time this little demon stabbed me in the back with a rake!

She sits in the yard and shouts things at strangers who pass by. Her parents say, "Ignore her. She's just spoiled." Well, I have seen some spoiled children in my day, but I've never seen one like her.

Could there be something more seriously wrong with her? What is your advice

CONCERNED

DEAR CONCERNED: It would be a kindness to suggest to the child's parents that they take her to a docter for some thorough testing to determine the cause of her anti-social behavior. A child who is as hostile as this one appears to be without provocation could be emotionally disturbed. And early treatment could help her.

DEAR ABBY: I recently married a man who was married before. (Our mates died.) I had many lovely household items, and so did he, so we consolidated them. I assumed that everything belonged to us.

Recently I had a dinner party and asked my husband if he minded if I used a cut glass bowl which came from his home. He informed me that I shouldn't, because if it were accidentally broken it would represent a $60 loss.

Abby, I was shocked. I would certainly be as careful with his things as my own. Now I feel as though I don't want to touch any of "his" things. I want to have a good relationship between us, but my having to ask him if I may "use" one of his possessions, and then being turned down, has caused me to wonder. What is your opinion?

HURT

DEAR HURT: There is more involved here than a $60 cut glass bowl, and if your relationship can't stand the strain of a heart-to-heart talk, it's even more fragile. Let him know how you feel and ask to have his side of it. Perhaps that bowl is reminiscent of something he didn't want to be reminded of. Give him a chance to clear it up.

DEAR ABBY: That woman who complained because of her sagging bosom is just plain stupid, but she's typical of thousands of other women.

Who does a woman think she has to please? Her husband, her mirror, or strangers on the street? I'll bet her husband has never complained about sagging bosom, nor is he looking for a more bosomy companion. When will women learn to shut their mouths and use what they have to please their husbands, instead of trying to tell them what a man wants. No sensible man expects a woman of 50 to look like she did when she was 25. And no woman in her right mind expects her husband to stay slim and have all his hair after he's reached middle-age. We all change. So what?

Many an attractive, mature, women, by flapping her gums about how she's lost her "youth," and can't compete with younger, prettier women, has driven her husband into the arms of another woman. It never occured to him, but if he hears it long enough, he can be convinced.

COOKING CAN BE FUN By MARY MOORE

Handy Recipe When Guests Call

Moore

Since the object of making these Banana Muffins was speed I cut every corner. I put the very ripe bananas in the beater bowl and added the shortening and sugar and turned on the power.

But if you do not think your beaters will withstand this heavy duty mash your bananas first.

BANANA MUFFINS

(24 two-inch or 12 large)

One-half cup granulated sugar; 2 medium-sized very ripe bananas (mashed); 6 tablespoons shortening; 1 egg; ½ teaspoon vanilla; 1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour; 1 teaspoon baking soda; 1 teaspoon baking powder; ½ teaspoon salt.

Into the beater bowl break up the bananas (or mash them in it if you are doubtful about the strength of your beaters) and add the shortening and sugar and beat until blended. Add egg and vanilla and beat in.

Dump in the measured flour, soda, baking powder and salt and barely mix.

Remove beaters, scrape down sides of bowl with rubber spatula and give it another little stir. Do not overstir.

Turn into 12 large buttered muffin tins or 24 two-inch muffin tins. (I cannot emphasize enough the joy of teflon-lined muffin pans for when you turn out the baked muffins they never stick.)

Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. The large muffins require about 20 minutes but might be done in 18 minutes. The small muffins require about 10 to 12 minutes. Serve them hot if possible. But the banana flavor is just as good when they are cold.

File this recipe carefully so that when unexpected guests arrive you can feel free to invite them to stay. Then excuse yourself and whip up these muffins as if you had done it with one hand tied.

Store Flourishes In New Quarters

By PENNY SAVER

I never suspected that Mathilda was the type who goes wild over long, filmy nightwear. But she is. I found this out when the two of us went on a Christmas buying spree. We were looking around an old familiar store that has just moved to new, luxurious premises. Their new store has all the glamour of a high-fashion salon. I almost expected beautiful models to begin pirouetting between the display racks. The stock is just as glamorous and the prices surprisingly reasonable. Many of the styles are completely unique to this store and I was not surprised to learn that their lingerie comes from a private supplier.

Take Mathilda's favorite night-gown for instance. It has an empire waistline and spaghetti straps. It is made of a sheer nylon chiffon shading from the palest blue to a deep turquoise. Under this there is a layer of opaque nylon tricot, also in blue. The floor-length skirt is full and flaired so that the nylon floats and flutters with every movement. This elegant gown is only $15!

In a more practical line were gowns of a soft brushed nylon. These come in pastel pink, blue and yellow. I saw one that had been machine-washed by one of the sales-girls and, believe it or not, it looked as fresh as any on the rack—even to the lace trim! One style of gown is like an extra-long shirt. A wide band of lace and embroidery runs down the front and around the cuff of the long sleeves. The plain collar is in the popular mandarin style. This gown is $12. Another for $10 has a square neckline trimmed in a broad band of embroidered lace. Lace runs in a stripe down the long, loose, cuffed sleeves and around the hem. Lace-trimmed pyjama sets, much plainer than the glamorous shorty night-gowns I just described, are $12 a set.

Returning to the oh-so-glamorous nylon chiffon, I saw a shorty tent in squares of different colors. These tents have a high neckline with spaghetti straps and, of course, are lined with an opaque tricot. They come in shades of pink and mauve or green, peach and yellow. They are $15 each. These gowns are so attractive that one customer decided to wear them as out-of-the-ordinary dresses during her vacation in Hawaii!

Of course, I can't forget the black negligees. One that is particularly pretty and daring features a black lace bikini pyjama (if you can call a bikini by such a name) that is topped by an unlined, finger-length lace jacket. The jacket features three-quarter sleeves and hook fasteners concealed by black satin bows. This set, which is sure to please any husband, costs $8. Eyelet yoke material titivates a short but full black chiffon gown and negligee set for $30.

I wish I could describe all the attractive garments Mathilda and I saw in that store, but it would be a never-ending task—they hadn't unpacked all their new stock yet! I will be content to mention just one more item, as much as a hint to my loving family as for any other reason. This is a terry robe that will do for after the bath, on the beach or even as patio wear. This shorty gown has a zipper closing and bell sleeves. Both the sleeves and the hem are fringed. The terry itself is gold with brown figuring in an almost baroque pattern. This versatile gown is $22.

Status Quo Backed in Oak Bay

By ALAN WHITE

Only one of the five candidates for council in Oak Bay believes the voters want change and commercial development in the area.

The others three of them incumbents — want the municipality to remain the same, with a few improvements and additional advantages.

Elmer McEwen, 46, of 1006 Newport and a resident of Oak Bay for 10 years, said Thursday "some people here want change and are willing to support someone who is going to bring it."

"We've got a good area and some attempts have been made openly to keep development back. This is not what the people want.

"I think some people want orderly development in the area. The attitude has been building up for this," Mr. MacEwen said.

SPOT ZONING

A member of Victoria city council for four years and owner of a shoe store in Oak Bay, he opposes any form of spot zoning.

"It doesn't seem right that one area should be zoned for different sizes of buildings than other areas," he said.

There should be new apartment buildings in the municipality, he said, to keep up with "the ever-increasing demand" for land and accommodation.

Hugh MacMillan, 45, of 907 Deal, the other first-time bidder for a seat on council, disagrees with the call for development, if it is to be commercial.

"I think as property becomes available by the waterfront, it should be bought up by the municipality and made into parks," he said.

"There should be no more development than there already is in the marina (Oak Bay Marina) and other areas."

Mr. MacMillan, a lawyer who has had no council experience, thinks apartment buildings should be limited to six or seven floors — no high-rises.

"I think that the most important thing for council to do is to maintain Oak Bay the way it is.

"It should be preserved as a residential area unique in Canada.

"It has done its developing."

SEWAGE POLICY

He also opposes dumping of sewage in any form into the sea and favors a full treatment facility. "This will be the most expensive way, but the only satisfactory way," he said.

Incumbents feel the same way about the area:

Alexander Hendry, 58, of 3253 Henderson, said "Oak Bay will always be the prime residential centre of the region."

A veteran of three years on council, he has served on zoning and traffic committees, was chairman of the personnel committee, and Oak Bay representative on the intermunicipal committee and juvenile detention home committee.

He does not want commerical development to intrude on the area and wants to continue with paving and street lighting programs now under way.

Douglas Watts, 47, of 2285 Woodlawn, and a councillor for eight years, wants several specific measures for the municipality.

"We should have effective regional planning to avoid the spoiling influence of sprawling subdivisions. But municipalities should hold final control over zoning for apartments and commercial areas," he said.

He also wants Oak Bay to appoint its own welfare officer to cut down administration costs and "help welfare recipients become dollar earners again."

Mr. Watts is a hydraulic engineer with the provincial water resources service.

Ian Horne, 43, of Beach, a member of council for one year and deputy law clerk to the B.C. legislature when it sits, opposes any change "in the essential nature of the area."

"I don't see any change in the community in the basic approach to most matters."

The area needs some apartment development, but of good quality and not on the waterfront side of Oak Bay, he said.

Teamsters Strike Hi-Fidelity Firm

Teamsters Local 351 has struck Hi-Fidelity Ltd. in a contract dispute which followed recent certification of the union as bargaining agent.

A picket line was outside the company's office at 730 Discovery Friday. The firm rents space there from and does work for Mortifee Munshaw Ltd., a Vancouver-based photographic processing firm.

The walk-out climaxes a five-month effort by teamsters to negotiate a contract with Hi-Fidelity. Employees want wage parity with Mortifee Munshaw in Vancouver where workers are also represented by Local 351.

Nine employees of Hi-Fidelity Ltd. rejected a company offer last month, teamsters organizer James Scott said Friday. The union claims wages offered were 50 cents an hour under Vancouver rates and there were no sick leave benefits.

A company spokesman would make no comment Friday, saying he was awaiting developments.

Strikers say six employees were laid off eight days ago and told the size of the operation was being cut down. Paul Sheirer, the local's business agent, said in Vancouver Friday the move is being interpreted as a lockout.

A government-supervised strike vote Monday favored a strike and Wednesday two of the remaining three employees walked out.

BENNETT REFUTES CHRETIEN CHARGE

Premier W. A. C. Bennett said Friday that Northern Development and Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien doesn't know what he is talking about when he says British Columbia is only interested in the resources and not the native people of the north.

Referring to earlier criticism by the federal minister in response to the B.C. proposal to annex the Yukon and part of the Northwest Territories, Mr. Bennett said:

"He (Mr. Chretien) has been out in B.C. only a couple of weeks. He doesn't even know the answers, never mind the problems."

Strike Action Backed

PENTICTON (CP) — Civic workers in this Okanagan city Thursday voted overwhelmingly in favor of strike action to back contract demands. The 106 city employees, members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, voted 87 per cent in favor of a strike in the government-supervised strike vote.

Hiatus In Rioting Lull Before Storm?

By ROD CURRIE

WASHINGTON (CP)—The absence of civil violence in the United States since April brings hope that the string of bloody and tragic "long, hot summers" is ended.

But to many observers it was but a lull before the storm.

Even some of the country's most highly regarded moderate Negro leaders are warning of the possibility of riots being replaced by guerrilla fighting or even civil warfare.

Still others contend that the relatively "cool" summer of 1968 was just a fluke. To them, the more than 100 April outbreaks following the slaying of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., worked as a safety valve.

All this is speculation. No one knows.

But one thing is sure—Negro enthusiasm for the struggle has not dissipated.

The issue before the Negro community today is whether the goal should be integration, black control of black communities to coexist with white America, or even outright separation with a Negro republic carved out of several southern states as advocated by some extremists.

Traditional Goal

"The traditional goal of integration is as dead as a doornail," says Roy Innis of the Congress of Racial Equality.

But Roy Wilkins of the non-violent National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, says the "idea of abandoning integration as a goal is just so much rhetoric so far."

"Nothing else offers peace and equality as integration does."

Whatever the goal, there is a growing feeling that riots, as with the earlier non-violent civil disobedience, have outgrown their effectiveness.

Even the militants talk more of building black communities and black pride as a stepping stone to black political power.

For one thing, better-trained and better-equipped police have demonstrated that they can move faster and more effectively in riot situations. White public opinion, once generally sympathetic, has hardened into calls for stamping out looting and arson. Most of the choicest slum targets for burning have been burned.

Negroes Suffer Most

And in total it is the Negro who suffers most—in loss of life and property and in injury. Government figures show that of 83 persons killed in last year's riots, about 10 per cent were policemen and firemen and the vast majority of the rest were black civilians.

The martyr images these statistics once brought to the Negro have worn thin.

Sterling Tucker, respected leader of the National Urban League, said recently:

"The real danger is that whites are getting tired of blacks and blacks are getting more frustrated with the slowness of change. We don't have the kind of commitment to justice that America needs and unless she gets it, she's heading for suicide."

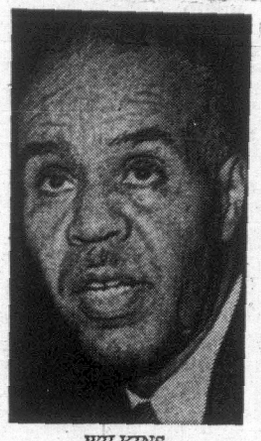
The new swing can be toward ballot-box power, used with considerable success in electing Negroes in the November elections, to a more moderate form of black power or a more sophisticated form of street fighting.

Meanwhile, among the country's 20,000,000-plus Negroes, many of the widely-varied bands of activists have gradually polarized into two rather vaguely-outlined groups.

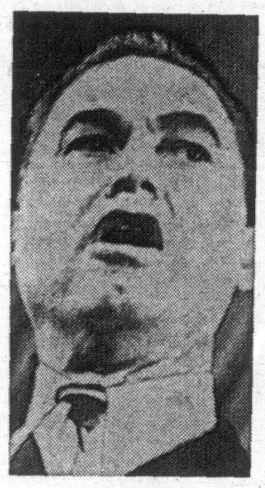
There is evidence that to a limited degree these two groupings are coming together in some sort of tenuous alliance. But in the big cities where they have amalgamated, the militant factions tend to gain the upper hand. Says Tucker:

"We are organizing around our strongest bond, our blackness, and although this will disturb some whites, it will get the black people together."

Whatever the new attitude toward riots, the fact remains that nothing in the more than 100 years since slavery ended has helped the Negro cause more than the riots dating back through 1964, deaths and damage notwithstanding.



WILKINS
. . . peacefully



WALLACE
. . . or violently?

Warfare Next?

The Los Angeles district of Watts, for instance, was raised from obscurity by 11 days of riots in 1965 that resulted in all types of assistance from various organizations and government agencies. When Washington, Detroit, Cleveland and other cities erupted last spring, Watts remained comparatively calm.

But Ocie Pastard, a social worker who watched Watts burn, says:

"The next stage is guerrilla warfare unless some very basic changes in the system of racism are made."

Perhaps it has already started. To many observers of the racial scene the most frightening development in recent years was the outburst of Negro insurrection—as opposed to riot—in Cleveland.

An unknown number of armed Negro snipers shot it out wild-West style with policemen last July. Three white policemen annd three Negroes were shot to death.

In a more recent incident in San Francisco, Mayor Joseph L. Alioto called for a grand jury investigation of the Black Panthers following a gun battle in which three policemen were wounded, two critically, and eight Negroes were arrested. The shooting took place within 100 yards of a police station and Alioto called for investigation "into any organization which advocates shooting of policemen and to which any of the defendants belong."

Danger Still There

Similar organizations of young Negroes to "protect our community from racist cops" have sprung up across the country. Said Robert Tindal, head of the Detroit local of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People:

"It seems there is little likelihood of riots, but there is danger here. If the attitudes of the police don't change they'll find themselves involved in retaliatory shootings for sure."

With "vigilantes" also arming in white areas—and in some cases even women and teen-agers being trained in marksmanship—the potential for disaster is seen by many officials as immense. This capital trembled on the brink of new ghetto outbreaks recently over a police shooting.

Still, in the recent elections the country as a whole overwhelmingly rejected extremism of all kinds, turning away from segregationist George C. Wallace and two radical black candidates—Dick Gregory and Eldridge Cleaver.

Silent Majority

But this was the seldom-heard voice of the so-called "silent majority"—not the few who have it within their influence to build or burn.

And there is evidence that the influence of some of the more moderate groups has slipped. Much of the prestige of King's Southern Christian Leadership Conference seems to have died with him.

The radical Student Non-violent Co-ordinating Committee is little more than a collection of initials since Stokely Carmichael defected to the extremely-radical Black Panthers, the most truly-national militant organization.

The battle is joined against a background of immense accomplishments as measured against the dark days of Little Rock, Ark., school desegregation disturbances and King's sit-ins against segregated buses and lunch counters.

Black Capitalism

What remains to be accomplished, in the eyes of Negro leaders, is equally immense. Millions of dollars spent in welfare, job training, in encouraging black capitalism in the ghettos, in providing low-interest home improvement loans and the like have only scratched thhe surface.

Recent legislation on open housing, voter registration and civil rights in general was widely publicized but the effect was limited. In the South in particular, many Negroes are so cut off by poverty and ignorance from the mainstream of American life that they do not even know of such laws.

In the words of President Johnson: "It is true we have come a long way. We have made a lot of verbal commitments. We have even changed a great many lives for the better. But we are nowhere in sight of where we must be before we can rest."

Recent figures show only about 14 per cent of the Negro pupils in 11 southern states are attending desegregated schools. Negro unemployment is still running at double the rate for whites.

Cites Trouble Spots

The scope for potential trouble outside the northern cities is indicated in a recent report by the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights, an independent agency created by Congress in 1957.

"The failure of federal agencies to enforce civil rights legislation has prevented many Negroes from sharing the benefits of economic advancement in the South," it says.

"The economic status of most Negroes in 16 Black Belt counties of Alabama has not changed much since the commission held a hearing in Montgomery 10 years ago. Testimony at our hearing in 1968 showed that Negroes in those counties still are denied equal opportunity in farm programs, education, employment and health and welfare simply because they happen to be black."

Weddings

Greaves—Holmes

Reverend Laura E. Butler officiated at the delightful double-ring candlelight ceremony in the Metropolitan United Church on October 12th, 1968, at 7:30 p.m., when Barbara Ruth, twin daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Holmes, exchanged marriage vows with Mr. Richard Harold Greaves, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Greaves. Soloist, Mrs. Dawn Benoit, was accompanied at the organ by Mr. Eric Boothroyd. Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose traditional bridal gown of chantilly lace, sabrina neckline with V back, lily-point sleeves, fitted waist, with three lace tiers, a very bouffant skirt falling softly over a hoop and entrain at back. A half crown headpiece of alencon lace trimmed with seed pearls held a veil of silk illusion. She carried a cascade of bridal white rosebuds, stephanotis and gardenias.

Miss Wendy Holmes was maid of honor for her twin sister and wore a floor-length aquamarine peau d'ange, styled with fitted bodice with waist encircled by re-embroidered appliques, tipping the elbows a bridal bow held the detachable train. Misses Mary-Ann Crago and Janet Greaves, sister of the groom, were gowned alike in floor-length marine blue organza over taffeta, their bouffant headpieces of shades of aqua and shoes en tone. They carried free-form bouquets of white shasta mums.

Mr. Gordon Phillips was best man. Ushers were Messrs. Dennis Thompson, Stewart King, Ted Holmes, brother of the bride. The reception was held at the Red Lion Inn. Mrs. Peter Jubb was in charge of the bride's book. Mr. Barry Gollob, Vancouver, proposed the toast.

Following the reception the young couple left on a two-week motor trip to Vancouver, Harrison Hot Springs, Banff, Jasper, Edmonton, Canmrose, Calgary and other points of interest en route. The bride's going-away outfit was a stroller suit in deep sea-teal wool, a lavish ranch mink formed the soft collar of the long jacket that topped a two-piece dress, a mink tall hat complemented the ensemble with brown tone accessories and orchid corsage. Oak Bay is the couple's new home—2233 Brighton Avenue.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Huriburt, Camrose, Alta.; Mr. and Mrs. Barry Daniel, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Madill, Calgary; Mr. and Mrs. A. Metcalfe and Patricia and Ron. Mr. and Mrs. Barry Gollob, Miss Lynn Gollob, Mrs. M. Lamb, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Stewart and sons; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hawke, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Olson, all of Vancouver.

Sandstrom—Pritchard

Reverend C. Lonsdale officiated at a double-ring ceremony in the Victoria St. Columba Anglican Church on October 12, 1968, at 7:30 p.m., when Donna Mary Pritchard, daughter of Mrs. Joyce Little and the late R. H. Pritchard, exchanged wedding vows with Mr. Harold Patrick Sandstrom, son of Mrs. E. Sandstrom and the late Mr. Sandstrom.

Given in marriage by her brother, Dr. R. B. Pritchard, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white organza, trimmed with Italian lace about the sleeves and train, a pearl crown held her chapel veil, and she carried yellow roses. Attendants Mrs. N. Quenville and Mrs. J. Pickup wore pale yellow floor-length organza gowns and carried bronze and yellow mums. Miss Brooke Mauer, junior bridesmaid, wore pale green satin. Headpieces were yellow and lime velvet bows.

Best man was Mr. Jim Kellogg, and Mr. Al Wilson ushered. Following the reception at the Olde England Inn, the couple left for a 10-day honeymoon to the Oregon coast.

Bradley—Bone

Reverend R. G. Thompson officiated at a lovely double-ring ceremony at 7:30 p.m. in First United Church on August 30, 1968, when Lynda Grace Bone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Talbot was married to Mr. Kenneth Frank Bradley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Bradley, all of Victoria. The bride was given in marriage by her stepfather. Miss Wanda Bradley was maid of honor, and Miss Lynda Adams, the bridesmaid. Miss RaeAnna Bradley the junior bridesmaid, and Miss Teresa McCoy the flower girl. The best man was Mr. Bruce Thompson, and ushers were Messrs. Bob Cowden and Jim Arnold. Following a reception at Holyrood House, Mr. and Mrs. Bradley left on a wedding trip to the U.S.A.

Gray—Pringle

On October 12, 1968, in the First United Church, Victoria, Reverend P. K. Louie officiated at the marriage of Eula Rae, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Raymond Pringle, to Mr. Pat Harold Gray, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Gray of Duncan. After returning from their honeymoon in Hawaii, the couple will reside in Vancouver, where Mr. Gray is a management trainee with a large food manufacturer.

MacLuckie—Parfitt

Emmanuel Baptist Church was the setting of a lovely candlelight service on October 19, 1968, uniting in marriage Marlene Patricia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold C. Parfitt, of Victoria, and Mr. Allan James MacLuckie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth G. MacLuckie, of Peterborough, Ontario. Officiating at the double ring ceremony were Reverend Norman Archer and the groom's 93 year old grandfather Reverend James MacLuckie of Broughton-In-Furness, Lancashire, England. Accompanied by the organist Mr. Henry Pluym, the choir of which the bride is a former member, sang "The Lord's Prayer" and "Choral Benediction"; "O' Perfect Love" was sung by Mrs. Howard Patch during the signing of the register. The bride, given in marriage by her father, was radiant in an empire line gown of Chantilly lace featuring lily point sleeves and a graceful train which fell softly from the back neckline. Her illusion chapel length veil misted from a dainty headpiece of organza flowers and she carried a cascade bouquet of gardenias, white roses and stephanotis. Her only jewelry was cultured pearl earrings, gift of the groom. The maid of honor, Miss Linda Parfitt, sister of the bride, and bridesmaids Miss Elizabeth MacLuckie, sister of the groom, and Miss Janet House, cousin of the bride, wore simple A-line gowns of light moss green shantunique. They wore matching bows in their hair and carried bouquets of mums in fall tones. The groom's father Mr. Kenneth MacLuckie acted as best man and the guests were ushered by the bride's cousins Mr. Brent Parfitt, Mr. Ronald Parfitt and Mr. Dick Harwood. The mother of the bride wore an orchid coat and dress ensemble in matiesse with turban entone in tulle, matching shoes, and corsage of Johanna Hill roses. The groom's mother wore a dress of bone lace over gold crepe with fur stole feathered breton hat entone. Her corsage was of Talisman roses.

A reception followed in the Fellowship Hall where the toast to the bride was proposed by the bride's cousin, Dr. David Parfitt, Master of ceremonies was Mr. Robert Patch, Qualicum Beach. Miss Susan Parfitt was in charge of the guest book. The three tiered wedding cake was made by the bride's mother and artistically decorated by Mr. Albert Pluym. For going away the bride changed to a mulberry red herringbone tweed dress and jacket ensemble with tuning velour hat and black patent accessories. A gardenia corsage completed her ensemble. The happy couple drove to San Francisco for their honeymoon and are now residing in Toronto.

Van Schetsen—Roe

Reverend A. G. MacLeod officiated at a double ring ceremony in St. Aidan's United Church on November 9, 1968, when Sandra Louise, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William W. Roe of Oakcrest Drive, exchanged wedding vows with Mr. Andrew Gillis Van Schetsen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gillis Van Schetsen of Vancouver, B.C. Soloist Mrs. M. Sturgeon was accompanied by organist Mrs. Vera Barclay.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length gown of peau d'elegance and lace. A rhinestone butterfly held her shoulder length veil and she carried a bouquet of red and white roses. The maid of honor, Miss Jean Masters, and the bridesmaids, the Misses Catherine Roe and Patricia Roe, wore identical Empire line gowns of pale green peau d'elegance. Their headpieces were of similar fabric edged with veils and they carried bouquets of yellow and white chrysanthemums. Best man was Mr. James Linton, and Messrs. Barry Reid and Chris Reid ushered the guests.

A four tier wedding cake, baked by the groom's father was cut by the newlyweds at the reception held in the Holyrood House. The bridal toast was proposed by Mr. F. E. Easton. For her going away outfit, the bride chose a pale blue knitted suit topped by a camel coat with wolf fur trim and brown accessories. On return from their honeymoon in the United States, Mr. and Mrs. Van Schetsen will make their home in Victoria. Out of town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Gillis Van Schetsen, Master John Van Schetsen, Mr. and Mrs. D. Smith, Master James Smith, Mr. and Mrs. C. Van Dyk and Mr. Jack Van Schetsen, all of Vancouver, B.C.

Ansell—Moore

St. Aidan's United Church was the scene of a double-ring ceremony at 5:30 p.m. on Saturday, November 9, 1968, when Paula Maureen, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. B. Moore, 3812 Quadra Street, became the bride of Mr. William David Ansell, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Ansell of Haney, B.C. Reverend A. G. MacLeod officiated and soloist Mr. John Bray was accompanied by Mrs. Vera Barclay. Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a floor-length gown of white organza with french lace trim. Matching lace trimmed the train which was attached at the shoulders and flowed to the floor. Her four tiered chapel veil of silk tuffe was gathered by a cluster of organza buds. She carried a bouquet of Talisman roses with drops of rose buds and stephanotis. The bride was attended by Miss Rosemary Fogden as Maid of Honor, and bridesmaids Miss Joanne Fogden and Miss Karen McIntosh. They were attired in floor-length empire gowns of printed silk chiffon over blue rust and green satin slips. The headpieces were of matching material gathered with a cluster of petals. They carried bouquets of amber and gold mums. Best man was Mr. Bob Sallis; Messrs. Barry Ansell and Don Ansell ushered the guests.

At the reception held at Holyrood House, the toast to the bride was given by Mr. Clifford Priestley. After dinner, they danced to the music of John Dick and his band.

For her going away outfit the bride chose a green wool suit with bleached muskrat trim, her accessories were navy blue with a yellow orchid. On return from their honeymoon at Harrison, the couple will reside in Victoria.

Hempsall—Cooper

A double ring ceremony was solemnized on August 31st, 1968, at 8 p.m. in the Centennial United Church on Gorge Road, uniting in marriage Davina Jane, daughter of Mr. David H. Cooper, and the late Mrs. Margrethe Cooper, to Mr. David Frank Hempsall, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Hempsall. Reverend Travis officiated, Mr. John Dunbar was soloist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attended by her sister, Mrs. Margo Wuttf as matron of honor, bridesmaids Miss Joanne Pearson and Miss Pat Hempsall, sister of the groom, and ring bearer Ron Crabbe, cousin of the bride. Mr. Gary Boden was best man; ushers were Messrs. Steven Cooper, brother of the bride, Douglas Sammons and Barry McKnight. At the reception that followed at the Carlton Club on Esquimalt Road, Mr. Robert Macmillan proposed the toast to the bride and groom.

Out of town included, Mrs. E. Hempsall, grandmother of the groom, Mr. and Mrs. E. Boden, Mr. and Mrs. A. Cassidy, Mr. and Mrs. G. Boden, and Mr. D. Sammons, all of Winnipeg; Mr. and Mrs. G. We wish to extend our sincere thanks to all our friends, relatives and neighbours in appreciation of their many acts of kindness, cards and flowers, also donations to the Cancer Fund, in the loss of our dear husband and father, August Riquebran. A special thanks to Mrs. Trolin, also the Rev. V. Samson.—(Mrs.) Margaret Riquebran and Family.

We want to express our sincere appreciation to our many friends, for their kindness and sympathy extended to us at the death of our beloved husband and father, Clement Ross Patterson. Also our deepest thanks for the contributions to the Cancer Research Foundation. Special thanks to Rev. J. H. W. McLean, Dr. A. M. Reid, and the nursing staff of St. Joseph's Hospital. — Mrs. Mary Patterson and Family.

The family of the late Mrs. Martha Clear wish to thank their relatives and friends for the beautiful floral tributes, letters, and cards of sympathy. Also a special thanks to Dr. G. Buffam, Mr. and Mrs. W. Olmsted and family of Richardson Manor Rest Home, The Rev. L. Jenner, and A. W. Francis and staff of Haywards Funeral Chapel.

9 IN MEMORIAM

BARNES — In loving memory of my parents Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Barnes Sr. Dad, who passed away Dec. 1st, 1967 and Mum who passed away Sept. 4, 1945.
When we are sad and lonely,
And everything goes wrong.
We seem to hear you whisper,
Cheer up and carry on.
Each time we see your photo
You seem to smile and say
Don't cry, we are only sleeping
We'll meet again some day.
—Sadly missed by your daughter Margaret and son-in-law George Davies and grandchildren.

BARNES — In loving memory of a wonderful Dad and Granddad, Mr. Ernest W. Barnes, who left us so suddenly on Dec. 1st, 1967.
Deep in the heart lies a picture,
Of a loved one laid to rest.
In memory's frame we shall keep it,
Because he was one of the best.
—Frank and family.

BARNES—In loving memory of Dad, Ernest W. Barnes, who passed away Dec. 1st, 1967.
—Remembered by Arthur, Betty and girls.

GOODROW, Bob, who passed away Nov. 30, 1967.
One year has passed since that sad day,
When one we loved was called away;
God took him home—it was His will;
Within our hearts he liveth still.
—Lovingly remembered by Mother and Shirley.

GREXTON—In loving memory of Samuel (Sammy) Grexton, who passed away Nov. 30, 1966.
Gone is the face we loved so dear,
Silent is the voice we loved to hear;
Too far away for sight or speech,
But not too far for thought to reach.
Sweet to remember him who once was here,
And who, though absent, is just as dear.
—Sadly missed by son, Victor, daughter-in-law, Ann, granddaughter, Diane.

GREXTON — In memory of our Father Mr. Samuel J. Grexton who passed away Nov. 30, 1966. His memory is as dear today as in the hour he passed away.
—Remembered always by his daughters, Lillian, Dorothy, Phyllis and their families.

IN MEMORIAM

KNOTT—In loving memory of a wonderful husband and father, Cliff, who passed away Nov. 30, 1967, aged 31 years.

One year has passed since that sad day,
When one we loved was called away;
God took him home—it was His will;
Within our hearts he liveth still.
—Sadly missed by his wife, Pat and children, Judy, Wayne, Sharon, Shelley, Kathleen.

Also, in fond remembrance of a dear sister-in-law, Marlene, sister to Cliff Knott, who died July 18, 1968, aged 28 years.

We cannot, Lord, Thy purpose see,
But all is well that's done by Thee.

—She is often in our thoughts, Pat and children.

THOMPSON — In ever loving memory of my dear Dad, Thomas Thompson, who passed away suddenly November 27th, 1957, also loving Granddad of Edwin Eade and Great Granddad of Thomas D. Eade, George and Larry Eade.
Time and years go swiftly by,
But love and Memories never die.
—Your loving daughter Ena Eade.

WHINCUP—Passed away Nov. 30, 1967, Ernie Whincup.
We miss your warm smile,
your kindly ways.
We miss the things
you used to say,
And when old times
we do recall
It is then
We miss you most of all.
—Lovingly remembered by Hap, Eve and Family.

Over 1800 ft. of living area, mostly covered with expensive carpeting, includes a spacious living room with a "white rubble" 11' fireplace, real leaded windows and facing East to catch the morning sun. A lovely large dining room with built-in glass cabinet. The cleverly designed kitchen with built-in appliances and semwood cabinets has an ample eating area and opens to a large utility room with laundry etc. The master bedroom is huge and could almost accommodate two kingsize beds. A wealth of closets and a bathroom "en suite". There is another large 4-pce. bathroom with off-the-floor toilet and de luxe vanity. Adjoining a second large bedroom. The beautifully walnut panelled den with built-in bookshelves opens to a spacious, cement-floored sundeck overlooking a woodsy landscaped garden. There is a nice heated workshop (easily altered to 3rd bedroom), a big double carport and a part basement for workshop or storage. Feature light fixtures throughout. Just two years old and a "Buy" at $35,500. To view, not "Drive-by" call:

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF ONTARIO

PETITION COMMENCED IN THE DISTRICT OF THUNDER BAY BETWEEN:

SANDRA LORRAINE BELLUZ,
Petitioner,
—and—
LAWRENCE ANDREW BELLUZ
Respondent.

NOTICE TO RESPONDENT

TAKE NOTICE that a Petition for a decree of divorce has been presented to this Court by the Petitioner on the grounds that the Petitioner, for a period of not less than three years immediately preceding the presentation of this Petition, has had no knowledge of or information as to your whereabouts, and, throughout that period, has been unable to locate you, and further that the Petitioner and you have been living separate and apart by reason of your desertion of the Petitioner, for a period of not less than 3 years.

It has been ordered that service of the Petition for Divorce and Notice of the said Petition by this advertisement shall be good and sufficient service of the same on you.

If you wish to oppose the Petition or if you wish other relief, your Answer must be served on the Petitioner or Messrs. Carrel, Pustina & Zelinski, Solicitors, and filed with proof of such service in the office of the Local Registrar of this Court at the Court House, Cameron Street, Port Arthur, Ontario, within forty days after service on you by the publication of this notice.

If you desire you may inspect the Petition for Divorce and Notice of Petition for Divorce at the said office.

In default of serving and filing an Answer as aforesaid, the Petition may be set down for hearing within thirty days of such default at the sittings of this Court at Port Arthur, Ontario, and the Petitioner may proceed to obtain a decree of divorce without further notice to you. Where such decree is granted, details of the same may be obtained from the said Local Registrar's Office at Port Arthur, Ontario.

The address of the Petitioner is 214 Cameron Street, Fort William, Ontario.

THE CORPORATION OF THE CITY OF VICTORIA
NOTICE OF ADVANCED POLL MUNICIPAL ELECTION

PUBLIC NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN TO THE ELECTORS of the Municipality of Victoria that for those qualified Electors signing a statement that they expect to be absent from their voting area on Polling Day or who are, for reasons of conscience, prevented from voting on Polling Day, SATURDAY, 7TH DECEMBER, 1968, an Advanced Poll will be held in the City Clerk's Office, City Hall, Victoria, from 8:30 o'clock a.m. to 5:00 o'clock p.m., on WEDNESDAY, THURSDAY and FRIDAY, 4th, 5th and 6th DECEMBER, 1968.

F. M. WALLER.
RETURNING OFFICER.

APPLICATION FOR A PERMIT UNDER THE POLLUTION CONTROL ACT, 1967.

In accordance with the Supplementary Letters Patent approved by the Provincial Government of British Columbia and issued by the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council on 28th December, 1967, the Regional District of the Capital of British Columbia has been given the function of designing and constructing trunk sewers and sewage disposal facilities in substantial accordance with the "Sanitary Sewerage Study of the Greater Victoria Area" dated June 1966, prepared by Associated Engineering Services Ltd.

For the past 55 years the N.W. Trunk Sewer has actually discharged sewage directly on to the shoreline at Macaulay Point, and the main purpose of this application is to rectify this unsatisfactory and unsanitary situation, by construction of a properly designed long marine outfall into deep water, in accordance with the requirements of the Letters Patent of the Regional District.

I, The Regional District of the Capital of British Columbia of 209 Burnes House, Bastion Square, Victoria, B.C., hereby apply to the Director of Pollution Control for a permit to discharge effluent from a community sanitary sewerage system located at Saanich, Victoria and Esquimalt, into Juan de Fuca Strait, and give notice of my application to all persons affected. The point of discharge shall be located at approximately 4,800 feet south of Macaulay Point. The land upon which the effluent originates is known as Drainage Area 2 in the Greater Victoria Sewerage Study, including parts of Saanich, Victoria and Esquimalt municipalities. The quantity of effluent to be discharged is as follows:

Maximum rate 39.6 C.F.S. 14,625 Imp. gal. p.m.

Maximum 12-hour discharge 8,000,000 Imp. gal.

Average 24-hour discharge 12,000,000 Imp. gal.

The operating season during which the effluent will be discharged is continuous. The average characteristics of the effluent discharged shall be equivalent to or better than: Suspended solids 270 ppm, BOD 275 ppm, pH 7 to 8 and Coliform bacteria median MPN of 30×10^6/100 ml. The type of treatment to be applied to the waste before discharge is as follows: comminution and dilution to achieve the P.C.B. standard at the shoreline of a median MPN of 1000 coliforms per 100 ml during period May to September etc., as laid down in P.C.B. letter dated 13th April, 1966.

I, R. W. Long hereby certify that this application does not conflict with the local by-laws of the Regional District of the Capital of British Columbia.

A copy of this application was posted on the ground on the 29th day of November, 1968.

This application is to be filed with the Director of Pollution Control, Parliament Buildings, Victoria, B.C. Any person whose rights would be affected in accordance with the Act may, within 30 days of the date of the application, or within 30 days of the date of publication in The British Columbia Gazette or in a newspaper, or, where service is required, within 30 days of the serving of a copy of the application, file with the Director an objection in writing to the granting of a permit stating how he is affected.

Date: November 29th, 1968.

(Signed) R. W. LONG.
Secretary-Treasurer,
Regional District of the Capital of British Columbia.

War Flares At Peace Conference

MONTREAL (CP) — A small group of delegates to the Hemispheric Conference to End the Vietnam War, demanding the aims and scope of the conference be widened, plunged a plenary session of the meeting into 15 minutes of chaos Friday when they stormed the platform and took over microphones.

It took a belated arrival by representatives of the National Liberation Front, political arm of the Viet Cong, to restore order and a sense of unity.

The conference gave a standing ovation to Hoang Bich Son and Nguyen Van Ba as the two mounted the platform in downtown St. James United Church.

The discussion over conference aims erupted as several factions appeared to want the conference to embrace their particular problems.

"We didn't come here to hear how bad the American system is," Mike Smith, from the California-based Black Panther movement, told the meeting.

"We want to talk about organizing GI strengthening the draft resistence and things like figuring out what to do about the CIA."

Cong Force Suffers Mauling

SAIGON (AP) — United States troops mauled a North Vietnamese battalion of about 400 men in a jungle battle near the Cambodian border, the U.S. command said today.

Elsewhere 140 captured Viet Cong were turned loose on the streets of three South Vietnamese cities—Saigon, Pleiku and Da Nang—in a government effort to win over guerrilla troops and strengthen Saigon's position at the Paris peace talks.

South Vietnamese officials say 246 Viet Cong have been released since early 1966, but they say more than 20,000 Communist troops, including 6,000 North Vietnamese soldiers, are being held in prison camps in South Vietnam.

Military spokesmen said 78 North Vietnamese regulars were killed in the fighting near the frontier outpost of Loc Ninh three miles from Cambodia, northwest of Saigon.

Headquarters said seven Americans were killed and 16 were wounded in the latest of a series of border battles in which the air cavalrymen say they killed 525 North Vietnamese this week.

A handful of rocket and mortar attacks were reported today outside the border area.

Spokesmen said Tay Ninh was lightly mortared Friday night, and a big marine supply base just north of Da Nang received rocket fire early today. Light casualties and damage were reported.

Half-Way Mark In Seal Sales

The B.C. Tuberculosis-Christmas Seal Society has reached the halfway mark in its Victoria campaign.

Eric Hall, chairman of the Victoria Christmas Seal Committee, said Friday the latest returns stand at slightly more than $20,000. The society hopes to raise $40,000 in this city.

Wheat Sale Benefits B.C.

Waldo Skillings, British Columbia's Minister of Industrial Development, Trade and Commerce, Friday said the recent sale of Canadian wheat to China "is good news for British Columbia."

He said most of the 1,500,000 long tons of wheat will be shipped to the Chinese mainland through B.C. ports.

In his monthly report on provincial business activity, Mr. Skillings said the wheat shipments would continue to next July.

"Last December $150,000,000 worth of wheat was sold to China and delivered in the first 10 months of 1968. The most recent sale worth about $115,000,000 means continued revenue for British Columbia ports and transportation companies."

Model of Fraser To Aid Conclave

A model of the Fraser River is waiting in the basement of the social sciences building of the University of Victoria for a national conference here next week.

It will see the light of day at the Empress Hotel for a four-day meeting of the Canadian Council of Resource Ministers starting Monday.

The model shows the land mass extending from the source of the Fraser down to its basin, extending to the southern tip of Vancouver Island.

"This gives an idea of what the river bed looks like," say John Bryant, senior academic assistant of the university's geography department.

"You can't get much of an idea of the land mass from looking at a map. This model tries to show the topography of the area, to explain where and how the river flows."

TOOK THREE MONTHS

Mr. Bryant constructed the model out of styrofoam during the past three months. It will be part of a display depicting the history and various physical aspects of the Fraser.

Layers of styrofoam show the differences in height of land between the river's source and mouth—most of it from 6,000 to 10,000 feet above sea level.

Contours are exaggerated to emphasize the gash cut through a maze of mountain peaks by the Fraser as it flows to the sea.

ALMOST AERIAL

The model will be tilted on its plywood base to give an almost aerial, three-dimensional look at the change in level as the river drops to the delta.

A display of photographs—some from the provincial archives and others from a department collection—will show some of the historical development of the Fraser.

"There are so many different aspects of life on the Fraser—salmon fishing, the gold rush, flooding, the early exploration," Mr. Bryant said.

"Then we can use the model to study future development, such as water and flood control, or hydro."

The display will be moved back to the geography department and expanded as a physical description for cartography (mapping) and climatology courses.

Canadian Satellite Pad Would Cost $1,000,000

MONTREAL (CP) — Two Canadian scientists said Wednesday Canada can have its own satellite launching pad and rise to the ranks of a space-age power for about $1,000,000.

I. A. Stewart, 32, operations manager of the National Research Council's Churchill research range in Manitoba, disclosed his plans for a Canadian launching pad at the first International Aerospace Exposition here.

The Montreal-born aerospace expert said he believes the Churchill range could be converted at the cost of about $1,000,000 to put Canada among the modern satellite powers.

"Canadian scientists have already demonstrated their proficiency in producing highly effective satellites, as witness the success of Alouette I and II," he said.

"But to put these satellites into space, we have had to appeal to the generosity of the United States for the use of a launching pad."

"This is a blow to our national pride, particularly when we realize that the cost of converting the rocket range at Churchill from an upper atmosphere research station to a satellite launching basis would be only $1,000,000.

"The additional technical and physical facilities required at Churchill would be a one-time expenditure."

R. S. Rettie, head of the space research facilities at the National Research Council, said he concurs "in general terms" with the views expressed by Mr. Stewart.

"I think his plan is feasible and within the range of reasonable Canadian scientific expectations."

Mr. Stewart said the more than 200 on staff at the range, only one is from the United States.

The research range is jointly operated by Canada and the United States.

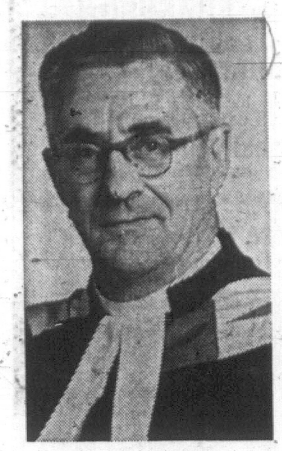
NEWS OF CITY CHURCHES

Christmas Starts Sunday



DR. PARSONS
... at St. John's

The Christmas season begins in most churches Sunday with the lighting of the first candle on the Advent wreath.

The wreath is a circle of green signifying God's eternity; the four candles to be lit between now and Christmas Day are symbolic of the light which came into the world through Jesus Christ.

Different churches give different names to the candles, but generally speaking, they symbolize prayer, penitence, peace, humility, forgiveness and joy.

In Metropolitan United Church at the 11 a.m. service, the first candle, symbolizing Forgiveness, will be lit by Marilyn Dymond of the CGIT group.

The Sanctuary Choir, directed by Frank Tupman, will sing the Advent anthem, Praise.

★ ★ ★

St. John's Anglican, First United and First Baptist churches will unite for a service of worship in St. John's sanctuary Sunday at 7 p.m.

Rev. Dr. S. J. Parsons, newly-appointed executive director of Greater Victoria Council of Churches and former minister of Centennial United Church, will speak on The Christian Community in Victoria.

The service will be jointly conducted by Canon Grahame Baker of St. John's, Rev. Robert Morris of First United and Rev. John Watson of First Baptist, with the choirs of all three churches participating.

★ ★ ★

Brother Geoffrey of the Anglican order of St. Francis in New Guinea, will preach at the 9:30 and 11 a.m. services in St. John's church.

The order has its headquarters at Cerne Abbas, a village located in the rural countryside of Dorset, England.

At 7:30 p.m., Brother Geoffrey will give the evensong address in St. Barnabas Anglican Church, Begbie Street, followed by a reception at 8:15 p.m.

★ ★ ★

In First United Church Sunday at 11 a.m., Rev. Robert Morris will give the first of a series of Advent sermons entitled The Star of Faith.

The choir, directed by W. H. Gregory, will present the anthem, Let All Mortal Flesh Keep Silence. Tom Lincoln will be heard in the solo, Hold Thou My Hand.

J. W. Stephen will share in the conduct of the service.

★ ★ ★

Members and friends of St. Andrew's and Caledonian Society will attend a special St. Andrew's Day service in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Sunday at 7 p.m.

"All friends of Scotland are welcome," says the minister, Very Rev. J. Lewis McLean, DD.

Eleanor Duff will be soloist and the choir will present the anthem, Bless The Lord, O My Soul.

★ ★ ★

For his first Advent sermon, Rev. E. W. MacQuarrie will discuss In The Fullness of Time in both Garden City and Wilkinson Road United churches.

The Garden City Junior Choir, at the 10 a.m. service, will sing Dream of Christmas and Listen, Shepherd, Listen.

The service at Wilkinson Road starts at 11:15 a.m.

★ ★ ★

Ken Jennings will speak on the work of the Gideons in the Church of St. Aidan, 3705 Richmond Road, Sunday at 11 a.m.

Evelyn Hayward will sing the solo The Publican, and the choir will be heard in the anthem, Sing Alleluia Forth.

At the evening worship, Rev. A. G. MacLeod will speak on the subject, Fear in Check.

★ ★ ★

Everything is Love will be the subject of Rev. Emma Smiley, DD, in Victoria Truth Centre Sunday at 11 a.m. In the evening she will speak on Gods That Change.

A healing ministry will be held in the church Tuesday at 3 p.m.

★ ★ ★

E. W. Abraham of Victoria will speak at a meeting of the British Israel World Federation (Canada) in the Dominion Hotel Sunday at 3 p.m.

His subject will be Genesis: Key to the Bible.

★ ★ ★

Margaret Bissenden will be soloist with the choir at Oak Bay United Church Sunday at 9:30 and 11 a.m. when the anthems, Christ Is Coming and Love Divine will be sung.

Rev. Alexander Calder will speak on the subject God Is Love.

There will be a presbytery meeting in church Wednesday at 3 p.m.

ANTICIPATING Christmas, youngsters at Christ Church Cathedral assist in the production of 200 puddings to be sold at annual tea and bazaar in the Memorial Hall next Saturday at 2 p.m. Supervising operations is Mrs. C. C. Riach, treasurer of Cathedral women's parish guild, who has made puddings for the cause since 1963. Victoria Salvationists Leaving for Australia

Victoria Salvationists will bid farewell this weekend to Col. and Mrs. Leslie Pindred on the eve of their departure for eastern Australia.

Since 1965, Col. Pindred has been field secretary for the Salvation Army in Canada and Bermuda with headquarters in Toronto. Previously he was divisional commander for southern British Columbia.

Next Wednesday, Col. and Mrs. Pindred will fly to Sydney, New South Wales, where the colonel has been appointed chief secretary for the army's operations in eastern Australia.

Mrs. Pindred will assist in this work.

The couple will conduct services in the Victoria Citadel, 757 Pandora Avenue, Sunday at 11 a.m. and in the Esquimalt Citadel, 1245 Esquimalt Road, at 7 p.m.

Col. Pindred was commissioned at the Salvation Army Officers' Training College, Toronto, in 1933. Later he served in a pioneer gold rush area of northern Ontario.

For six years he commanded the Temple Corps in Toronto and for a further six years was in charge of youth work in the Metro Toronto area.

Before coming out to B.C. as divisional commander, Col. Pindred was secretary of the army's board of evangelism and responsible for the recruiting of young men and women as officers.

Special Service Observed By St. Matthias

St. Matthias Anglican Church will keep the beginning of the Advent season with special services Sunday.

"In the old liturgies of the church, the Advent ceremonies made a vivid preparation for the coming of our Lord," says Canon Jack Rogers, "and our Advent carol service is planned with this thought in mind."

The carol service, to be held at 4 p.m., will include some of the promises of the prophets of the Old Testament as they looked for the coming of the Messiah.

This will be expressed through scripture reading and song leading up to the great advent hymn of prayer, O Come, O Come, Emmanuel.

The beginning of the coming of Christ will be expressed in Mary's song of dedication, The Magnificat, followed by the lighting of the Advent wreath.

DARK TO LIGHT

Writes Canon Rogers:

"The Advent wreath symbolizes man's development from darkness to light, and also the coming of light into the world through the prophets of old, the word of God, the lives of dedicated persons and the church.

"In the darkness of the church, the light will be brought from the altar to the candles on the wreath, and each will be lighted in turn to show the coming of light and its fulfilment in the birth of Christ."

Advent music will be sung under the direction of Eric Edwards, choir director and organist.

'JUST WAITING' NOT CHURCH PLAN

TORONTO (CP) — The United Church will not stand still while it waits for union with the Anglican Church of Canada, says a Montreal theologian in the current issue of the United Church Observer.

Dr. George Johnson of Montreal Theological College said it is unlikely union negotiations will bypass the urgent social issues: poverty, world population trends and the pill, peace in Vietnam and Nigeria, peace for all men.

"It cannot be repeated too often that union is not for an improved administration. It is not a convenience but a response to the will of God. . . ."

So the movements for reformation and change in church structures and programs must go on side by side with the patient and often wearing processes of working out a union. We must neither get impatient with our negotiating teams nor become unwilling to experiment and make changes here and now. . . ."

LAURIER SAUMUR
... travelling Witness

Witnesses Greet Visitor

A lively French-Canadian who gave up a lucrative tool-making business to devote his full time to the ministry of Jehovah's Witnesses will arrive here next week.

Laurier Saumur, travelling supervisor of nearly 10,000 Witnesses in British Columbia, will oversee final arrangements for a convention to be held in S. J. Willis Junior Secondary School Dec. 6, 7 and 8.

He will speak on God's Way Is Love at a public meeting winding up the convention on Sunday, Dec. 8, at 3 p.m.

With his wife, Yvette, Mr. Saumur has been travelling the province for more than two years.

"In our 19 years of marriage, we have never lived in one spot for more than a few weeks. We're always on the move, visiting scattered congregations in Quebec, the Maritimes, Ontario and B.C."

Mr. Saumur described himself as a family man without a home.

Religious Magazine Loses Funds

MONTREAL (CP) — The religious magazine Maintenant has had its funds cut off because it is too controversial for its publishers, the Dominican fathers, the magazine's director said this week.

Rev. Vincent Harvey said the monthly magazine, which broke traditional barriers with articles on birth control, separatism and socialism, will die next month unless it receives public support.

Father Harvey said he has no quarrel with the Dominicans' claim last week that it had insufficient funds to support the magazine any longer. The order already has spent $96,000 on the publication since it began almost seven years ago.

"But I doubt if this is the real issue. The Dominican establishment, as all other establishments, is very conservative. Maintenant didn't address itself only to the clergy but also to the laity."

Since the papal document on contraception was released, the publication has been debating birth control heavily.

The magazine has a monthly circulation of approximately 8,000.

'Apparitions Warning Of Worldly Disaster'

A Victoria man says the 1961 1965 Marian Apparitions at Garabandal, Spain, are a message and a warning to all peoples of the earth, regardless of their religious beliefs.

"The apparitions occurred as often as four times a day and were extended over a four-year period," says A. J. Shepherd, R.R. 2, Victoria.

"Although the appearances of the Virgin exceeded by far those of La Salette (1854), Lourdes (1858) and Fatima (1917), Her message is identical with all received during the past century.

"It is believed, and not without just cause, that the greatly prolonged and numerous apparitions of Garabandal are due solely to the Holy Mother's grave concern for the fate of the present world because of a supernatural disaster that is, in her words, imminent."

Mr. Shepherd says there is a world-wide movement making known facts on the Mystery of Garabandal through the medium of pictures, commentaries and lectures.

"They are directly related to the warning," he says.

SPEAKER in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Sunday at 11 a.m. will be Rev. Bruce Molloy, associate minister. His subject is A Great Hope, In Common. New members will be received at the service.

Civic Faces Turn Red; Ramsay Wins Accolade

By JIM HUME
Times City Hall Reporter

City officials, elected and hired, who believe in keeping public business from the public learned a rude lesson this week.

At least they should have learned a lesson.

As long as three weeks ago Mayor Hugh Stephen and several members of council had decided that the taxpayers would have the final say on the convention centre. But for some strange reason they were all reluctant to make their views known. They were also reluctant to take the wraps off the discussion results with the CPR. As a result aldermanic candidate Eric Charman got himself a lot of newspaper ink by calling for a decision which had already been made but not publicized.

Hume

Mayor Stephens' subsequent statement came limping along to boost Mr. Charman's ego and send him chortling back into print with the boast that he had council on the run.

In fact Mr. Charman's demands achieved nothing, but, because Mayor Stephen had fluffed his cue lines, they had the appearance of achieving a great deal.

REMEMBER TILTS

And, unfortunately, voters have a tendency to remember tilts at the established administration rather than the facts.

All we can say in retrospect is repeat the age-old advice that the people should be kept informed, and that by telling taxpayers just what is going on behind the scenes many an embarrassing situation can be avoided.

And finally, thank goodness for Ald. Hugh Ramsay, the only alderman to date to put the entire issue clearly into perspective and tell the people what they should have been told long ago.

Some weeks ago it was stated in this column, with regret, that Ald. Ramsay would not be seeking re-election this year. That forecast is now an established fact — and more's the pity.

When the forecast was first made it was noted that the council was losing one of its strongest men. That statement can now be repeated with the strongest emphasis.

SOLID VICTORY

Last Thursday, in addition to his clarification of the convention centre issue, Ald. Ramsay won a solid victory in human relations by reversing a finance committee recommendation that Christmas bonuses to welfare families be held to a $10 maximum.

Articulately, quietly, Ald. Ramsay insisted that the city administration should show a little Christian charity during the Christmas season.

He won his point easily in spite of some surprising claims from Ald. Lily Wilson and Ald. Clyde Savage that youngsters in welfare families were not really hard done by.

Come January 1 and a new city council and Ald. Ramsay's sound commonsense approach to problems is going to be missed.

ELECTION FRONT

All is fairly quiet on the election front after the brief but soon aborted flurry early in the week.

But with only five days of electioneering to go we can expect the tempo to be stepped up starting Monday. Let's hope so, anyway, because it would be nice to know just what the aldermanic hopefuls are thinking about civic issues.

Or are they going to claim that there are no real issues to face?

A few suggestions, just in case they are thinking that way.

They could take a stand on deep-sea outfalls versus treatment plants. That's always a topical subject and one calculated to make friends and enemies whichever way they jump.

They could trot out their theories on the way the regional district hospital board is haggling over hospital sites and suggest that religious factions drop their differences.

And they could come out solidly for one hospital board to run all hospitals, a sound suggestion but one calculated to raise the hackles of board members now running our two major hospitals.

CITY HALL VOTE

They could win the city hall vote, always an influential one, by condemning city council's decision to open city hall on Dec. 27 thus depriving employees of an extra day's holiday.

They would lose the taxpayers' vote if they took that stand, of course. But then, not many taxpayers vote in off-mayoralty years while city employees will be out with a close to 100 per cent ballot casting effort.

The could launch a "save the Crystal" plea and win a bundle of ballots while setting the city back 20 years.

Or they could promise to reduce taxes.

During the next five days we can expect one or all of the topics to be touched on, but lightly. Politicians like to be friendly before elections, not controversial.

In addition, to be really controversial you have to know your subject, and there's a sneaky feeling that apart from the two incumbents seeking re-election the candidates are not too well up on civic affairs.

SHELFORD
... likes egg board

Egg Monopoly Warning Given

By HUMPHRY DAVY

Agricultural Minister Cyril Shelford said Friday he agreed in principle on establishing a national egg marketing board as long as it did not lead to a monopoly.

The establishment of a national agency was announced by Federal Agricultural Minister H. A. Olson Friday following a conference of provincial ministers in Ottawa.

It would provide stable and reasonable returns to producers and provide a dependable supply of quality eggs to consumers at stable prices, he said.

It would also foster a strong, efficient and economic poultry industry.

The scheme involves 175,000 egg producers in Canada.

While in favor of a national agency, Mr. Shelford made it clear he would have to take a position against any risk of monopolies taking control of provincial egg quotas.

"The province must remain in control of egg production quotas."

HATES MONOPOLIES

"I would hate to see monopolites control food production. Consumers would be sure to suffer," he said.

The minister, who attended the Ottawa conference, said the jurisdiction problems associated with the operation of the marketing agency have yet to be worked out.

They could be met either through a delegation of powers from the provinces or through contractual arrangements between provincial market agencies and the national agency, he said.

The proposal will be discussed in deatil with the representatives of egg producers.

WITH INTEREST

The minister said the trend is towards establishing national marketing agencies and the Ottawa experiment will be watched with interest by other provincial marketing boards.

Did Early Men Have Religion?

Was prehistoric man only a brutal, club-wielding moron, or did he already possess a deep and often subtle sense of religion?

The question was discussed by Rev. Leslie Wallwork, minister of Cordova Bay and Gordon Head United churches, in the Gordon Head church Wednesday night.

Mr. Wallwork said archeological findings and anthropological research disclosed that through animism early man sensed the world as basically "alive" and pervaded by spirit or mana.

The basic question set before man was "Is the universe alive or dead?"

"Animism was the earliest Yes to the former and could have led man to a fully religious view of life in which every aspect of existence could be experienced as God-filled and the kingdom of heaven seen as being here and now."

FIRST OF SERIES

Mr. Wallwork was giving the first of a series of public talks on Great Religions of the World.

"This is one world with one god," he said, "and, if we are to learn to understand each other, we must try to understand our neighbor's deepest beliefs."

In his second talk, to be given at Cordova Bay United Church Thursday at 730 p.m., Mr. Wallwork will discuss Hinduism — one of the oldest religions in the world.

His third talk, Dec. 12, will be on the subject of Buddhism.

Priests Making Demands

PARIS (AP) — First it was the students. Now Roman Catholic priests of France are demanding a voice in running their own institutions, plus the eventual right to get married.

The aspirations of the priest movement are explained in a petition, or collective letter as they call it. The letter is addressed to the Roman Catholic hierarchy in France.

More than 150 priests, mostly the young, have signed the letter, including some well-known and experienced clergymen.

The letter was the second affirmation within five days of the old saying that the "Catholic Church in France is French first and Catholic second."

The first sign was the recent advice of the Assembly of Bishops to married couples not to follow the Pope's birth control rules to the letter, but rather to choose the least "bad thing" among conflicting duties.

Aside from getting married — maybe someday — the petitioning priests want to have regular salaried outside jobs, which they say would make them responsible for their own support.

But first they want a foundation for continuous dialogue between themselves and their elders and superiors.

Among the questions they wish to discuss with the church's establishment in France are "Priest of whom? Why be priests? How should we be priests?"

The letter said the priests are too dependent upon the present church structure. They call this "insupportable," in that it prevents them from being responsible for their own lives.

Mid-Week Services Planned at Duncan

DUNCAN — Trinity Lutheran Church announced plans today to hold mid-week Advent services beginning Wednesday at 1:30 p.m.

There will be three services altogether.

The second and third services will take place Dec. 11 and 18. All three will deal with Old Testament prophecies on the coming of Christ.

Before the Magistrate

"You're an extremely privileged young man and it's a brazenly inexcusable offense for a boy that has been overindulged," Magistrate William Ostler told a 19-year-old shoplifter Friday.

A week ago Stephen Chu Kin Sum, 1401 Hamilton, pleaded guilty to shoplifting $114.60 worth of clothes from Woodwards. He also pleaded guilty of possession of $31 worth of stolen clothes from The Bay.

Friday he was given a suspended sentence on the theft charge and sentenced to one day in jail and fined $500 on the possession offense.

"Anything but jail is extremely charitable for this brazen theft," said the magistrate. "I accept the recommendation of the probation officer only because the Crown charitably associates itself with it."

Earlier, Sum told the court he had been in the country from Hong Kong for three months. The magistrate noted Sum's parents sent him clothes, books and money and yet he stole from the shops.

He was ordered to post a $500 one year good behavior bond.

Three persons arrested in last weekend's drug raid appeared Friday for election and plea.

Ott Misler, 28, and Wolfgang Mitsch, 25, both of Ucluelet, and represented by lawyer Marney Stevenson, elected trial by magistrate on a charge of possession of marijuana. They pleaded not guilty and trial date was fixed for Dec. 11.

Robert Beith Stark, 25, of 4975 Cordova Bay, represented by lawyer David Skillings, was remanded without plea to Dec. 3 on a charge of trafficking in marijuana.

A man who pleaded guilty to nine charges of false pretences was sentenced to three months in jail.

James C. Hatlen, of Prince George, also pleaded guilty to obtaining lodgings by fraud.

Court was told he cashed worthless cheques totalling $257.72 at local stores in November. He also ran up a bill of $157.84 at a motel and left without paying.

"I realize the terrible blunder I've made and I'd like to make restitution," Hatlen said.

Magistrate Ostler said he felt mercifully disposed towards the accused and said he had originally considered probation at the time when only two of the charges had been brought forward.

"But this is such a program of bad cheques," he said.

Hatlen reminded the court he had turned himself in and initiated the charges.

Allen Lutes, 39 Gorge, was remanded to Dec. 6 for sentence after pleading guilty to possession of an offensive weapon.

Court was told the accused was drunk early Wednesday and pounded on a door opposite to his motel suite. He was refused entrance but continued to bang. When the door opened a second time Lutes appeared with a carving knife in his hand and accused the tenant of harboring a woman inside.

Defence attorney Cal Becker asked the magistrate for a presentence report to be prepared.

A Youbou couple who last week pleaded guilty to shoplifting close to $400 worth of good from city department stores both received suspended sentences.

Alfonsas Jakovickas, 43, and his wife Maria, 40, were ordered to post $500 one-year good behavior bonds. The husband was also sentenced to one day in jail and fined $400.

The Wonderful World of Animals

By DR. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: Slippery, my salamander, has been acting pretty dopey lately. I think he wants to hibernate. Shall I help him out by sticking him in the refrigerator? If this is a good idea I could hide him in the vegetable crisper and I don't think Mom would even notice.—L.F.

DEAR L.F.: Should Slippery's sleepy demeanor be cue to preparation for hibernation, then relegating him to the refrigerator might be acceptable if he were free of disease. His hideaway in the crisper should contain fragments of damp sponge to keep him hydrated. But before slipping Slippery into cold storage, be sure he isn't actually sick. Only a healthy, well-fed animal can survive hibernation. Ideally, the animal designed for this long, deep sleep should be well fed until 48 hours beforehand. Allow two days without food so there will be no indigested food remaining in his stomach or intestine to cause serious trouble.

★ ★ ★

DEAR DR. MILLER: My young kitten, Sachet, has terribly long, sharp nails. I shudder to think what they will be like when she grows up! But right now they are bad enough to leave wounds on me and on all my furniture. I would like to trim them but have been informed to do this to a young cat will stunt its growth. If this is true why is it and how long do I have to wait?—N.R.

DEAR N.R.: You have been misinformed. Sassy Sachet will not suffer from stunting—nor in any other respect—if the hooked tips of her nails are carefully clipped off. Fortunately, you do not have to wait at all.

★ ★ ★

DEAR DR. MILLER: I would like to take my poodle across the country with me by plane. She is a miniature and sits nice and quietly on my lap for hours at a time. Everybody says I can't have her sitting with me but have to stick her in a box in the baggage compartment! I called an airline and they said this was so. What can I do about this? I simply won't go by plane at all if I can't keep Poo with me.—B.A.

DEAR B.A.: Try calling another airline. At least one airline—one of the biggest—now allows canines coach or first class status.

★ ★ ★

DEAR DR. MILLER: My pet lamb had a lot of trouble and finally died. A post mortum showed he died of bladder stones. Is this common? Is there anything I could have done to prevent it?—E.F.

DEAR E.F.: Urinary Calculi (mineral deposits in the bladder) are quite common in feedlot lambs, less so with the home variety; probably because the diet is slightly different. Lamb rations high in the mineral phosphorus tend to lead to the formation of these deposits. So obviously the effort should be made when feeding a lamb (for petting or pelting), to minimize the phosphorous content in the diet.

★ ★ ★

DEAR DR. MILLER: Two years ago was the first and only time I ever used Rudolph, my roller canary, for breeding purposes. It turned out to be a big mistake as he became quite beastly from then on. Hardly ever would he have anything to do with me except for a mean peck now and then. A friend wants to breed him this coming spring to her hen because he is such a beautiful songster. What have I got to lose?—J.R.

DEAR J.R.: Not much. And if rude Rudolph comes through, you should gain a new feathered friend who might—over a period of time—mellow Rudy a little.

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

Great Mistake by U.K. Naval Captain

By BOB BOWMAN

Washington Irving, the U.S. author who created the sleepy character Rip Van Winkle, was asleep at the switch himself or the U.S. might own half of Vancouver Island. That story will be told on the appropriate day. However, Nov. 30 is the anniversary of a dreadful mistake made by a British naval officer, and probably prevented Canada from owning Pacific coast territory as far south as the Columbia River.

Bowman

The Astor Fur Trading Company of New York had established a fur-trading post near present-day Portland, Oregon. It could not get any supplies during the War of 1812 and so it was sold to the North West Company of Montreal whose fur-traders were very active on the west coast.

However, the British government, not knowing about the transaction, sent a warship around Cape Horn to capture Fort Astoria as it was called. The captain, William Black, was greatly disappointed when he arrived on Nov. 30, 1813, and saw the British flag flying over the fort. He wanted the glory of capturing Astoria, and perhaps considered the possibility of getting some booty from the furs which he expected to find there.

He considered the situation until Dec. 12 and then decided to make a show of force. He landed his 120 officers and men from HMS Raccoon, paraded them around the flagpole, hauled down the British flag, hoisted the American flag, then hauled it down, and hoisted the British flag again. Now he had "captured" the fort.

When the War of 1812 ended, Britain and the U.S. agreed to return to each other all territory that had been taken by military action. Britain claimed the area as far south as the Columbia River because Fort Astoria had been acquired through a commercial transaction. But the Americans replied "Oh, no, your navy captain, Black, took it by military force" and had plenty of witnesses to prove it. So the U.S. got the states of Oregon and Washington. Otherwise the Columbia River might be "the St. Lawrence of the Pacific" today.

Other events on Nov. 30:

1624 — Order of Baronets of Nova Scotia was proclaimed by King James.

1696 — St. John's, Newfoundland, was captured by French under Pierre LeMoyne d'Iberville.

1782 — Britain and U.S.A. agreed on terms to end American Revolutionary War.

1824 — Ground was broken for the Welland Canal.

1829 — Welland Canal was opened.

1852 — Robert Campbell left Fort Simpson to snowshoe 3,000 miles to find a bride.

1922 — New Brunswick passed legislation so automobiles would drive on right hand side of the road instead of the left.

THE DRIVING TASK

By

RALF COSSEY, Certified Teacher (Smith Institute) Windsor Driving School

The objectives of this series is to present the best available information for the identification and control of human factors that impair driving ability.

The human element in traffic collisions cannot be overstressed. Full responsibility for control of the vehicle rests with the driver, not with engineers or enforcing agencies.

To drive safely the driver must see what is ahead of him, beside him and behind him. 360 degree awareness is essential. He must understand what he sees, decide on what he will do depending on what he sees and understands, then carry out his decision. The entire series of events may happen in a split second.

'Homes Burned For Reasons Of Health'

Indians' homes at the north end of Vancouver Island were burned because they were uninhabitable, J. V. Boys, Indian Affairs regional director for B.C.-Yukon, said Friday.

"This was done for health reasons," he said.

Mr. Boys denied allegations made in the House of Commons Friday by Comox-Alberni MP Richard Durante that relocated Indians' homes were burned so that they could not return to them.

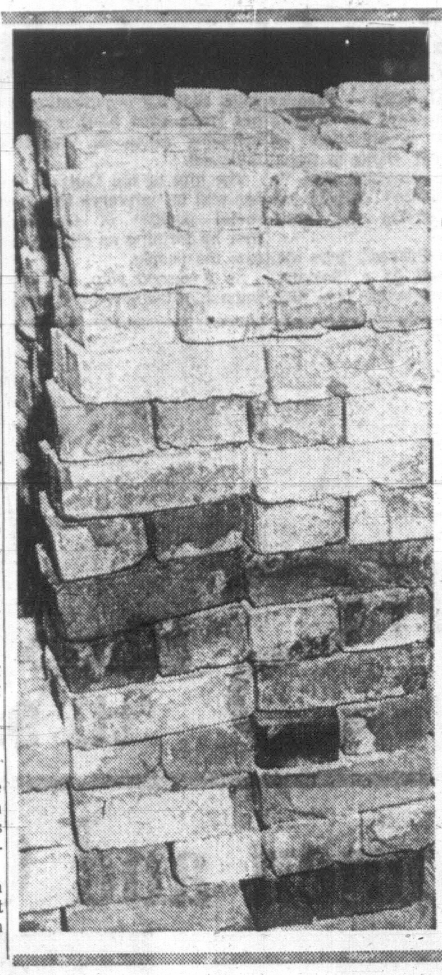
Mr. Durante claimed that many Indians on northern Vancouver Island had been relocated against their wishes. He said they had gone from isolated areas on to the Tsulquate Reserve near Port Hardy.

He said he learned of the burning incident while visiting northern parts of his riding earlier this week.

Mr. Boys said Mr. Durante had been misinformed.

"I have checked this out. When a house is supplied at the Tsulquate Reserve, the Indian affected signs a release on his —I can't call it a house—shocking shack to the agency.

Mr. Boys said the relocation was "voluntary and without coercion" and took place in 1963.



New Is 'Old' With Bricks

Gordon Smith has bricks . . . 200,000 of them give or take a few thousand.

But he's not giving them away. He's selling them as he demolishes the old North Ward School on Douglas St. He paid the city $1,877 for the privilege.

By a rough estimate, the old bricks will sell for $14,500 — that's half the cost of the whole building when it was built in 1894, not counting the extra $1,200 for repairs two years later.

The brick man isn't having any trouble getting rid of his stockpile . . . at eight cents a brick.

Some of his customers are former students — including a woman who attended the school during the First World War.

She insisted the bricks for her planter come from the south side of the building, her old classroom.

Most of Mr. Smith's customers, however, merely want to be in step with the latest building fashion — the "old look."

The used bricks are sought for facings on front walls and fireplaces for new homes.

The style has become so popular one Victoria firm has imported "new used bricks" from Medicine Hat.

These bricks are purposely manufactured to look old the minute they're out of the kiln. The colors are faded and come complete with mortar stain to attract lovers of such instant antiquity.

TOWN HIRES DOCTOR

GOLD RIVER — Dr. J. F. Jodrey of Nanaimo has accepted an invitation to be Gold River's full-time doctor, Mayor Bruce Chisholm announced Friday.

Dr. Jodrey will set up practice on a part-time basis in December and in January will move to the new town with his wife and two children.

"His decision to come arises from the combined efforts of the municipality and the Tahsis Co." Mayor Chisholm said.

Gold River was without a doctor for several months until Dr. Patricia Chen of Campbell River agreed to work on a part-time basis.

She has been spending two days a week here.

Swim Standards Needed

NANAIMO — Safe bathing standards in the waters around Vancouver Island could be based on sea pollution standards set for the commercial raising of oysters, Dr. Michael Waldichuk told the Kiwanis Club here.

Dr. Waldichuk, a leading oceanographer, said there are rigid pollution standards for oyster-raising, but no agreed standards for safe bathing.

"Most pollution standards for safe bathing are aesthetic rather than medical because few medical facts are available, and insufficient study has been made of the effects of sea pollution on human beings."

Dr. Waldichuk said, where bathing restrictions are posted, they are only advisory and have no legal basis.

Bathing standards of coliform counts for a class A beach are 240 coliforms for 100 cubic centimetres of water, but this standard is seldom met.

The California standard is 1,000 coliforms for each 100 cubic centimetres of water.

5th Battery Ends Course

Militia members of the oldest artillery unit on the West Coast will fire 105 mm. howitzers off Albert Head today and Sunday at the conclusion of the annual training scheme.

Targets rafts will be towed 4,000 to 5,000 feet offshore and commanding officers expect accuracy to within feet.

The gunners are volunteers of the 5th (B.C.) Field Battery, RCA, a unit which stems from a militia group formed in 1868 known as the Victoria Volunteers.

'Bennett Not Interested In the Rest of Canada'

LEADERS of House and party chat before meetings in both Nanaimo and Duncan Friday. House NDP leader David Lewis, left, chats with NDP leader Tommy Douglas before the smorgasbord dinner in Duncan.

DUNCAN — Premier Bennett is as much a separatist as Rene Levesque, New Democratic Party commons leader David Lewis said, in an interview Friday night.

"But I hope that, despite Mr. Bennett, British Columbia will stay in Canada," he said. Mr. Lewis was here to speak at a function to support NDP leader Tommy Douglas in his byelection race Feb. 10 against liberal candidate Eric Winch.

Nanaimo - Cowichan - The Islands was left vacant following the death of NDP member Colin Cameron.

"Actually, Mr. Bennett is in a class all by himself," Mr. Lewis said. "The way he takes lightly or ignores federal-provincial conferences indicates he is not very profoundly interested in the rest of Canada.

"These conferences are important. This attitude by your premier is not very good for Canada and Mr. Bennett may not be very good for B.C. either."

On the subject of student unrest of Simon Fraser and universities elsewhere, Mr. Lewis said "the trouble seems to stem from a small group of activists who have alienated themselves from the rest of society."

"Because they feel no involvement with university government and suffer a feeling of isolation from the teaching apparatus, they have lost hope.

"What they don't seem to realize is that you can't change the world without some sort of political commitment."

WORK TO RESUME MONDAY

PORT ALBERNI — Shingle workers at the Somass division of MacMillan Bloedel will return to work Monday morning.

Maurice Corbeil, secretary of IAW Local 1-85, said the company has called the men back, starting with the 1 a.m. graveyard shift.

A company official said earlier that a slowdown by shingle sawyers at the plant compelled the company to suspend workers until an assurance was given that work would be performed in a normal manner.

The IWA local has called a special meeting with the shingle mill crew for Sunday at 7 p.m.

Post Still Vacant

NANAIMO (CP) — Dr. George Wootton, chairman of engineering technology at Seneca College in Willowdale, Ont., has notified Malaspina regional college in Nanaimo he will not be able to accept the position of college president next September because of family problems.

A college spokesman said he didn't think the resignation would mean a delay in opening the college. A committee is already looking for another president.

'It's Time to Settle' Indian Land Problem

DUNCAN — The time has come to settle the land question with the Indians of this province, Tommy Douglas said in an interview Friday night.

"The fact that the government of Canada entered into treaties with some Indians indicates they must have felt some obligation towards them and this obligation should now be extended to others," he said.

He did not suggest handing back the entire province but believed in setting up a land compensation commission as soon as possible.

The New Democratic Party leader and candidate in the Feb. 10 by-election for Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands said "control and direction of Indian affairs should be returned to the bands. There is far too much paternalism from Ottawa."

Mr. Douglas and David Lewis, NDP House leader, both spoke at a smorgasbord dinner in Duncan sponsored by the local NDP organization and members of the Elks Club.

Mr. Douglas did not foresee any violence from Indians on a scale comparable to U.S. Negro riots but "Indians are becoming more unified and vocal and will soon emerge as a political and social force."

The former premier of Saskatchewan said Section 14 of the Indian Act — which states that an Indian woman who marries a non-Indian loses her Indian status — "Should be suspended through order in council or some special legislation."

Mr. Douglas said he was "appalled" at the number of people who did not know "about this arbitrary loss of human rights." The Indian Affairs Department should make it crystal clear what is involved here and take immediate steps to change it, he said.

Te thought inter-marriage was a good thing but an Indian girl should not lose her rights to status and thereby her right to compensation in any form if widowed or deserted by her non-Indian mate.

Mr. Douglas, who lost his Burnaby-Richmond seat in the June federal election to former B.C. Liberal leader Ray Perrault, compared the present North American economic scene to the last days of the Roman Empire:

"There is an idle rich and idle poor, with an over-taxed, overworked middle trying to keep the other two going.

"The real trouble we face is that these people in the middle are being squeezed so hard by spiraling prices and decreasing buying power they won't be able to make both ends meet much longer."

Latin American Tours Bring Warnings on OAS

OTTAWA (CP) — The government will submit its review of Canada's relations with Latin America to a parliamentary committee and invite businessmen and others to express their views, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said in the Commons Friday.

Reporting on a month-long tour of Latin American capitals by a mission in which five ministers took part, Mr. Sharp said new impetus is being given to Canada's relations with South and Central America.

He tabled an exchange of diplomatic notes with the government of Mexico, establishing an inter-government committee to foster closer ties with that country.

Mr. Sharp's statement summarizing the trip was questioned by Opposition foreign affairs critic R. G. L. Fairweather (PC—Fundy-Royal) because it had no mention of the Organization of American States.

Mr. Fairweather repeated Conservative cautionings against joining the Latin American union because of the ramifications membership would have on Canadian defence and political policy.

MARKS TURNING POINT

Mr. Sharp said the ministerial mission marked a turning point in Canada's relations with Latin America. It gave the cabinet ministers here an opportunity to talk to their opposite numbers there on political, economic and cultural matters.

Taking part in the mission on a rotation basis, in addition to Mr. Sharp, were Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin, Energy Minister J. J. Greene, State Secretary Gerald Pelletier, and Otto Laing, minister without portfolio.

The mission visited Venezuela, Colombia, Peru, Chile, Argentina, Brazil, Mexico, Guatemala and Costa Rica.

The mission was the first step in the government's review of its policy towards Latin America, and this review will be submitted to critical examination in a Commons committee.

Stanley Knowles, the NDP House leader, said that Mr. Sharp's report, while interesting, was "little more than a travelogue." He said he thought Canada had a role to play in economic aid to Latin American countries.

Lurking behind Mr. Sharp's "travelogue" was the question of Canadian membership in the OAS. Parliament should have the opportunity to discuss this question before Canada is "taken down the garden path."

Membership in the OAS would make Canada "even more of a satellite" of the U.S. than it is now.

TRUDEAU WITTICISM OPENS ART EXHIBIT

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau officially opened the Jacob Jordaens' exhibition at the National Gallery Friday night.

Some 3,000 were on hand for the showing of works by the 17th-century Flemish painter.

Mr. Trudeau compared himself to a 17th-century author who wrote that he loved but never understood "la musique, la peinture, et la femme." His audience responded with a laugh.

Quebec Separate Aryan State?

MONTREAL (CP) — Jacques Bauge-Prevost says the Celts of Quebec, an organization he founded in 1958, wants to transform Quebec province into "a free Aryan state" without resorting to violence or persecution.

Mr. Bauge-Prevost, who describes himself as a biologist, said in an interview here this week that his organization now has more than 2,000 members, including about 50 "initiated" militants.

The aim of the Celts of Quebec was to "preserve the Aryan racial purity" of Quebecers, first by forming an elite to educate the people.

As a second step, the group wanted to acquire woodlands in northern Quebec where families converted to "Aryan Celtism" could live like their ancestors—without capitalism, trade unions or other "monopolies" of modern civilization.

Then, Mr. Bauge-Prevost said, "when the time is ripe," the movement would transform Quebec into a free Aryan state—by peaceful means if possible.

Falconers May Pay Fee For Rare Bird

The B.C. fish and wildlife branch is taking a hard look at its policy of allowing falconers to take out peregrine falcons free-of-charge from the Queen Charlotte Islands.

The falcon, extinct in many parts of the world, is closely protected in the Queen Charlottes because of increasing demands for the sport of falconry.

Wildlife biologist Donald Blood said under consideration is a suggestion that falconers pay for the birds they take out.

Under the present system, they are allowed to harvest a limited number of birds from the islands. There is no charge, although they must obtain a licence.

Costs of protecting the bird is paid from funds collected from hunters' licence fees.

"The feeling is that it's not fair to use these fees to protect a bird for a small minority," he said. "There are about 40 falconers in B.C."

Mr. Blood said the peregrine falcon was holding his own in the Queen Charlottes, but would quickly become extinct if not strictly protected.

The biologist who conducted a population study of the bird counted 43 breeding pairs in 1967. The birds lay two or three eggs a year, but many fledglings die of natural causes and accidents, such as falling off ledges.

He noted that there had been a heavy decline of birds at Langara Island, the northernmost island in the archipelago, where more than 15 eyries were observed in 1952. In 1967, only seven adult pairs could be located.

Rural Mail Contractors Form Group

Rural mail contractors in B.C. have formed an association, secretary Mrs. Ada Bone of Victoria reported Thursday.

Fifty-seven of the 105 persons with federal contracts to deliver rural mail in the province are members, she added.

The association's first objective is to get money owed to contractors but deducted during the 18-day national postal strike last summer.

Mrs. Bone said mail contractors have individual contracts with the government at an annual rate which included no provision for pay reductions through layoffs caused by strikes.

Federal authorities have promised a rebate of money deducted "in the near future" but the issue has been dragging for two months.

DRUNKS NOT FROM WEST

TORONTO (CP) — Police said today more than 130 persons were arrested Friday night for various liquor offences — but none were westerners.

Bars along Yonge Street and in other downtown areas were jammed to capacity on the eve of the Grey Cup football game and police said people were still celebrating early today.

"Practically all those arrested were Metro-area people," said Inspector Tom Keightley. "I went through the addresses and don't recall seeing any westerners."

Downtown arrests for drunkeness, possession of liquor, impaired and drunken driving and causing disturbances were four times higher than the average Friday nights.

We Can Defend —Tito

JAJCE, Yugoslavia (AP) — President Tito said today Yugoslavia is strong enough to defend its sovereignty and independence alone.

But he added he saw no reason why the Soviet Union should attack Yugoslavia, a reference to Soviet-Yugoslav tension since the invasion of Czechoslovakia.

Tito told a news conference of 200 foreign and Yugoslav reporters:

"It would be desirable not to dramatize the present situation. Relaxation should be endeavored."

He also said Yugoslavia does not ask for any protection from the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, adding, "I think everywhere in the world everybody knows that we did not call anybody to help us."

NOT IN NATO SPHERE

Questioned about a statement by U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk in Brussels that Yugoslavia is part of the "Grey Zone" of NATO protection, Tito said: "Our attitude stands apart from its appraisal. We do not recognize spheres of interest. These stop at our borders."

Discussing the buildup of fleets in the Mediterranean, Tito said: "It must not be a conflict but there exist elements of alarm, because of concentration of fleets."

When the Soviets sent their fleet into the Mediterranean Tito said he believed that it was a normal step to combat "Israeli aggression." But he added, "It would be much better" if both the American and Soviet fleets were out of the Mediterranean.

The 76-year-old Yugoslav president also said he doesn't think his country's independence or neutrality is threatened, and stressed its non-aligned policies.

SFU Group Vows To Continue Fight

Collapse Of Talks Unlikely

PARIS (AP) — North Vietnam and the United States each have a long list of accusations alleging violations of the bombing halt agreement, but there was no sign today they will try to collapse the expanded Vietnam peace talks.

Observers say the charges and counter-charges are just another way of keeping the other side's feet in the fire.

As it is, the parley expected to start in two weeks will be difficult enough. Hanoi and the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front are refusing to recognize the Saigon delegation, and South Vietnam says it will talk only to Hanoi.

A Hanoi spokesman Friday made the most serious bombing accusation yet by the North Vietnamese.

He said U.S. planes hit North Vietnamese territory three straight days, the latest attack coming Nov. 27.

Three U.S. F-4 jets bombed five villages more than 40 miles north of the 17th parallel dividing the two Vietnams, he said, adding that they were not involved in any pilot rescue or defence.

Previously the North Vietnamese had protested to the U.S. delegation about what they said were U.S. bombing raids over their territory Nov. 25 and 26.

EXPLAINS INCIDENTS

A Washington spokesman said he did not know of any such attacks. The United States has explained the earlier incidents as "suppressive fire" to protect pilots of reconnaissance planes.

The United States claims President Johnson's Oct. 31 directive to stop the "bombardment and all other acts involving the use of force" on North Vietnamese territory did not rule out continuing reconnaissance flights.

Washington said, continuing U.S. surveillance of North Vietnamese territory is necessary and defence of the reconnaissance craft is justified, including bombing if necessary to help a helicopter rescue a downed pilot.

Strike Vetoed By 2-1 Margin

VANCOUVER (CP)—Students at Simon Fraser University in nearby Burnaby defeated by a two-to-one margin a proposal to boycott classes but the fight for student demands will continue, student leaders said Friday night.

The ballot—which showed 1,181 in favor of a strike, 2,428 opposed and four spoiled ballots—called for sympathy with 114 students arrested Nov. 23 after a three-day occupation of the administration building.

There was a 65-per-cent turnout of the SFU's 5,400 students for the special vote, believed a university record.

The vote result was termed a victory for moderates who have been urging negotiation on demands.

"It is unfortunate that we had the strike vote at this time," said the student president, Rob Walsh, who did not favor a srtike.

"But no one should say the situation is now settled. We must maintain and pursue the matter because we still have 114 people arrested by the police."

WILL MEET TODAY

Student senator Donn Korbin, a member of the steering committee of the Militant Students for a Democratic University, said a meting of all interested students was scheduled today to discuss further action.

Students have been asking that criminal charges against the 114 be dropped, investigation of administration procedures at SFU and reform in the admission and accreditation policies which sparked occupation and the current unrest.

The acting university president, Dr. Kenneth Strand, had no comment on the vote results. Education Minister Donald Brothers said he was "pleased."

"I don't feel a strike could have settled anything," he said in Victoria.

An informal teach-in to discuss SFU problems began Friday and was to continue Monday without Dr. Strand's approval.

The acting president issued a statement saying such sessions must be scheduled outside the regular classes.

BACK HIS STAND

Friday afternoon Dr. Strand received a statement, signed by 63 science faculty members, endorsing his stand and supporting the president's decision to call in RCMP to arrest the 114.

He also got a petition signed by 62 members of the arts faculty opposing an earlier faculty motion which regretted the use of police. The petition called the earlier motin "the work of an unrepresentative minority."

In magistrate's court Thursday and Friday 110 of those arrested were remanded to Jan. 16 and 17. Three others, unable to get their bondsmen to agree to the long remand, were ordered to appear again Dec. 4.

A 17-year-old girl, whose case is being handled by juvenile authorities, was remanded in the custody of her parents.

All were charged with obstructing private property, a criminal offence with a maximum penalty of five years imprisonment.

Russians Retreat But NATO Alert

WASHINGTON (AP)—United States officials say Soviet strength in Czechoslovakia has dwindled to three divisions, but NATO strategists are busy implementing lessons learned from the August invasion.

Reduction of the Soviet forces followed an agreement between Czechoslovakia and the Soviet Union in October, legalizing an indefinite Russian presence in the satellite.

The Communist troops that once ranged throughout the strategic central European country now are based mainly in Bratislava and Prague, U.S. analysts say.

Particularly alarming to Western allies at the time of the invasion was the presence of six invasion divisions a short march from the West German frontier.

Despite withdrawal of the main strength, Russian concentrations in East Germany and Poland remain significant. The Soviets have maintained a formidable 20 divisions in East Germany in the past and some of the troops withdrawn from Czechoslovakia have joined them.

KEEPS CLOSER WATCH

Although the immediate threat to Western Europe's heartland has eased, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization is strengthening defences and keeping a closer watch on Soviet military activity along other European borders.

Strategists are considering including several U.S. Special Forces units among the two army brigades and four jet fighter squadrons returning ahead of schedule to Europe next year.

Military and diplomatic sources in Washington described movement of the Special Forces units as "the strongest political signal."

Developments holding NATO's attention include increased Soviet land and naval activity around Europe's northern tier, where NATO member Norway shares a common border with Russia. Informants say Russian naval forces there also have a new amphibious capability.

Russia also has established a naval infantry and has a helicopter carrier with its beefed-up Mediterranean fleet that could carry such troops into battle.

Snow in Vancouver —Sunshine Here

If you're counting Victoria's blessings this weekend, count the absence of snow.

The blessing is that Vancouver got a light blanket of white this morning, and Port Alberni had half an inch and there was some snow on the Malahat.

But there is none here.

As a matter of fact, the weather office forecasts a clearing sky tonight and a mostly sunny Sunday.

Hard-Campaigning Lotta Looks to B.C. To Save Lagging Asian Children Fund

By SUSAN RILEY

Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova is looking "with hope" to British Columbia for help in her lagging Unitarian Services Committee fund-raising campaign.

She also told an audience of 250 at Cridge Hall Friday that she is grateful for the past generosity of Victorians.

Dr. Hitschmanova, executive director of the Unitarian Services Committee, was in Victoria for the opening of the annual Times Children of Asia Fund. Her speech was the 124th she has delivered across the country since the campaign started in St. John's, Newfoundland, Sept. 12.

●

"Our campaign is not going well," she told the crowded hall. "Frankly, I am worried." This year's objective is $1,250,000 in funds and gifts in kind.

Sleep does not come easily, she said, with the knowledge that she may have unhappy choices to make.

"Do you close a feeding station? Do you put a sign out in front of a hospital saying 'Closed'? Do you interrupt a child's schooling? Do you tell a family planning clinic it no longer exists?" she asked.

"I do not know."

She praised Victoria's generosity.

●

"On my last tour around the world I saw miracles you permitted us to accomplish," she said.

"I saw five and a half million Canadian cups of milk given to hungry children. Your money helped medical progress. You permitted us to work with government family planning clinics."

Before she spoke Dr. Hitschmanova showed a film, The Promising Harvest, made by CBC photographer John Buss. In color, the film showed children lining up for a mid-day meal in Calcutta, thin children in USC-sponsored hospitals, teen-age girls attending a girls' training institute which the USC piloted.

About 85 per cent of last year's $1,250,000 went to relieve the physical and social needs of children.

The USC sponsors 90 projects in eight overseas countries. Everywhere the common denominator is need. Often, said Dr. Hitschmanova, the common enemy is hunger.

"Hunger is mankind's worst enemy. It can make you a killer and a thief," she said.

●

"On my last tour I discovered hope and progress," she added. "However there is still hunger."

Dr. Hitschmanova accepted a $100 cheque from the Victoria Times presented by editor Brian Tobin and after the meeting $1,109 was collected from the audience.

Contributions to the Times Children of Asia Fund may be mailed to the Times, 2631 Douglas, or left at the business office. Cheques should be made out to the Children of Asia Fund.

Clothing or wool may be left at Fairfield Moving and Storage, 116 Dallas Road.

The Times will publish a daily list of contributors.

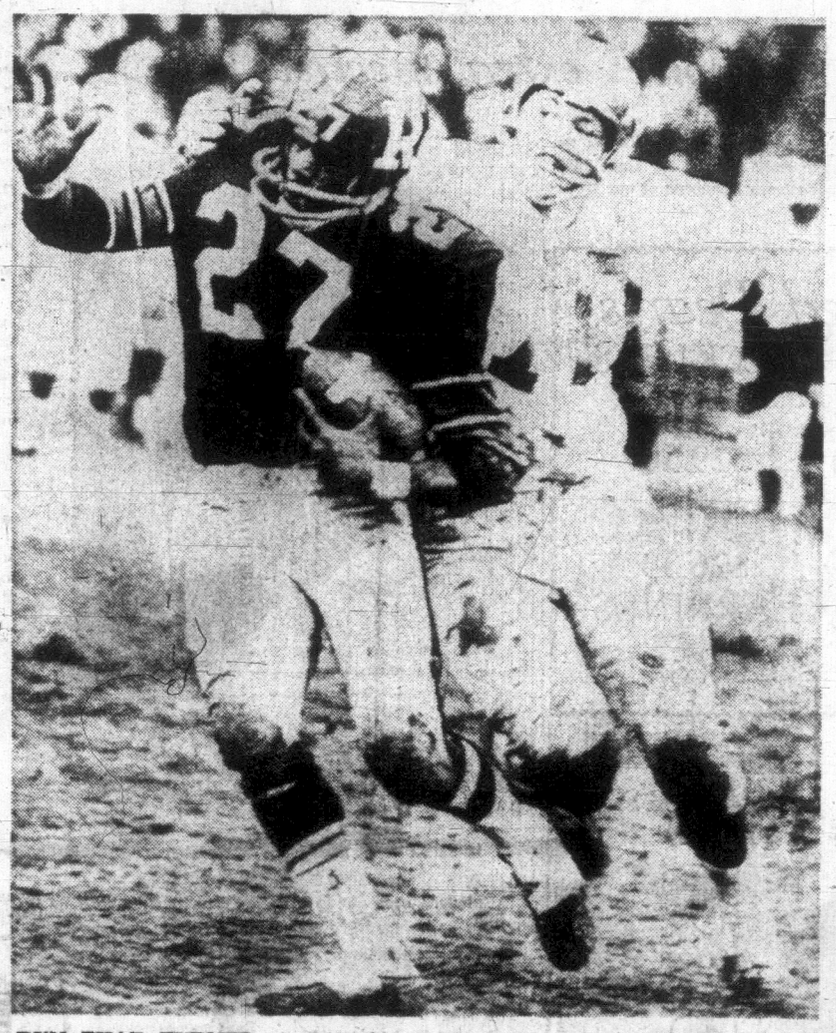
Smashing Second Half Comeback

Ottawa Captures Grey Cup



RUN THAT TURNED the tide in today's Grey Cup sees Vic Washington (27) of the victorious Ottawa Rough Riders eluding Stampeders' Jim Furlong at the start of a 79-yard touchdown run to put Ottawa ahead.

Stampeders Beaten 24-21

TORONTO—Living up to their reputation of being a great second half football team, Ottawa Rough Riders came from behind to defeat Calgary Stampeders 24-21 here this afternoon and win the Grey Cup, emblematic of the Canadian football championship.

Stampeders went into the second half enjoying a 14-4 lead.

Quarterback Russ Jackson accepted the cup from Prime Minister Trudeau as CNE Stadium went wild following Ottawa's first playoff championship since beating Edmonton Eskimos 16-6 in 1960.

The result just added to Calgary's frustration as the Western Conference champions had waited 20 years, since 1949, for a place in the playoff final.

The Riders managed a 4-0 first quarter lead, but looked to to have blown it in the second quarter when the Stampeders put on their best performance and came away with a 14-4 edge.

The Rough Riders came back with the only touchdown of the third quarter to narrow the gap to 14-11, then powered their way to a 24-14 edge and held on while Calgary managed only to reduce the margin in the dying minutes.

Jackson, Vic Washington and Margene Adkins scored Ottawa touchdowns with Don Sutherin contributing two converts and a field goal. Sutherin missed three in the first quarter.

A further Ottawa single was scored in the first quarter when Wayne Giardino blocked a punt attempt by Calgary's Ron Stewart and Ted Woods of Calgary scooted back into the end to make the recovery.

Calgary touchdowns went to Terry Evanshen, with two, and quarterback Peter Liske. Larry Robinson converted all three.

CROWD THRILLED

A capacity crowd of more than 33,000 was thrilled in the chill 35-degree atmosphere by the second and third Ottawa scores and by the valiant attempt Calgary made to come back.

But it could be felt from the outset that it just wasn't going to be Calgary's day when rookie Rudy Linterman fumbled on the second play. Ottawa's Gene Gaines recovered.

Robinson fumbled on the last play of the quarter and Barry Ardern recovered to set up Sutherin's fourth field goal attempt and first successful one.

Jackson got the first Ottawa touchdown by sneaking one yard midway through the third quarter after using fullback Bo Scott on a series of plays designed to soften the centre of the Calgary line.

Then, with 56 seconds gone in the fourth quarter, halfback Vic Washington took a pitch-out at the Ottawa 31-yard line, fumbled and recovered, and then arrowed down field to leave Robinson sprawled at mid-field and safety Jerry Keeling grabbing air at the 15.

NAMED TOP PLAYER

Washington eventually was named outstanding player of the game on a vote by the Football Reporters of Canada.

Then at 9:59, Adkins loped down the left side of the field to take a Jackson pass. He beat Keeling at the 20 and sprinted home to complete a 70-yard scoring play.

Liske got Calgary moving in the second quarter when he sneaked one yard following an Ottawa pass interference call. Calgary struck again when Liske passed 21 yards to Evanshen, who got behind Gene Gaines and Bill Van Burkleo in the Ottawa end zone.

Grey Cup Revellers Jam Lobbies, Tie Up Traffic

By STERLING TAYLOR

TORONTO (CP) — It all depended on who one spoke to. An assistant manager said the crush of revellers in the downtown Royal York Hotel reached "emergency proportions" Friday night. A superintendent of police disagreed.

The Metropolitan Toronto police force was able to contain the thousands that milled through the main lobby and the next two mezzanine floors on the eve of the Grey Cup final between Calgary Stampeders and Ottawa Rough Riders.

Assistant hotel manager Austin Nelham said

"It was hectic in here. People jammed shoulder to shoulder in the lobbies. It got so bad that the police chief ordered most of his men in to clean it out.

"People went wild. It was probably the worst crowd ever."

The bulk of the crowd, that was cleared from the lobbies by 2 a.m. today, began to arrive about 6 p.m. EST Friday. Bands played in the lobby to welcome the incoming guests off special sections of transcontinental trains from the West.

Another assistant hotel manager said that the police considered it an emergency and became concerned about a riot about 9 p.m.

'WASN'T AN EMERGENCY'

"There was a lot of people in here tonight—impossible to estimate the number," said Superintendent George Dorkin. "We did not consider it an emergency situation and there was only a bit of minor trouble."

Supt. Dorkin would not say how many officers were required to control the crowd and clear them out of the lobbies and higher hallways, however.

The crowds filled the lobby of the hotel and spread over a one-block area, closed to traffic at the front entrance.

Traffic was bumper to bumper in the downtown area, but this was not considered a serious condition by the police.

The police began jamming off the hotel crowd shortly after 10 p.m., forcing revellers to the lower lobby and subsequently onto the street. Police officers were also posted at the bottom of each staircase to ensure that no unregistered guest was allowed to ascend.

Visitors had all practically been ousted and registered guests were in their rooms by 2 a.m. to await the Canadian Football League final at 1 p.m. EST today.

The Rough Riders were seven-point favorites to defeat the Stampeders, although a bet on the Calgary team would mean giving up five points to the bettor.

89-Year-Old Ottawan Sees First Cup Clash

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Delbert Hutt, 89, of Ottawa, on hand for his first Grey Cup game, said he was rooting for the Rough Riders but that uncertain field conditions discouraged him from putting any money on the game. Asked why he waited to the age of 89 before attending the annual football classic, the retired civil servant said "I just never got around to it."

One western sportswriter was taking a dim view of the 1968 Grey Cup game after accidentally drinking his contact lenses left in a glass on a bedside table.

Calgary took the field first, wearing their white home uniforms, at the stroke of 12, an hour before the game was to begin.

Ottawa Rough Riders, although occupying the north side, or home bench at the stadium, were dressed in their black-jerseyed road garb.

★ ★ ★

High-powered hot air blowers were aimed at each bench from both ends.

★ ★ ★

Angelo Mosca, fearsome lineman from Hamilton Tiger-Cats conducted television interviews on the field with members of the Calgary Stampeders. George Reed, Saskatchewan Roughriders fullback, interviewed members of the Ottawa Rough Riders.

★ ★ ★

Dave Cranmer, limping heavily on his right leg, was in uniform for the Stampeders, catching and throwing passes during the pre-game warmup.

The prize-winning British Columbia float from the morning's Grey Cup parade was driven into the stadium to circle the field 30 minutes before game time.

Hard-Campaigning Lotta Looks to B.C. To Save Lagging Asian Children Fund

By SUSAN RILEY

Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova is looking "with hope" to British Columbia for help in her lagging Unitarian Services Committee fund-raising campaign.

She also told an audience of 250 at Cridge Hall Friday that she is grateful for the past generosity of Victorians.

Dr. Hitschmanova, executive director of the Unitarian Services Committee, was in Victoria for the opening of the annual Times Children of Asia Fund. Her speech was the 124th she has delivered across the country since the campaign started in St. John's, Newfoundland, Sept. 12.

●

"Our campaign is not going well," she told the crowded hall. "Frankly, I am worried." This year's objective is $1,250,000 in funds and gifts in kind.

Sleep does not come easily, she said, with the knowledge that she may have unhappy choices to make.

"Do you close a feeding station? Do you put a sign out in front of a hospital saying 'Closed'? Do you interrupt a child's schooling? Do you tell a family planning clinic it no longer exists?" she asked.

"I do not know."

She praised Victoria's generosity.

●

"On my last tour around the world I saw miracles you permitted us to accomplish," she said.

"I saw five and a half million Canadian cups of milk given to hungry children. Your money helped medical progress. You permitted us to work with government family planning clinics."

Before she spoke, Dr. Hitschmanova showed a film, The Promising Harvest, made by CBC photographer John Buss. In color, the film showed children lining up for a mid-day meal in Calcutta, thin children in USC-sponsored hospitals, teen-age girls attending a girls' training institute which the USC piloted.

About 85 per cent of last year's $1,250,000 went to relieve the physical and social needs of children.

The USC sponsors 90 projects in eight overseas countries. Everywhere the common denominator is need. Often, said Dr. Hitschmanova, the common enemy is hunger.

"Hunger is mankind's worst enemy. It can make you a killer and a thief," she said.

●

"On my last tour I discovered hope and progress," she added. "However there is still hunger."

Dr. Hitschmanova accepted a $100 cheque from the Victoria Times presented by editor Brian Tobin and after the meeting $1,109 was collected from the audience.

Contributions to the Times Children of Asia Fund may be mailed to the Times, 2631 Douglas, or left at the business office. Cheques should be made out to the Children of Asia Fund.

Clothing or wool may be left at Fairfield Moving and Storage, 116 Dallas Road.

The Times will publish a daily list of contributors.

Strike Vetoed By 2-1 Margin

VANCOUVER (CP)—Students at Simon Fraser University in nearby Burnaby defeated by a two-to-one margin a proposal to boycott classes but the fight for student demands will continue, student leaders said Friday night.

The ballot—which showed 1,181 in favor of a strike, 2,428 opposed and four spoiled ballots—called for sympathy with 114 students arrested Nov. 23 after a three-day occupation of the administration building.

There was a 65-per-cent turnout of the SFU's 5,400 students for the special vote, believed a university record.

The vote result was termed a victory for moderates who have been urging negotiation on demands.

"It is unfortunate that we had the strike vote at this time," said the student president, Rob Walsh, who did not favor a strike.

"But no one should say the situation is now settled. We must maintain and pursue the matter because we still have 114 people arrested by the police."

WILL MEET TODAY

Student senator Donn Korbin, a member of the steering committee of the militant Students for a Democratic University, said a meting of all interested students was scheduled today to discuss further action.

Students have been asking that criminal charges against the 114 be dropped, investigation of administration procedures at SFU and reform in the admission and accreditation policies which sparked occupation and the current unrest.

The acting university president, Dr. Kenneth Strand, had no comment on the vote results.

Education Minister Donald Brothers said he was "pleased."

"I don't feel a strike could have settled anything," he said in Victoria.

An informal teach-in to discuss SFU problems began Friday and was to continue Monday without Dr. Strand's approval.

The acting president issued a statement saying such sessions must be scheduled outside the regular classes.

BACK HIS STAND

Friday afternoon Dr. Strand received a statement, signed by 63 science faculty members, endorsing his stand and supporting the president's decision to call in RCMP to arrest the 114.

He also got a petition signed by 62 members of the arts faculty opposing an earlier faculty motion which regretted the use of police. The petition called the earlier motion "the work of an unrepresentative minority."

In magistrate's court Thursday and Friday 110 of those arrested were remanded to Jan. 16 and 17. Three others, unable to get their bondsmen to agree to the long remand, were ordered to appear again Dec. 4.

A 17-year-old girl, whose case is being handled by juvenile authorities, was remanded in the custody of her parents.

All were charged with obstructing private property, a criminal offence with a maximum penalty of five years imprisonment.

. . . OTTAWA

A penalty, interception and fumble preceedeed Evanshn's second touchdown—a two-yard pass from Liske with just one minute and 34 seconds remaining.

Gaines was called for pass interference against Calgary's Bob McCarthy at the Ottawa nine-yard line but Van Burkleo stole the ball out of Evanshen's hands in the end zone just seconds later to give Ottawa possession at their own 10.

SCOTT FUMBLED

Two plays later Bo Scott fumbled at the 10 with the ball recovered by defensive end Dick Suderman, setting up Evanshen's score.

Washington was by far the leading rusher in the game, despite several costly slips on the greasy, sloppy centre field area as he picked up 128 yards rushing on 13 carries and added 25 yards more on three pass receptions.

Other high totals were 93 yards on two passes by Adkins and 86 yards on five catches by McCarthy.

21 COMPLETIONS

Liske, leading passer in the west the last two years, passed 258 yards with 21 completions in 36 tries while Jackson was good on eight of 17 passes for 185 yards.

On first downs as well, Calgary had a 24-13 edge but on the ground the Rough Riders picked up 202 yards to 74 for Calgary which missed the power running of halfback Dave Cranmer who suffered a cacked leg bone in the final game of the Western final against Saskatchewan Roughriders.

In all, Ottawa had a net offence of 361 yards compared with 297 yards for Calgary while Van Burkleo punted nine times for a 44-yard average and Ron Stewart nine times for a 40-yard average.

Bert Pickup Retires

Bert Pickup, superintendent of Victoria Press stereo department, retired Friday after 45 years service with The Times and Colonist.

When he became an apprentice at the old Times Building on Fort Street at the age of 16, he was one of the youngest to be taken on.

On completing his training five years later, Mr. Pickup joined the crew of a whaling vessel and experienced a rough trip up the West Coast. Then he returned to work with The Times.

At a send-off given by his fellow workers Friday evening, Mr. Pickup was presented with an easy chair in which to enjoy his retirement.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

The outer coast received another battering overnight as a vigorous storm brought southeasterly gales to all coastal areas. Highest winds were reported at Estevan Point at 69 m.p.h. The system spread rain to all of the coast this morning and with low freezing level the snowline has crept down the mountainside to about 1,500 feet above sea-level. Snow is expected with the disturbance as it moves through the interior today. A ridge of high pressure will move to the coast tonight and clearing is expected. This will result in colder temperatures tonight. More rain and gales will reach the outer coast Sunday with another Pacific storm, and cloud will spread to the lower mainland by evening ahead of the system.

Fire Follows Madrid Riots

MADRID (Reuters) — Part of Madrid University was badly damaged by fire early today following a day of rioting in which 150 students were arrested and three university schools closed.

A fire destroyed a lecture hall and most of the roof of Madrid's Old University building in the city centre.

PROFESSOR URGES CAMPUS TAKEOVER

A controversial students' rights spokesman told University of Victoria undergraduates Friday to "turn their teachers on" and escape the master-slave relationship in education.

Jerry Farber, professor of English from San Diego State College and author of the essay "The Student as Nigger," was speaking in the Uvic Student Union Building.

The best way to get a real university is to "take over" the buildings and run it the way the students want, he said.

Author of Kandy Checks Surfing Set

THE PUMP HOUSE GANG, by Tom Wolfe; Farrar, Straus and Giroux; $5.95.

Reviewed by Gillian Thomas

It is unlikely that a collection of essays by Tom Wolfe could create such a sensation as his first book, The Kandy-Colored, Tangerine-Flake, Streamline Baby. In The Pump House Gang he has collected 15 of his studies of various social phenomena. The quality, admittedly, is patchy but the total effect is extremely impressive.

The title essay is a study of a California surfing set and revolves around the question of status as do several of the other essays. In this social milieu only those under 25 are socially acceptable. Some of the clubs even refuse admission to over-25s and demand identification at the door. Wolfe describes a situation where a girl is refused admission:

"Nothing in the world is going to make a woman look stupider than to stand around trying to argue, 'I'm younger than I look, I'm younger than I look!' So she practically shrivels up like a Peruvian shrunken head in front of her boyfriend and he trundles her off, looking for some place you can get an old doll like this into."

Lacks Focus

But the essay as a whole lacks focus and like many of the others in the book is too impressionistic to be very much more than entertaining journalism.

Three of the essays, 'The Life and Hard Times of a London Society Girl," "The Noonday Underground," and "The Private Game" are set in contemporary London. Oddly enough Wolfe seems, in some respects, more at home in describing this scene than his native North American one.

He catches some of the social nuances of the English class system a good deal more closely than most contemporary English writers and has a nearly infallible ear in perceiving the subtle put-down implied by certain accents and speech patterns.

Contemporary English writers have needed to present these behavior patterns in situations where there is extreme disparity in class background, but Wolfe explores the much more interesting area where slight gradations of social status are betrayed by the merest word or gesture.

The three essays on the modern British scene are however marred by an almost unconsciously puritanical tone. Tom Wolfe, like many other Americans seems to see London as basically degenerate.

The stance that emerges is not that of the traditional puritan who declares that pleasure is Satanic but its modern counterpart, that of the puritanical swinger who implies rather languidly that the whole thing is really rather boring and vacuous. The essays might come over more strongly if this stance were adopted consciously but it is never more than a dragging undertow to his description of the contemporary scene.

The two longer essays of the collection are superb. Their focus is sharp and the writer's observations are made with a force that is lacking in some other parts of the book. The first, "King of the Status Dropouts" is a long description of Hugh Hefner's life in his 48-room Chicago house. Hefner, it seems, lives like a modern parody of a recluse, almost never stepping outside his own front door, nursed by a vast battery of electronic devices.

Playboy Fantasy?

At first the description strikes one as a fantasy of how the editor of Playboy could be expected to live, but then the realization dawns that the whole thing is a factual description, including Hefner's bragging about the super-efficient system of life he has evolved:

"This place is run like a hotel ought to be run. It goes 24 hours a day. There's a full kitchen staff 24 hours a day, a chef, anytime I wake up, I can get anything I want. I've got a staff of 25 people here on a 24 hour schedule. I've got an Ampex engineer on the staff . . . I sent him to the Ampex school in San Francisco. He's on 24-hour call."

The electronic equipment, the vast hi-fi, the "gleaming galaxy of speakers, tubes, rheenters, wheepers, flottoes and dials," is like an absurd parody of the Playboy life-style.

There is even a television camera with full videotaping equipment trained on the huge circular bed. Wolfe asks him why he has the camera in the bedroom:

" 'Well,' Hefner smiles, his cheekbones come out, his eyes turn on, 'who knows when something very beautiful might happen in this bedroom!' "

The essay on Marshall McLuhan, "What If He Is Right?" gives us not only a very clear sense of McLuhan as an individual but articulates the half-recognized anxiety that one tends to feel about some of McLuhan's prophesies about our environment. He catches almost perfectly the Delphic tone of McLuhan's pronouncements. He tells how, in an attempt to place him in an alien environment, Wolfe and his friends took McLuhan to a topless, and very nearly bottomless, restaurant in San Francisco.

As it turned out, only McLuhan remained entirely cool about the situation:

"Inside of thirty seconds McLuhan had simply absorbed the whole scene into . . . the theory. He tucked his chin down.

" 'Well!' he said. 'Very interesting!'"

" 'What's interesting, Marshall?'

" 'They're wearing us.' He said it with a slight shrug as if nothing could be more obvious.'

" 'I don't get it, Marshall!'

" 'We are their clothes,' he said. 'We become their environment. We become extensions of their skin. They're wearing us'."

One of the most interesting aspects of this essay is the comparison made between McLuhan and Freud. Both found that their theories met only with ridicule at the outset.

Both derive much of their theoretical material from literature, Freud using both literary terminology and examples, and McLuhan beginning his teaching career, "in one of the most exquisitely squalid hells known to middle-class man: freshman English at a Midwestern university."

Wolfe suspects that just as Freud developed his generalizations about the nuclear family partly from his own family situation, so McLuhan has developed his theories based on the pervuasiveness of communications media from his own teen-age children constantly disturbing his study with the blaring of radio, television, records and the telephone.

Although the formation of the theories of both may well have evolved from such arbitrary influences both are highly disturbing as prophets of their age. Just as Freud "savaged and very nearly exterminated traditional Philosophy," McLuhan "has been the savager of the literary intellectuals. He has made the most infuriating announcement of all: You are irrelevant."

Just Suppose

Whether or not one counts oneself in the category of those being savaged, like Tom Wolfe, we all have the recurring anxiety, "What if he is right?"

Each essay in this collection has as a frontispiece a drawing by the author. Some of these are as pertinent to the subject matter as the essays themselves. One of the cruelest is a drawing of Hugh Hefner lying in a foetal position on his enormous circular bed, clutching a Pepsi bottle, and obscenely plugged in to dozens of electronic devices.

It would be rash to compare Tom Wolfe to the great graphic or literary satirists, but it will be interesting to see how much further he will develop in this direction. Perhaps, in a society that so often unconsciously parodies itself, the most that the satirist can do is what Wolfe already undertakes — simply to report its more extreme absurdities.

Young Officer's Imagination Put Frogmen Into Asia Action

THE FROGMEN OF BURMA, by Lt-Cmdr. Bruce S. Wright. Clark-Irwin, 152 pp., Maps. Illustrated. $6.50..

Reviewed by R. H. Roy

One day in January, 1941, a young sub-lieutenant in the Royal Canadian Navy Volunteer Reserve was awaiting a posting in St. John's, Newfoundland. Bored with a week's inactivity, he volunteered to take out the small vessel which patrolled the boom guarding the ships in harbor. During the night he began to wonder how the ships might be attacked by infiltrating through the net and other devices designed to protect the ships against a surface or submarine attack. He thought it might be done by specially trained swimmers carrying limpet mines.

FORMS FIRST

He wrote up his idea, submitted it to his interested superior, and eventually it reached the desk of the chief of combined operations in London, Vice-Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten. He, too, was keenly interested in the submission and as a result, Lt. Bruce Wright, a recent graduate from the University of New Brunswick, was called to London to form the first unit of British frogmen.

For Wright, the next few years were filled with a type of adventure which few Canadians experienced. He was given the task of selecting, training and equipping a group of men to perform hazardous tasks which eventually were given to what were termed the Sea Reconnaissance Units.

In his unit there were men from all over the Commonwealth. Trained in the United Kingdom, California and the Bahamas, Wright experimented as he trained and learned by doing. Little was known at the time of the habits of sharks, barracudas and other undersea dangers, and some of the most exciting chapters of his book describe the encounters between the frogmen and these brutes.

Much to Wright's disappointment, his unit was not required for the Normandy landings and it was not until January, 1945, that he and his men were called for action in the southeast Asia command. Oddly enough, the frogmen were not required for sea operations, but to assist the 14th Army's crossing of the Irrawaddy River as it pressed on to Mandalay.

WRAPS OFF

Wright's descriptions of the frogmen in action forms about one-third of the text, and it is a fascinating account. The admiralty only recently lifted the wraps from the secrecy surrounding the exploits of these specialists, and no better man could have been chosen to write the account than the young Canadian naval officer who first formed the unit and later led his own group in action in Burma.

Commander Wright writes with a simple, direct style which is most appealing. The story he has to tell will hold the reader's interest from start to finish. It is a man's story about men, and there is more adventure in this slim volume than one will find in a shelf full of similar books.

Prince Albert Saved Flower Show

The Royal Horticultural Society was founded in 1804 at the suggestion of John Wedgwood, son of the famous potter, "to collect every information respecting the culture and treatment of all plants and trees, as well culinary as ornamental." It sent its collectors across the world in search of new species. When close to bankruptcy, it was saved by the timely patronage of Prince Albert and has prospered ever since, with Wisley and the Chelsea Flower Show drawing increasing crowds every year.

The Story of the Royal Horticultural Society (Oxford University Press) is a handsomely illustrated volume prepared by Mr. H. R. Fletcher, Regius Keeper of the Royal Botanic Garden, Edinburgh. It provides illuminating glimpses of social history as well as a great deal of scientific information.

Beauty Lover, Scientist Pleased

BIRDS OF THE EASTERN FOREST: I. Paintings by J. F. Lansdowne, Text by John Livingston. McClelland and Stewart Limited. $17.50.

Reviewed by Dr. G. Clifford Carl

It was a happy circumstance that brought Fen Lansdowne and Jack Livingston together for the first time some years ago. The contact was the beginning of an association highly productive to both parties and leading to the publication of "Birds of the Northern Forest" in 1966 and its companion volume this year "Birds of the Eastern Forest."

When they first met, young Lansdowne's bird paintings were scarcely known outside of the Victoria area. Mr. Livingston, then executive director of the Audubon Society of Canada, recognized the artist's special talents and arranged a showing of his work at the Royal Ontario Museum in Toronto. The much needed publicity helped launch Fenwick on his painting career. Since that time exhibitions of his work have been given in a number of leading art galleries and museums and numerous paintings have been purchased by both institutions and individuals.

Lansdowne with painting

A joint publication by these two talented persons was a natural outcome. Each is admirably suited to complement the other. Lansdowne's flair for composing his subject in a pleasing natural posture with a minimum of habitat and his great attention to minute detail results in a picture that satisfies both the beauty lover and the scientist, while Livingston's chatty style is refreshingly informal and spiced with interesting personal experiences. The combination of these special gifts in the form of pictures and words is eminently successful.

52 VARIETIES

The latest work consists of an introduction in which the area covered is described followed by accounts and color plates of 52 birds typical of the eastern forest. All the species featured occur in eastern North America but fully two-thirds of them have a much wider over-all distribution. Thus some such as the pied-billed grebe, great blue heron, American bittern, sparrow hawk, mourning dove, and pileated woodpecker, to name a few, are found in the far west as well, and some such as the barn owl, common gallinule, common tern and bank swallow also occur in the Old World.

LINE DRAWINGS

An interesting feature which adds much to the usefulness of the book is the series of sketches, occasionally a single sketch, which precedes each account and color plate. The line drawings, apparently done from life, often show the bird in several characteristic postures which may be of help to the serious student wishing to learn field marks of value in identification. In any event they are a delightful bonus.

Not many years ago bird watching was a hobby indulged in by people who were thought to be slightly odd. Nowadays this activity is highly respectable and, in fact, watching birds is one of the fastest growing outdoor pursuits in North America. The publication of this superbook is a good indication of the status now attained by this hobby.

FARMER BUCKLER GROWS

A New and Fertile Crop

OXBELLS AND FIREFLIES by Ernest Buckler. McClelland and Stewart; $7.95.

Reviewed by Eugenie L. Myles

Ernest Buckler's a farmer, so he says.

A farmer, we remember, who grew a crop that lifted to lyric and passionate heights in his novel The Mountain and the Valley. In ten years of reviewing, exclaimed the delighted Claude Bissell, this was the best Canadian book to reach his desk.

That was in 1952.

For long Farmer Buckler's field lay fallow. Then of his sowing came forth, in 1963, The Cruelest Month, a disappointing harvest often choked with tares.

Now we have Ox Bells and Fireflies. Again the author's name recalls the excitement that greeted his first novel, that poignant tale of David Canaan's growing and suffering in the Nova Scotia valley.

But we're puzzled by this new book. It's a kind "of fictional memoir," says the author on the gentian-blue dust jacket.

SUSPICIOUS SNIFF

We see in the frontispiece the words "Canada Council" and we sniff suspiciously.

We look further and are glad to find that again we are in David's valley, and that in the first chapter, entitled "Seven Crows a Secret," the speaker "I" is a ten-year-old farm boy. It is the first of May when "swallows shimmer, hills kindle, and the fields sheen themselves with resurrection and internal rhyme."

The lad must go with his parents to give comfort at the home of neighbor Jim Stedman, who has just fallen from the staging on his barn roof and broken his neck on the rocks beneath. Presently they walk back from the churchyard, and the boy counts the crows circling overhead:

"One crow sorrow, two crows joy; three crows a wedding, four crows a boy; five crows silver, six crows gold; seven crows a secret never to be told."

LOVING DETAIL

Lovingly, within the next near-300 pages, Buckler paints for us, with all the fine lines and the varied colorings of a Grandma-Moses primitive, the multitude of detail that makes up the outward mystery of life in the Nova Scotia valley.

First there are the boy's memories, some surely too perceptive for a ten-year tyke, memories of the farm routine in each of the seasons, of the neighbors, of the one-room school, and particularly of the texture of the countryside. These blend into the memories of the youth and man who in a chapter entitled "Plow, Scythe and Peavey," recalls how, on a winter day:

"The brilliant air went to your blood quicker than wine. It brought all your senses out, clear-eyed, to the edges of yourself. A plenty beyond asking, they filled you with such a glow of completeness that you felt like giving everything a pat.

"A knee braced against first one ox's warm monolithic leg and then the other's, you drew the yoke straps tight through the leather headpieces studded with brass hearts, and cross-laced them firmly in the grooves of the yoke pegs. You gave the oxen's muzzles a pat."

SUGGESTIVE

Ensuing chapter titles suggest the kind and the breadth of the reminiscences: "Seed, Forges and Rising Bread"; Goose Grease, Death and Parables"; and "Soft Soap and Drawknives."

Sometimes we tire of the too-obvious straining after images and of cloud of morbid inactivity relieved too infrequently by bits of lively doings—but relieved near the close, fortunately, by several short sketches which demonstrate the author's gift as story-teller.

We tire of the too-frequently interlarded bias against the city and the city-dweller. "These country people talked another way too. And not the cheap way city people talk with their scuffed or flinty tongues . . ."

NOSTALGIC

And we tire of the exalting of the splendors of yesterday. Mr. Buckler is writing nostalgic Wordsworthian nonsense when he implies that the glory of the rose may not be, is not, a perennial lifetime affair.

Though this book is, then, sown with too many yearned-for yesterdays and watered with too many elegaic tears, it still represents a bumper crop.

In fact its tangled exuberance reminds one of the growth that springs up from a packet of wild flower seeds, with a potpourri of scents, a kaleidescope of color.

Sugar 'n' Spice and Pros To Fly at Capades Show

The colorful and varied 1968 version of Ice Capades proves once again that the show's creative staff are expert in family entertainment. There's something special for each member—from tot to Grandad.

The all-new ice extravaganza, which will be in Victoria's Memorial Arena Dec. 11 through Dec. 14, features new faces and innovations throughout the show.

Headlining an outstanding cast of international skating stars is Wolfgang Schwarz, the 1968 Olympic Gold Medal Champion. Schwarz, who was signed by Ice Capades directly following his win in Grenoble, France, is on his first professional tour.

MAGIC SCREEN

Other newcomers include Roy and Sandi Wagelein, members of the U.S. Olympic team. The Wageleins not only signed a professional contract with Ice Capades after their Olympic appearance, but they decided to team up permanently and were married in July.

Motion picture film is a big attraction in the ice show and is used throughout the productions. The fascinating Magic Screen—a process which has the active skaters literally "diving" through the screen and seen in action, continuing the story, on the huge motion picture screen.

During the Wild, Wild West segment of the American Swings production number, skaters join in a hectic chase after a bag of gold. Good Guys, Bad Guys, Cowboys and Indians are seen both on ice and on the film in a crazy western spoof.

FRESH DESIGNS

As always, costuming and production numbers are lavish and elaborate. Bill Campbell, the show's talented costume designer, has created 500 fresh designs for this year's show. The production staff has assembled fast-paced variety of numbers ranging from the frothy children's number, Sugar 'n' Spice to the swinging America Swings number, which features skaters Roy and Sandi Wagelein taking a cross-country tour of the United States' fun spots—New York, San Francisco, Chicago and the West.

Each town has its own special number and featured stars.

So, make plans for a very entertaining evening with Ice Capades during their five-show engagement at Victoria Memorial Arena. Wednesday and Thursday performances will be held at 8 p.m. and those on Friday and Saturday evening at 8:30 p.m. A special matinee is scheduled for 2 p.m. on Saturday.

Young people, 16 and under, can take advantage of the special half-price admission on Wednesday, Thursday and the matinee at 2 on Saturday.

Boy Soprano Now Director

Timothy Vernon, the Christ Church Cathedral boy soprano who sang the title role in the cathedral's first production of Amahl and the Night Visitors in 1959, has been honored by being asked to direct a performance of American music in Vienna this Christmas.

Mr. Vernon is specializing in conducting at the Vienna State Academy.

This Christmas, the cathedral will present the short, beautiful music drama of Amahl for the fourth time in nine years.

The role is being sung by Geoffrey Finch, great-great grandson of a former dean of the cathedral who later became noted as Bishop Cridge.

Others in the cast are Peggy Walton Packard, Stanley Martin, Bill Broadhead, Bill Dyson (who sang Amahl in the 1965 production and now assumes the role of King Balthasar), and Tony Patriarche.

Amahl and the Night Visitors will be seen Dec. 27, 28, 30 and Jan. 2, 3 and 4.

PROVIDING A BANG for the Ice Capades coming to Victoria next month is funnyman George Bussey.

Victoria's Own Scott-Wood Duo To Highlight Symphony Concert

The last program for 1968 in Victoria Symphony Orchestra's 28th season, will feature two leading Victoria artists — Winifred Scott and Robin Wood. (See picture on Page 11).

These two notable Canadian pianists have long established an impressive reputation as a duo piano team, and on Dec. 8 and 9 they will perform with Laszlo Gati and the orchestra, two works for duo pianos.

One is the Mozart Concerto for two pianos in E-flat. The second is the unusual and exciting Bartok Sonata for Two Pianos and Percussion.

Balance of the program consists of Mozart's Marriage of Figaro Overture and the Peacock Variations by Kodaly.

MET ON JOURNEY

Winnipeg-born Winifred Scott and Victoria-born Robin Wood both won scholarships to study at the Royal Academy of Music in London in 1946.

They first met on the journey to England and formed a musical partnership which developed two years later into marriage.

As students they won all the major awards at the academy and in 1954 were appointed to the professorial staff.

Both as a team and as soloists they made reputations in Europe and appeared frequently on BBC. They also appeared in two special invitation concerts before royalty.

In 1965, they returned to Victoria to take part in the development of the Victoria Conservatory of Music of which Mr. Wood is principal.

Since their return, Miss Scott and Mr. Wood have taken part in many concerts and performed on radio and television.

Film-Maker To Narrate New Russia

Clay Francisco, a young American who is a leading producer of travel motion pictures, will personally narrate his color travel film, The New Russia, when it is presented in two showings at [illegible] playhouse, Monday.

Formerly associated with Time Inc., Mr. Francisco's journey to the Soviet Union covered more than 10,000 miles and with his wife, he photographed a comprehensive and revealing report on how Russians live.

Included in the film are scenes at Peterhof, where scores of fountains, cascades and canals are a man-made wonder; inside the Hermitage, foremost among the world's art galleries; a performance of the Kirov Ballet; the Moscow film festival; the U.S.A.-U.S.S.R. track meet, and treasures and pleasures of Leningrad.

Outside the great cities, the film visits a collective farm, ancient places and mosques, the fabled lands of Central Asia, the antique cities of Samarkand and Bukhara.

Showing times are 6 and 8:30 p.m.

Opera Company Fast, Fast Crowd

One of the hazards of being a travelling opera company is the speed with which one has to operate, from arrival in town to arrival on stage, made up, costumed, refreshed and in the right frame of mind to tackle whatever role happens to be current.

Take the Canadian Opera Company, for example, which will perform Rossini's comic opera, The Barber of Seville, twice at the Royal Theatre, Sunday and Monday.

The company arrives at the Empress Hotel at approximately 10:30 a.m. Sunday.

WELL-PACED MUST

The singers can take 10 for a little rest and refreshment but the technical people must hustle over to the theatre for setting up installations.

By the time the singers, musicians and conductor arrive, all other factors will be prepared, for soon — at 3 p.m.—the curtain must rise on a dynamic, well-paced performance.

As far as the company is concerned, however, it's all part of the profession and every aspect of the production has been geared to meet these day-to-day demands of touring.

Victoria Symphony Society is presenting the Canadian Opera Company in this visit and there has been a heavy demand for tickets for "Barber" is one of the most popular and delightful operas in the repertoire.

The second performance, Monday, begins at 8:30 p.m.

Blue Goose In December

A three-act comedy, The Blue Goose, by Peter Blackmore, will be presented in December by the Country Church Players, in the hall of St. John the Baptist, Colwood.

Directing the production is Lillian Chambers.

Dates are Dec. 5 and 6 and curtain time is 8 p.m.
